

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

PREFACE.

THE letter of the Bible is the shrine of its spirit and the organism by which it comes into contact with the reader's mind. Hence the most spiritual of Bible students may well feel grateful to all who have toiled at the wearying task of preserving, and—where necessary and possible—restoring the true letter of the Sacred Text in its original tongues. All honour then to men who—like Ginsburg, Tregelles, and Westcott and Hort—have for long years laboured, chiefly that others might enter into their labours.

No English Bible can be more than a translation, since the Sacred Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments were originally written in Hebrew and in Greek. Hence it must be obvious to all, that just in proportion to the importance of these documents must be the obligation to translate them as accurately and adequately as possible; and since in the very nature of things no translation can be perfect, improvement is always possible. Even if no further improvement were attainable, various renderings for different classes of readers would still probably be of service. Besides, Divine favours are freely and widely bestowed; and the humblest individual translator may reasonably deem it possible to contribute something to the common stock of happy and effective renderings. Hence it may not be presumptuous to hope that a useful place will be filled by The Emphasised Bible.

Reverent faith and fearless criticism are not necessarily opposed. He that believes may usefully ask—What? and Why? It may be more imperative than some dream to put such questions, unless faith is to degenerate into superstition. Criticism itself may be subdivided and classified. There is the Lower, which deals with words and sentences, and employs grammar and dictionary to find out their sense and force. There is the Higher, which seeks to get behind the text, and to track the wellnigh hidden streams of origin, using for the purpose literary culture, comparison, conjecture and speculation—sometimes, indeed, to great good purpose, by laying down tracks along which to look for trusty emendation; at others, quite needlessly disturbing the common faith, by confounding editorship (which all books need) with authorship, and, worse still, by imagining ancient inventive liberties falling little short of forgery, without any necessity appreciable by common minds. And, finally, there is the Highest criticism, which springs from sympathy, insight, and experience in divine things; from claiming which modest men instinctively shrink; but which is a reality nevertheless, and is sometimes richly possessed by humble souls who, though unversed in literary problems, know when broad conclusions wound their religious instincts, and whose unsophisticated judgment deserves respectful consideration before any general critical conclusions can be pronounced wholly satisfactory. It is devoutly to be wished that criticism may yet prove itself a greater aid to faith than it has done in the recent past. Its services hitherto must not be forgotten; and candour should be brought to its appreciation. The present Translator has striven to reach absolute freedom from prejudice; and feels constrained to record the seemingly paradoxical testimony—that the so-called higher critics have won the position of worthily occupying the very front rank of workers in the field of the lower criticism, where all learners must begin; and that among Hebrew Lexicons, none approaches—for thoroughness, accuracy, and resolute sobriety—the splendid monument of English, American, and Continental learning, now nearly complete, emanating from the Oxford Press.

The sacred joy experienced during the twelve years of hard work bestowed upon the production of THE EMPHASISED BIBLE might excuse the vain desire that another life could be vouch-safed in which to reap the fruit of antecedent toil; but all this is sobered and subdued by the reflection that the fire itself, human and divine, must prove every man's work, of what sort it is.

It remains only to render hearty thanks to the Scholars whose labours have made this work possible; to the Reviewers whose encouragement has lightened a protracted though pleasant task; to the Printers and Correctors of the Press whose enterprise and patience have done much to make this Bible a pleasure to look on and an instrument to handle with facility; but first and last—especially in view of preserved life and eyesight and mental freshness—to Him from whom all blessings flow.

EXPOSITORY INTRODUCTION

TO THE

CHAPTER I.

THE SPECIAL FEATURES OF THIS TRANSLATION.

That this purports to be an "Emphasised" Bible is naturally the first thing to be noticed. But as it seems desirable to devote an entire chapter to the subject of Emphasis, further discussion of this prominent characteristic may be conveniently deferred until it falls to be considered in due course. In the meantime there are other features which have grown up around this, which it will be of advantage to set forth in order.

- 1. The size of the page. It is with design that this has been made large; mainly for the purpose of bringing into one view connected portions, the constituent parts of which can be so much more easily grasped and remembered when readily seen in their relation to each other and to the whole, than when extended over several smaller pages. The familiar fifteenth chapter of the Gospel by Luke affords an excellent example; the whole chapter being here brought within two columns, in which its historical introduction and the three parables of which it is composed are at once taken in by the eye.
- 2. The varying indentations of the lines. These have been employed to serve several important purposes.
  - a. They mark the transition from Narrative to Speech. The first chapter of Genesis comes out into beautiful relief by this means. After a few introductory words, the arrangement of the lines seems like a commentary on the text "He spake, and it was done." "He spake"—and the words of the speech are distinguished by being set in; "and it was done."—the record of the fact is given as narrative, shown by the nearer approach of the lines to the left-hand margin. The effect is solemnly dramatic. Sometimes the deeper questions of criticism are thus brought to the surface, and the humblest reader is moved to consider whether, for example, the Speeches of Moses recorded in the Book of Deuteronomy were afterwards edited. It is tolerably plain they were; and the perception of the fact would appear to favour the genuineness of the Speeches themselves by the formal removal of objections. Sometimes, again, a subtle question of exegesis is brought very near to a solution by the mere process of rightly indenting the lines. For instance: Does the eighteenth verse of the second chapter of Galatians present a conclusion to which the Apostle Paul had for himself arrived —or is he still addressing his erring brother Peter, and delicately suggesting that Peter was now, at Antioch, "building up" an invidious distinction which, at Cæsarea, he had "destroyed"? The cited-speech indentation appears to be correctly continued there; and the aptness of the words to describe Peter's inconsistency, coupled with the independent fact that there is nothing to show that his faithful brother had yet done addressing him, goes far to settle the true explanation.

- b. The indentations indicate the existence of Speech within Speech. Thus: Moses in the land of Moab, in relating the desert experiences through which the Sons of Israel, with himself, had newly come, cites previous speeches made at the respective times to which he refers—what the people had said to him and how he had answered the people. And it is an undoubted gain to be vividly confronted with the inquiry, Would any historical romancist have dared not only to put invented speeches into the mouth of Moses, but similar speeches into the mouth of God? "Speech within speech" is to be found in many places, and is sometimes discovered to be invested with great interest: as when Solomon, in his Dedicatory Prayer, cites Divine promises previously made to his father David; or as when the Apostle Paul, in addressing King Agrippa, quotes the very words in which the Risen Jesus had addressed him.
- c. The indentations call attention to the existence of Poetic Parallelism. This special kind of parallelism is, of course, not to be confounded with parallel texts or parallel narratives, important though these both are in their own way. Poetic Parallelism is that beautiful, measured reduplication of thought, whereby the same sentiment or fact or promise is doubly expressed, the second time with a difference, still within the general scope of the first; the variation serving not only to cluster together beauties of speech, such as synonyms, contrasts, subservient natural images, and so forth, but to fix the general scope and outlook of the couplet or stanza, the one line hinting the limit to which the other may be assumed to submit, or defining the subject to which it also relates. From this point of view Parallelism steps in as a most graceful and useful handmaid to Exposition. But the charm of it, is what first is felt. "So God created man in his image": that sounds like prose, however weighty. But when Parallelism breaks in with its balanced couplet—then we know we are in the presence of Poesy—a most fitting place, surely, for her first appearance!

There the lawless cease from raging, And there the toilworn are at rest,<sup>d</sup> is so plaintive as to be like a mother's lullaby over her sick child.

Another strain is touched when we read-

For a child hath been born to us, A son hath been given to us,— in which it may be noted that this and not the current rhythm is undoubtedly the true one; since this it is which, closely following the Hebrew, throws the emphasis in the right place—on "child" and "son." There lies our hope—in Him! These samples will suffice to point to the thousands of instances of Parallelism which, in this translation, lie before the reader. The present is not the place for discussing the many varieties of Parallelism to be found in the Bible. The subject is necessarily familiar in all treatises on Hebrew poetry. Better, however, than the perusal of any printed treatise will be the collating and classifying of instances by each student for himself. He can label his samples at pleasure, as "synonymous," "antithetic," "recurrent," "progressive," and so forth, provided he correctly describe them. It is uncertain whether due attention has generally been given to what may be described as semi-parallelism, not infrequently to be found in Isaiah. Its presence is intimated in this Bible, either by a couple of responding extra capitals, as in the following:—

I am sated With ascending-offerings of rams, And the fat of fed beasts.<sup>b</sup>

So have I sworn—Not to be vexed with thee, Nor to rebuke thee;

or, when space has required it, by an extra line bestowed upon it, sooner than do it an injustice. Thus—

And they shall call thee— The city of Yahweh, The Zion of the Holy One of Israel.<sup>d</sup>

There is one especial form of Parallelism to which much interest attaches, if not by reason of any novelty in the attention given to it, yet at least by virtue of its inherently striking character and the help it occasionally renders to right reading and interpretation. Dr. R. Moultone terms it the Envelope arrangement of lines. Its simplest form is where the first line is responded to by the fourth, and the second is answered by the third. A single example will show what is meant:—

Let me see thy form,

Let me hear thy voice,—

For thy voice is sweet,

And thy form comely.

Its bearing upon the correct reading of the original is seen in Isa. ix. 3; the much-needed emendation of which is reached by Dr. Ginsburg through a wholly independent process, dealing with questions of abbreviation and letter grouping. The result of his critical revision of the Hebrew text is strongly confirmed by the fact that thereby is produced this very special and beautiful form of parallelism:—

Thou hast increased the exultation.
Thou hast made great the joy,—
They joy before thee according to the joy of harvest,
As men exult when they distribute spoil.<sup>5</sup>

* Isa. ix. 6. b Isa. i, 11. c Isa. liv. 9. d Isa. lx. 14. • In "The Hole as Literature."

* S.S. ii. 14. * Isa. ix. 3.

How it touches exegesis may be discovered by turning to Mat. vii. 6; in explaining which we need no longer fear it as an undue liberty, to attribute to the "dogs" the "turning" and "tearing," and to the "swine" the "trampling underfoot." *

d. The indentations of the lines further present the results of Logical Analysis. This is the case where, without any suspicion of poetry, the thought-relation of the clauses is more readily seen by means of the exact place assigned to the line-commencements; whether, for example, a second line is to be regarded as co-ordinate with the first—that is, of an equally leading character; or as subordinate, subservient, helping. An extremely simple instance may be found in the setting forth of Martha's reply to our Lord, who has just said, "Believest thou this?"

She saith unto him—
Yea, Lord! I have believed.
That thou art the Christ, the Son of God,—
He who into the world should come.

Here, the first line of course is narrative. In the second, Martha confesses that she has faith, but the line stops short of saying what it is she believes; that being reserved for a new and further-indented line, so indented partly because thereby greater distinctness is given to the proposition which first defines her faith, and partly also because her answer appears to be, if not evasive, yet a little indirect. She, at any rate, does not say quite simply, "Yea, Lord! I believe this!" For some reason, she prefers Why she did this may be worth inquiry. to formulate her own faith. Was it that she felt the answer she gave fully endorsed the statements Jesus had just made: "Believing thee to be who and what thou art, I at once confide in the truth of whatsoever thou art pleased to tell me?" Or was it perhaps rather that she was diffident of herself, and hesitated to say whether she believed a revelation so lofty and of such a sweeping amplitude as that just disclosed; and therefore in her grief and perplexity preferred to fall back upon a more elementary truth, to which she felt she had already attained, and upon which she could still rely? The indentation of that line conducts the reader to this profoundly interesting psychological inquiry. Then the further pushing in of the last line is merely to point out—what is seen after a moment's reflection to be true—that this final line is subordinate to the one that precedes it, being of an explanatory character, as showing who and what the Christ, the Son of God, must be, and as indicating Martha's persuasion that in the sympathetic Teacher standing before her she saw Him whom the prophetic Scriptures had foretold and for whom the ages had waited. Now if all this food for thought is presented, in what may be termed a digestible form, by means of four lines of varying indentation, surely the average thoughtful reader can take the hint, and not deem "Logical Analysis" beyond him, but do a little of it for himself, just when he is analytically inclined; and, for the rest, can come to a working confidence in the Translator for having presented movement is "heart—ears—eyes: eyes—ears—heart."

To these references may be added Job xxvii. 16, 17; Jer. ix. 4; x. 11; and especially Is. vi. 10, with Mat. xiii. 15, where the rhetorical

Scripture thoughts (which had to be presented somehow) after what appeared to him the most apt and helpful arrangement; about which no one is counselled to trouble himself prematurely or overmuch. This, however, is certain namely, that a little perseverance will soon render it easy to the reader of this Bible to pay a profitable regard to the parentheses and digressions which so strikingly characterise the writings of the Apostle Paul. To a principal statement, he subordinates another; then, to that, another; and so on to such a degree that, although for a time we can comfortably indent more and more, yet at length the device of indentation comes perilously near breaking down; and to avoid being driven quite up to the right-hand margin, and so having no column at all left, we are constrained to use substitutionary initial capitals (as in Ephesians i. and Colossians i.) to indicate where further-indented new lines would begin if only there were room. Extreme indentation, as the initiated know well, is literally, in printing, an expensive luxury; but the student reaps the benefit, and his sense of triumph becomes a keen enjoyment as he watches the return of the great Evangelical Thinker to the point from which—a good while ago—he started. He confesses that his Guide has wandered; but he boasts that his Master never comes What, for example, though the entire Third of Ephesians is a parenthesis? The world would have been poorer without it. Furthermore, when industrious readers wake up to the gains which Logical Analysis promises to bring home, they may find themselves marking with the greatest interest the unexpected appearance of a similar Logical Idiom in the Book of Ezekiel to that which is found in the Book of Daniel pursued to such a remarkable extent, in these two Books alone, as to give colour to the assumption that, after all, in spite of the contrary assertions of certain critics, the prophets Ezekiel and Daniel were very nearly contemporaries, just as the sacred history would naturally lead us to suppose they

e. The arrangement of the lines is occasionally used to set forth, in a becoming style, Divine Proclamations and certain obvious approximations to Divine Signature. For example: to centralise the words is simply to invoke the assistance of the eye to give to that formula the dominating force over the announcement which follows which by the intention of the prophet it should naturally have. And so again there are cases in the Pentateuch and in the Prophets in which the oft-recurring formula, "As Yahweh commanded Moses," or "Declareth Yahweh," can be more becomingly appended, and with better effect, as a line by itself drawn towards the right hand, after the manner of a signature, than in any other way.

3. Varieties of type.—These have been but sparingly resorted to, partly on the score of economy, but chiefly because continual changes of type soon become annoying and even distressing to the eye. For these reasons Emphasis, in particular, has not been thus indicated. At the same time the discreet employment of other than the ordinary type has been made to answer a few very serviceable ends.

Exo. xl. b Jer., Eze., Hag. ii., Zech. ii., viii., x., and often.

a. Refrains in the Old Testament have been distinguished by italic type. These naturally abound in the Psalms; and there are few readers who will not be pleased to find them so made prominent throughout that favourite The presence of "refrains" in the early chapters of Isaiah will surprise some readers; while the existence of them in the prophecies of Jeremiah will astonish still more, especially if we are allowed to classify under the heading of "refrains" the recurrence of a biting phrase, magor missaviv ("terror round about"), which (after being found in chap. vi. 25, hurled by Jeremiah against his priestly persecutor Pashhur [xx. 3]), then seems to have been mockingly flung back on himself by a tell-tale populace (ver. 10); afterwards to be solemnly directed by Yahweh against Egypt (chap. xlvi. 5) and against Kedar (chap. xlix. 29); strikingly enough to reappear, finally, in the plaintive dirge of the same weeping prophet (Lam. ii. 22), thereby, at last, well-nigh proving its claim to a place among actual refrains. Of course the most beautiful refrain in the Book of Jeremiah is the melodious couplet—which occurs in chaps. vii. 34; xvi. 9; xxv. 10; and xxxiii. 11—three times as a lament, as of something that was to cease; but, on the fourth and last occasion, reappearing as a lovely flower in a gay garland of joyful prophetic Not for ever, to Israel, is that fourfold voice to be hushed! however, we can tolerate the extension of the word "refrain" to the most inspiring recurrence of consolatory truth, apart from any further thought of poetic composition, then we may surely distinguish by that name the brightest promise of the Old Testament, which meets us in the form of an announcement by the Most High of his own character. Taking its rise in the Ten Commandments, b it expands in volume on that later, momentous, re-instating occasion, when Yahweh caused "all his goodness to pass before" Moses, and when in answer to prayer He graciously restored Israel to covenant favour.<sup>c</sup> Further references will be found under the last-named passage; and whoever will take the trouble to look through those texts, and will thoughtfully note how this manifestation of "all the Divine goodness" forms the sheet-anchor of hope for after times, will probably admit the fitness of terming it, by way of eminence, THE REFRAIN OF THE OLD TESTAMENT.

b. Some peculiarities in the use of Divine Names are thereby (viz., by varieties of type) indicated. Concerning the especial proper name of God (Yahweh) the reader will naturally consult Chapter IV. of this Introduction. But the present is the fitting place for naming some further information which has been conveyed throughout the Old Testament part of this Bible by typographical means. It should be understood, then, that when the familiar word "God" is found printed in ordinary type, then the Hebrew is Elohim; when the same word is printed "God" (one capital and two small capitals), then the Hebrew is "Él"; and when "God" is printed in Gld English letter, then the See, for examples, Psalms cvii. and cxxxvi.

Exo. xxxiii. 17; xxxiv. 6, 7.

Exo. xx. 6; cp. Deu. v. 10.

Hebrew is Eloah (principally confined to the Book of Job). It is not, perhaps, to be assumed that these discriminations are of supreme importance; nevertheless, when connected with other things, they are certainly invested with considerable interest. For the word Elohim, see note on Gen. i. 1.  $\hat{E}l$  will be readily remembered as entering into the composition of proper names, such as "Beth-el," "Immanu-el," and many others. It may also be discovered—the evidence would seem to point that way—that in the use of the independent monosyllable  $\hat{E}l$ , just where the moral feeling is most intense, there  $\hat{E}l$  shows an aptitude to step in, in preference to Elohim. The ordinary reader can now judge of this for himself. Without imagining anything less sacred in Eloah than in its longer or shorter companions, this at least is clear, that Eloah—as compared with the most sacred Name (the Tetragrammaton—see Chapter IV.)—is held to be good enough for the controversial spirit which undeniably pervades all the middle portion of the Book of Job.

- c. Quotations from the Old Testament in the New are by the italics rendered conveniently conspicuous. That it is of great convenience and of considerable practical utility to be able to see at once what portions from the Jewish Scriptures are quoted in the Christian, will not be denied by anyone who has given a fair amount of attention to the matter; nor can it be questioned that the employment of italic letter for the purpose is far more effective than the adoption even of quotation marks would have been. Thereby, for example, the reader perceives without any appreciable trouble how largely the Book of the "Revelation" is constructed out of Old Testament language and imagery. Thereby also he sees instantly how even a single word out of a citation becomes the pivot on which an argument is made to turn.
- 4. Section-headings, Footnotes, References, and Appendices.—These may be left to speak for themselves, when once two or three needful explanations have been offered.
  - a. It was not at first intended to insert Section-headings in the Prophetical Books, owing to the risk of needlessly determining or attempting to determine difficult questions of interpretation; but an experiment having been made, the result seemed to promise so much convenience and assistance to average readers that the hazard and the additional labour were accepted. In most cases it will be found that, where these headings appear most startling, they are expressly warranted by the very terms of the Sacred Text.
  - b. The Footnotes include both "alternative renderings" and "various readings," the difference between which, being partly technical, is worth a moment's attention. An "alternative rendering," then, comes of the process of translating, and merely expresses the translator's feeling that some other English word than that adopted in the text might have given the sense of the original nearly or quite as well; and that for the reader to know this may be of practical service. It is well for the reader to be aware that oft-times no one word wholly and absolutely and alone says precisely what is conveyed by the Hebrew or Greek. It is no question of variance between one copy of the original and another, but exclusively concerns the best way of representing what is admitted to be in the original. One rendering conveys the meaning more readily or more precisely than another, and to ring the changes on fair alternatives is often very helpful, supplying a breadth or an exactness which can be had in no other way. Sometimes a rendering is too literal for the text, yet not too literal for the margin. Questions of decorum and euphemism may be allowed some influence. Humorous translations may sometimes do good service in the margin which could never be tolerated in the text. Moreover, a freer rendering may the sooner be allowed in the text, provided a more literal one be placed at the foot of the page. So much for "alternative renderings." "Various readings" are a very different matter. They have sole regard to variations which, in the course of transmission from an earlier age, have crept into different copies of or witnesses to the original. Concerning these, more information will be found in Chapter III. of this Introduction.

- c. References, as commonly understood, can readily be found elsewhere. Those here given have come into the Translator's hands mostly through special channels or as the result of personal study; and in any case, it is believed, will be found trustworthy and useful.
- d. The Appendices present, in orderly collected form, matter which would have been suited for longer notes, but can be more conveniently studied as actually given. These appended notes mostly touch upon subjects of the highest importance, and are respectfully submitted in the hope that they will prove helpful to not a few readers of The Emphasised Bible.

CHAPTER II.

CONCERNING EMPHASIS

AS AUTHORITATIVELY INDICATED IN THE HOLY SCRIPTURES.

- 1. "Strike, but hear me!" exclaimed an ancient orator to an infuriated mob; that is, "Strike, if you will; but hear me first." In reading aloud this citation, some little stress is instinctively laid on the two words "strike" and "hear," thereby assisting the ear to catch the plainly intended contrast. A few years since, the same saying was modified in sense by a change of emphasis. A trade strike was pending, when an illustrated paper, giving an imposing figure representing "Law," put beneath the figure the legend, "Strike, but hear me!" in this way not only investing the word "strike" with a modern significance, but suggesting, by the emphasis laid on the word "me," a timely contrast—as much as to say, "You have listened to other advisers: before you act on their counsel, hearken to me—consider whether your contemplated strike would be legal." This new point put into the old words would perhaps scarcely have been caught, even with the help of the symbolic figure of the cartoon, but for the outward and visible sign of emphasis attached to the closing word "me."
- 2. It is freely granted that context and circumstance, when known and considered, are in many cases alone sufficient to guide to correct emphasis, whether it be in ordinary literature or in the Bible. For example, the bold contrast made by Christ, in the Sermon on the Mount, between other teachers and himself would naturally prompt any reader of taste to lay stress on the pronoun "I" in the recurring formula—

Ye have heard that it hath been said . . . but I say unto you.

3. Context and circumstance, however, are not always sufficient, because not always clear. We have therefore to be thankful that our Public Versions of the Bible furnish further guidance in the matter of emphasis by means of Idiom. The words are frequently so arranged as by their very order to indicate where the stress should be placed. Thus, in the history of Joseph, where "the butler," in confessing his fault in forgetting Joseph, narrates the diverse fate of "the baker" and himself, he says—

And it came to pass, as he interpreted to us, so it was: me he restored unto mine office, and him he hanged.<sup>b</sup>

In this sentence it is at once felt that the pronouns "me" and "him" are as certainly emphasised by their mere position as if they had been printed in capitals. So, again, where the Apostle Paul, after thanking God that he spake with tongues more than any of the Corinthian Christians, proceeds to say—

Yet in the church I had rather speak five words with my understanding, that by my voice I might teach others also, than ten thousand words in an unknown tongue, it is easily seen from the context that the clause "in the church" governs the whole sentence, and should receive the leading stress. Nor is it by order of words alone that an emphatic idiom is constituted. Certain forms of circumlocution serve the same purpose:

But as for me, I shall behold thy face in righteousness,d is an altogether effective means of reproducing the force of the emphatic pronoun which opens the verse in the Hebrew. Or a simple repetition secures the result—

The living, the living, he shall praise thee, as I do this day.

Or a qualifying word of a manifestly emphasising force is employed, like "surely" in the following:—

In the day that thou eatest thereof, thou shalt surely dia; f or "certainly" in this place—

Could we certainly know that he would say, Bring your brother down?

or "diligently" in this-

If thou shalt hearken diligently unto the voice of the LORD thy God.h

4. Yet, varied as is the Emphatic Idiom of our Public Versions and numerous as are the examples which meet us in which that indication of stress has been turned to most admirable account, the pity is that it has not been resorted to ten times more frequently than is the case. For, be it observed, the Emphatic Idiom of the English is but a faint and fitful reflex of the Emphatic Idiom of the Hebrew and Greek.<sup>1</sup> This fact is well-known to scholars, though scarcely dreamt of by the general Bible-reading public. A fact however it is, and one which can be substantiated just as conclusively as any law which governs language. The great point at present is that all this accession of force and guide to the sense is, in the Sacred Originals, secured simply by Idiom-order of words, fulness of expression, repetitions and the like—and is therefore both pervading and authoritative. It is "pervading": not, of course, as though all Scripture needed to be formally emphasised to the same degree—to imagine such a thing would be absurd; some styles of Sacred composition, instead of bristling with points, calmly flow on, keeping the even tenor of their way-but "pervading" in the satisfactory sense of being ever available when required. Whenever a point has to be made, a quiet contrast to be rather hinted at than expressed, a sharp and sudden home-thrust to be delivered, Idiom is at hand to accomplish it. From which, when the numberless living interests enshrined in the Bible are considered, it will be expected to follow-and follow it doesthat a very large amount of indicated stress underlies almost every page of the Sacred Volume. And—does it need to be repeated?—Emphasis so conveyed is surely "authoritative": which is not the same thing as saying there is no room for misapprehension in this place or in that; nor is it the same as affirming that all scholars are absolutely agreed about every little point. But the emphasis is "authoritative," inasmuch as it is in the original—is a part of the original—is of the very spirit and essence of the original. And being in this way "authoritative," it is in all its main indications worthy of unspeakably more diligent heed in exposition than the most brilliant fancies of men who dream they may make what they please of Holy Writ. Sober students are bound by the laws of Grammar: they are equally bound by the laws of Emphasis.

- 5. It is one of the leading aims of THE EMPHASISED BIBLE to do justice to the Emphatic Idioms of the original tongues, and thereby place all earnest Bible readers, for practical purposes, on the same footing as that occupied by such as are familiar with Hebrew and Greek.
- 6. Mainly by Idiom has this been attempted. So that if all the artificial signs of Emphasis used in this Bible were swept away, an amount of Emphatic Idiom would remain far surpassing that to be found in any other version known to the Translator Although emphatic inversion, for instance, is not infrequently discovered in our Public Versions: yet far more frequently and—if the expression may be pardoned—far more consistently does it appear in this translation. Take two examples out of thousands:
  - A.V. Wilt thou break a leaf driven to and fro?
    And wilt thou pursue the dry stubble?

Em. B. A driven leaf wilt thou cause to tremble?

Or dry stubble wilt thou pursue?

The latter rendering reproduces the idiom of the Hebrew, and therewith also mos naturally shows where the primary stress should be laid.

A.V. And when he putteth forth his own sheep, he goeth before them.

Em. B. As soon as all his own he putteth forth Before them he moveth on.<sup>b</sup>

The Idiom, the Emphasis, is in the Greek. It would be endless to cite example of all the various forms which the Original Idiom takes for the sake of conveyin emphasis. Suffice it to say: that in this Bible these forms have been sacredly reproduced whenever possible—so long, that is, as the English remained easily intelligible and was not too constrained.

7. But Idiom alone would have been utterly inadequate to the attainment of the object in view. In many instances the endeavour to preserve in English the order of the words in the original would have resulted in obscurity; or, worse still, would have conveyed the very opposite of the meaning intended. In the following passage from the Book of Lamentations, it could have been wished that, for the sake of preserving the exact rhythm of the Hebrew, it had been perspicuous English to say-

> For this cause bath sickened our heart, For these things have darkened our eyes; inasmuch as there is some little weight naturally resting on the paired words (ending words in the Hebrew) "heart" and "eyes" which, if that position could have been preserved in English, would have secured a fine cadence and a satisfying ending to each line of the couplet. But the construction would in two or three ways have been ambiguous—in fact a wrong meaning to some of the terms would have been favoured. Therefore, inasmuch as a clear conveyance of the sense is rightly the first requirement, the Hebrew arrangement can only in part be followed, and we have to be content with some such approximation as this—

> For this cause hath our heart' sickened, For these things have our eyes' darkened.

An acute accent on "heart" and "eyes" may be allowed as a slight compensation for loss of position; and, to anticipate for a moment, if our angular sign be then attached to the two opening phrases ("For this cause" and "For these things"), those words will be instinctively caught as adverbial clauses, strongly emphasised by their commanding position, and so gathering up into themselves the whole stream of the prophet's foregoing lament-

> <For this cause> hath our heart' sickened, <For these things> have our eyes' darkened.

This illustration may stand for thousands, and evince beyond a doubt the impossibility of mechanically giving idiom for idiom in translation: hopeless obscurity would frequently be the inevitable result. And as a sufficient proof that in some cases idiom for idiom would cause the translation to express the very opposite meaning to its original, it is enough to cite one instance.

Elijah calleth this man b is the order of the words in the Greek; yet "this man" is the nominative (that is, the caller) and "Elijah" the objective (that is, the person [supposed to be] called upon), and the true rendering is-

This man calleth Elijah;

though rightfully a decided stress should be laid, where indicated, on "ELIJAH."

8. That, notwithstanding this risk of overdoing, a very free use of Emphatic Idiom has been made in this Bible will soon appear upon examination. Few sympathetic readers will complain of this. Such readers will perceive and bear in mind that inversions in the language of The Emphasised Bible are always intentional—always according to the original—always expressive. They will go on to observe that an inversion which at first seemed harsh, especially if incautiously read, soon commends itself when tastefully uttered. Finally, the Translator's purpose will be remembered. It is due to himself to confess that he has deemed himself privileged, and therefore has carried the process of imitating the inversions of the originals to a degree scarcely tolerable in any version designed for public use. It is quite true that the larger number of the inversions here ventured would, as he conceives, adorn any translation, and because of their apt reflection of the Hebrew or Greek he honestly thinks they possess strong claims on general adoption; but not all of them. Speaking approximately, possibly in one case out of ten the Editor of The Emphasised Bible would have himself shrunk back from what he has actually dared, if he had been so presumptuous as to think of producing a competitive translation. His aim throughout has been to form a Companion Version; and he respectfully asks the measure of indulgence which that intention makes reasonable.

- 9. One thing at least is clear—namely, that English Idiom alone could never have expressed all the Emphasis enshrined in the originals. It follows that either numerous tokens of stress contained in the sacred tongues must have been lost, or else artificial means were necessary to give them effect. As for the best method of doing this, there is, of course, no accounting for individual preferences; and, given the necessity, some would have chosen varieties of type, not sufficiently considering, perhaps, how soon these annoy the eye when multiplied. Others, again, would have preferred the underscoring which was used in the first and second editions of the Translator's New Testament, unaware, probably, that the costliness of that method seemed prohibitive when thought of for the entire Bible. In favour of the plan now adopted, suffice it to claim economy, elasticity, and effectiveness. employed practically cost nothing, since the compositor can pick up a sign of emphasiz as easily as he can pick up a comma. The elasticity springs from the combination of diverse signs: for example, an interposed accent can appear in the midst of ar already emphasised clause. And the effectiveness is quite as great as was desired, seeing that delicacy of touch was also wished, and even a fitness to be temporarily disregarded -a quality commended to all who find the marks in the least perplexing. persons as would have been better pleased with some heavier and more obtrusive styl of emphasising will kindly bethink them, that stress is mostly quite effective if laid o one syllable of a word, one word in a clause, and so forth; and that all the guidanc the eye requires is to be enabled to take in at a glance the beginning and endin of the word, the phrase, the clause within which the enhanced stress is to tak effect.
- 10. One explanation further, and nothing will be needed for completing this chapte beyond a few annotated examples and the synopsis at the end, which will be convenient for reference both to the scholar and to the learner. The explanation is this Idiom alone, it may be thought, might have been trusted to convey a portion of the emphasis indicated in the original, and artificial signs might have been restricted the conveyance of the rest; instead of which (it may be objected), in this Bible, the artificial signs, in point of fact, mostly accompany the idiom when present, as well serve as a substitute for it when absent. In fact, however, it was difficult to draw the line, especially as, in many cases, the signs of emphasis served as a species of magnification, for which reason it seemed better to go through with them. Besid which, is it not sometimes welcome to hurried eyes to have pointed out to them what might have been discovered by unaided vision?

11. Now for a few Annotated Examples, before submitting which the hint is given that a glance at the Table of Signs placed at the end of this Introduction will here be found convenient.

Doth ||this || cause | you | to stumble?*

The A.V. rendering of this passage leaves much to be desired; partly because of the wrong impression which the word "offend" conveys, as though Jesus feared He had hurt His disciples' feelings to the degree of provoking their resentment; and partly because it leaves the point of the question uncertain. The R.V. obviates the wrong impression, by substituting "cause to stumble" for "offend," but it fails to bring out the fine point seen by laying a little stress on "you." "Doth this cause you to stumble"—you, My disciples, who might have known better? It is a clear case; for the Greek sets the noun governed before the verb that governs it (cp. post, Synopsis, A, b).

And he said, I know not,  $\langle$  the keeper of my brother $\rangle$  am  $\|I\|$ ?

How the point of Cain's defence of his professed ignorance leaps to his lips! The arrangement, "Am I my brother's keeper?" is tameness itself in comparison.

< What is right, what is right> shalt thou pursue.c

In this place both A.V. and R.V. preserve the inversion which opens the verse, and for that we are thankful: "That which is altogether just shalt thou follow." But why not have given it with the greater simplicity and vivacity of the original?—— iddhek itrdôf'—it is all there. And why not have given the full force of the verb "pursue"—"pursue" with determination, and not merely "follow" with half-heartedness or from a dull sense of duty?

Then thou scarest me with dreams,
And < by visions > dost terrify me:
So that my soul chooseth strangling,
| Death | rather than these my bones.4

Note here how parallelism and emphasis enhance the effect of each other. There being two synonymous couplets, constituting a duplicate expression for each thought (viz., first the Divine visitation, then the effect on the sufferer), emphasis steps in at the second line of each couplet, and strongly accentuates the closing word of the preceding line: "dreams—visions"; "strangling—death." Note also how well the sharp expression which the word "death" draws to itself, prepares the way for the lingering and piteous lament over "these my bones."

< Righteousness > I put on and it clothed me, < Like a robe and a turban > was my | justice |; < Eyes > became I to | the blind |, And < feet to the lame > was  $\|I\|$ .

It would be difficult to name a passage more studded with the beauties of combined parallelism and emphasis than this. Observe that, here again, there are two couplets; then, that an emphatic inversion leads off in the first line of the first couplet—an accusative before its verb (Synopsis, A, b); next, that the thought of "clothing" oneself, given in the first line, is emphatically and rhetorically amplified in the second line,

"robe" and "turban" forming not merely clothing, but an adornment fit for any assembly; further, that the term "righteousness" at the beginning of the first line is answered by its synonym "justice" at the end of the second—a not infrequent device in Hebrew poetry, and that as the two substantives respond to each other and ending words also have a natural advantage (cp. Synopsis, A, f), a slight stress is marked on "justice." In line three, note how the word "eyes" at the opening comes into rhythmic relation with the term "blind" at the close, the verb "to become" being unemphatically thrown in between them, with no stress on the pronoun "I," which is merely implied in the verb; and how finally, in the last line, "feet" and "lame," instead of being parted like "eyes" and "blind" in the third line, are swiftly and unexpectedly welded into a single emphatic phrase at the head of the line, to be simply followed by the pronoun "I," which, though having primarily to serve, after Hebrew fashion, for the verb "to be," yet, with its long-drawn pausal vowel ('a'ni), lingers on the ear with an unspeakable pathos (Synopsis, B, a, last sentence).

See  $\|\text{now}\|$  that  $\|I\|$ ,  $\|I\|$  am he, And there are no gods with me:  $\|I\|$  kill—and make alive, I wound and  $\|I\|$  heal; And there is none who <from my hand> can deliver.

The inquisitive will not begrudge the trouble of examining the context which leads up to this animated and impressive passage. It will be seen that, with keenest irony, idolatrous Israel has just been advised to apply in her extremity to the false gods of "See now"—if haply ye have at length discovered how which she has boasted. utterly vain is their help-"that I, I-emphatically repeated, as if to invite a penitent nation to fill in the blanks from the stores of reviving memories-"I"-your own, your real, your living God; "I"-your long forgotten, but yet faithful, loving God, still waiting, even now after all this, to be gracious. "See now, that I. I am he;" or, "am the one, and the only one, that can help you." "And there are no' gods with me" -strong negative of the substantive verb, hence accent on "no'." "I kill"-separate nominative pronoun (Synopsis, B, a); hence strong emphasis on the pronoun. make alive "-nominative pronoun not repeated, hence none needed in English; the contrast between "kill" and "make alive" at this point suffices. again no separate nominative, and no emphasis on "I" this time permissible. But then finally, when bringing in the climax "I heal," there is a triumphant stress to be laid on the "I" (wa'a'ni 'erpd').—The Translator protests that, while he does real homage to the elocutionary instinct which is common to all men, and is well trained in most educated men, he considers it very unlikely that such instinct could ever, unaided, have divined the existence of such authoritatively indicated variations as these; of which, indeed, familiarity with the original idiom can alone give trustworthy information.

> He was despised and forsaken of men, A man of sorrows, and acquainted with grief,— Yea <like one from whom men turn away the face> He was despised, and we esteemed him not.<sup>b</sup>

So far the discourse flows calmly on in description of the Suffering Servant, without any use for emphatic pronouns. But now an entire change of mood is felt. From  $\varepsilon$ bare statement of the matter of fact, reflective Israel passes to a revised and deeper view of the cause of the Sufferer's sorrows:—

|Yet surely | <our griefs> ||he|| carried, And <as for our sorrows> he bare them,—*

where note what a break-up of the historical style occurs, and how the emphasising strokes come throbbing in: "Yet surely our griefs"—the real cause of the Servant's sufferings by bold inversion being set at the head and front of the sentence (the accusative before its verb: Synopsis, A, b). "He carried"—the pronoun is, indeed, implied in the verb (nasa), but that is not enough, and so it is also separately expressed, in order that stress may be laid upon it (hu' nasa'—cp. Synopsis, B, a). He was our Substitute and bare our burden. That in this couplet the phrases "our griefs" and "our sorrows" are synonymous, is at once evident.

What, perhaps, we desiderate in the second line is that the pronoun "he" should have been again emphasised in like manner as in the line foregoing; and though it is absent from the Massoretic or traditional text, and therefore, according to rule, we can scarcely so mark it, yet we note with intense interest that there is a various reading b relating to that very point, to the effect that some Hebrew written copies actually have the emphatic "he"; in which, moreover, the ancient Syriac and Latin versions keep them company (implying that the ancient Hebrew standards from which they were formed had the pronoun emphatic). And we are further informed that there are some existing Hebrew copies which, though they have not the emphatic hu' in the text, yet have it set down in the margin as a keri', that is, to be read, though not written. We have purposely expanded this short note of variance, bearing as it does on a point of much interest.

To return to the text:-

|| We|| however, esteemed him—
Stricken, smitten of God, and humbled.
But || he|| was Wounded for our transgressions,
Bruised for our iniquities,
|| The chastisement for our well-being || was |upon him |,
And by his stripes> there is healing | for us|, c

As much as to say: "We," however, away in the past, when the true light of the matter had not dawned upon us, esteemed him divinely chastised for some cause unknown. We then little thought how his sufferings were related to us; "But" we see it all now! And so on, until the ultimate explanation is reached—

But || Yahweh|| caused to light upon him' the iniquity of us all.4

YAHWEH did what none other had any right or power to do. Compare verse 10 where the same stress as in verse 6 is laid on the Divine Doer of the work of Salvation. And so we close our brief hints as to the expository value of the emphasis indicated throughout this wonderful prophecy; and we close them by respectfully claiming that it is not at all by the play of pious fancy, but exclusively by giving effect to a well-proved idiomatic law that we lay decided stress upon the Divine interposition through which there is healing for Israel and for Mankind. Before dismissing our notice of this example of emphasis in the famous Fifty-third of Isaiah, it may be worth reminding the reader that in at least three places in the New Testament and the words of this Prophecy re-appear, and each time with something of the significant emphasis with which the words were originally penned. In fact speaking broadly, the emphasis of the Old Testament is the emphasis of the New the main idioms are the same, their exegetical value is the same. When successfull rendered, the ancient tones and suggestions of the Hebrew are reproduced—in Greek in English. The language again lives.

A SYNOPSIS OF THE ## PRINCIPAL LAWS OF EMPHASIS DISCOVERABLE IN THE BIBLE ORIGINALS.

A. By position.

a. Nominatives before verbs—always.*

b. Genitives, b datives and accusatives before verbs—always.

c. Verbs before nominatives—slightly; but able to command strong emphasis reduplication, see below, B, b.

d. Adjectives before nouns—chiefly in N.T., and slightly.

e. Words brought into juxtaposition—sometimes, in prose, internal evidence c curring; more frequently in poetry, where the last word of one line is of varied and emphatically echoed by the first in next line.

Words postponed to end of sentence—sometimes in prose, sense concurring more frequently in lyric poetry, in which the last word is mostly weighted. and claims secondary stress.

B. By REPETITION.

a. Separate nominative pronoun. Prolific source of emphasis both in Hebrew Greek, as the separate pronoun is independent of position. Always reli when construed with finite verb, which has the pronominal element also wi itself. Sometimes also, when used instead of a verb, seems by association ideas to lend itself to some little stress.1

b. Reduplicated verb-chiefly in Hebrew, m reappearing by quotation in Always indicates lively emphasis. Infinitive verb generally set before its finite—then emphasis only: occasionally placed after its own finite—perhaps sometimes suggesting continuance or repetition of action.<sup>2</sup>
c. Independent words, ophrases, and sentences. The mere repetition of the one of the most simple and obvious devices for indicating stress.

C. By FORMAL EXPRESSION.

This chiefly applies to Hebrew particles. Owing to the extraordinary facility which the consecution of facts and thoughts can be carried forward b peg-letter waw, it follows that when more formal and precise connecting par are employed, some emphasis can generally be felt. Hence springs the more or less vigorous, which in THE EMPHASISED BIBLE is frequently m on such connectives as "now" ('attah), "therefore" (laken), "for this ci ('al ken), and so on; in respect of which appeal is confidently ma elocutionary instinct as to the validity of the result.

CHAPTER III.

THE ORIGINAL TEXTS.

For practical purposes it may be assumed that Hebrew and Greek are the original languages of the Bible. The small proportion of Aramaic embedded in the Hebrew Bible does not require formal consideration, just because this dialect is nearly allied to Hebrew, and the portions of the Old Testament written therein form integral parts of all Hebrew written copies and printed editions. With regard to the New Testament, the only question that could arise would be whether some parts of it were not first written in Syriac and then translated into Greek. But this is probably a purely academical inquiry, and inasmuch as the assumption of a Greek original for the whole of the New Testament does not exclude Syriac sources from contributing their quota towards evidence of genuineness and aids to textual purity, the question for the Translator is reduced to this: What Hebrew Bible and what Greek New Testament shall he employ for making his version? In a word—What Texts shall he translate?

It is a relief to think that no translator can be required first to construct his Hebrew and Greek texts before turning them into English. Life would not be long enough for one man or one set of men to explore the whole of the immense field; besides, the task is more likely to be efficiently done if its widely different departments are undertaken by departmental experts. The textual critic prepares the way for the translator, a consideration which makes this the convenient moment for stating that the textual critics followed in executing The Emphasised Bible are respectively Dr. Ginsburg in the Old Testament, and Drs. Westcott and Hort in the New. To understand the debt of gratitude we owe to these pioneers, it will be better to take separately the two leading divisions of our Holy Scriptures, and the more so as each division involves conditions inapplicable to the other.

I. THE ORIGINAL TEXT OF THE OLD TESTAMENT.

1. The Text itself.

In the Old Testament there seemed to be no choice but to take the received or current Massoretic text, unless one had been prepared to embark on the treacherous sea of Conjectural Criticism; and, in the first writing out of the MS. for this work, that text in its commonly printed form was implicitly followed. It was the singular good fortune of the present translator, however, to have only just completed his transcript when the Critico-Massoretic Hebrew Bible of Dr. C. D. Ginsburg appeared; and it was at once seen how greatly it would add to the value of The Emphasised Bible to compare the MS. throughout with Dr. Ginsburg's Hebrew text and to make and translate a selection from his priceless Various Readings. This additional labour was gladly undertaken; and it is deemed no small cause for gratitude to have been spared to finish the task. Respecting the Old Testament, therefore, the case now stands as follows:—

The Hebrew Text used is the revised Massoretic Text edited by Dr. Ginsburg, subject to certain exceptions which will at once be explained, and which can Digitized by 27 Dr. Ginsburg, scarcely fail to commend themselves as soon as they are understood. The exceptions are almost exclusively the confirmed and approved various readings to which Dr. Ginsburg has prefixed the formula, "It ought to be" so-and-so. nave been incorporated in the text of this version, and not merely inserted in the notes; for it was instinctively felt that what "ought to be" should be in a work of this kind. For Dr. Ginsburg's purpose, indeed, it was probably fitting that he should make no changes in his text other than any which might be required to render his edition a perfectly accurate reprint of the Received Massoretic recension, and that accordingly all the emendations he had to propose were wisely incorporated with his foot-notes, no matter with what degree of confidence advanced. This method was at once seen to be in the true Massoretic spirit, which changes nothing, reproduces everything, fences and guards everything. But as this translation of the Old Testament was intended to make straight for correct exegesis and was purely practical in its design, the contrary course was adopted with respect to the especial class of various readings now under consideration, and accordingly the resulting changes were boldly made in the text of this version, with the unvarying note appended in each case, "So it shd be," duly referring to Ginsburg's authority. It was quite otherwise where Dr. Ginsburg prefixed his other formula, "It appears to me" = "I think" it should be so-and-so. These conjectural variations have in the following pages been given (where given at all) in foot-notes, with the corresponding formula "Gt." = "Dr. Ginsburg thinks" the reading should be as follows, in the quoted words then cited. They are the conjectures of an expert, often of great value, and always worthy of respectful consideration, but not advanced into the text of this Bible, save in a very few exceptional cases distinctly notified in the margin. These isolated instances are limited to places in which it was felt that the internal evidence fully made up for any lack of external attestation.

2. The appended Various Readings.

A. Whence come these Various Readings? They are (i.) variations discovered in existing standard copies (Codices) or in early printed editions; (ii.) variations recorded in the Massorah itself as having formerly existed in documents now lost; (iii.) variations preserved in the Talmud or in the commentaries of ancient Jewish scholars; (iv.) variations proved by Ancient Versions, in cases where the changes cannot reasonably be attributed to freedom of translation, but assure us that the translators must have had before them a Hebrew Text materially differing from that which have been handed down to the present day.

B. What are the leading Characteristics of these Various Readings? (i.) Many of them are exceedingly minute: either resolving themselves into variations of spelling and accentuation, such as to make no difference in translation, and therefor passed by in silence in this Bible; or else making very little difference in English—if being of no appreciable consequence whether Israel fell into the "hand" or "hands of their enemies. Still, the collating of the smallest variations has some value as an education, showing how such changes came into existence, and what pains have been taken by copyists and textual critics to note them and guard against their multiplication. (ii.) At the same time, literal minuteness of variation is a very uncertain criterion of importance. Truth is not measurable by bulk, but by weight. The change of a single letter in one case may show nothing but a peculiar spelling of the same word, whereas in the very next instance it may indicate a totally different word.

and make all the difference in the world to the sense. To mistake lo for lo' may bring in a negative and turn the sentence completely round. To write 'ahar for 'ahad (showing, in the Hebrew, a minuter difference than this) may turn "one" into "after" or "another." (iii.) Many variations are due to the most simple and obvious causes mere mistakes of eye or ear, or the writing as one word what was meant for two, and vice versi. (iv.) More serious is the divergence of exemplars; the standard copies of one district having in course of time or under different editorship come to depart from the favourite standards of another region; the old standard becoming worn out or lost, and a new one having to be procured from a distance, bringing its own divergences with it, and propagating them on new soil. (v.) Still more serious is prejudice leading to the deliberate avoiding of certain exemplars, as favouring, say, the detested Samaritan or Septuagint recension. (vi.) Most serious of all is the deliberate intention to change the old reading for one more acceptable—never, perhaps, with wilful corruptness; on the contrary, with pious intentions and for greater edification; yet still displaying a freedom of editing which to us seems quite indefensible.

C. How may Dr. Ginsburg's Various Readings be Classified? (i.) Write, but read; or the official variations technically known as the Kethivs and the Keris. "The margin of the [Hebrew] Bible exhibits a number of various readings of an early date, called K'ri (read), because in the view of the Jewish critics they are to be preferred to what stands in the text, and to be read instead of what is there written, hence called Kethiv (written)." So great a reverence for the ancient literal text, as it was handed down by tradition, was preserved among the Jews, that the Grammarians who made the new additions to the text left the written text still unchanged, even in cases where they believed it necessary to follow a different reading and interpretation."b Probably the general understanding amongst English students of Hebrew is that the Keris are invariably to be preferred to the Kethivs. Dr. Ginsburg, however, does not endorse that view, for he says: "It is now admitted by the best textual critics that in many instances the reading exhibited in the text (K'thiv) is preferable to the marginal variant  $(K^{\epsilon}ri)$ , in smuch as it sometimes preserves the archaic orthography The Kethiv or textual reading, moreover, is and sometimes gives the original reading. in many instances not only supported by MSS. and early editions, but by the ancient Versions."c There are two features in Dr. Ginsburg's exhibit of these various readings which cannot fail to give lively satisfaction to the student. The first he states thus: -"I have in most cases given the MSS., the early editions, and the ancient Versions which support the Kethiv and those which exhibit the Keri."d The second is the claim thus expressed: "I have been able to give a larger number of Keris and Kethivs than those which are printed in any other edition of the Hebrew Bible." On the strength of this last fact, as well as on the score of convenience, the Keris cited in The EMPHASISED BIBLE are given as resting on Ginsburg's authority, without forgetting that many of them are to be found in other Hebrew texts. (ii.) A special class of various readings called Sevirin. These constitute a body of readings "of equal importance to the class of variants comprised in the official K'ri, though it has hardly been noticed by modern critics. Indeed in some respects it is more important than the alternative readings which have hitherto been so scrupulously given in the margin of our Bibles under the name of K'ri by modern editors, who have either entirely banished the Sevir from the margin or have on extremely rare occasions condescended to notice one of the numerous readings introduced by the name Sevir." As in the case of the Kris, Ginsburg mostly states by what authorities the Sevirin are confirmed A reading of this class will be found given in the notes of this Bible thus: "A sp. vr. (sevir)," followed by a translation of the reading, with the addition of any confirming authority. (iii.) Variants cited in the Massorah itself and underlined by Dr. Ginsburg. When possible these have been given in italics. For instance, "(Sam., Sep., Vul.)" indicates that Dr. Ginsburg has found the Septuagintal reading in the Massoretic note of a Hebrew codex or edition. (iv.) Variations discovered by collation of existing MSS., early printed editions, and Ancient Versions, and recorded without editorial opinion. These must be left to speak for themselves. They are here passed on from the textual editor. (v.) Conjectural emendations. As before suggested, these should be received with the deference due to an expert, whose opinion takes into account not only internal evidence, but probably a shrewd suspicion as to the way in which an error may have crept in. Gt. = "Ginsburg thinks" is the sign distinguishing this class of reading in The EMPHASISED BIBLE. (vi.) Confirmed Emendations. These have already been considered, and reasons have been given for incorporating their purport in the text of this Translation. b

D. How should these Various Readings be treated by an ordinary intelligent (i.) They may very well lead to a suspense of judgment. Where a transcriptional variant of this kind comes into view, it is natural to eschew (ii.) Internal evidence may inspire a moral certainty as to which reading is correct. The reader can cautiously rely on this for his own satisfaction; and the controversialist may urge it—with becoming moderation. (iii.) Converging evidence may almost amount to demonstration as to which alternative is to be trusted. For example: Starting with internal evidence in favour of a Various Reading which is actually found in some Hebrew MSS. or printed editions, the reader discovers that that very reading is exhibited in the Samaritan Pentateuch—an independent line of transmission from an exceedingly ancient exemplar. Then he finds it handed down by the Septuagint—another line of transmission from a time almost equally remote. finally, we will suppose, he discovers that the same reading has been preserved by the Vulgate. Internal probability—some existing Hebrew standards, Samaritan Septuagint, Vulgate—what wonder if (some counter evidence notwithstanding) the student yields his mind to a state of working confidence as towards the variant which is sustained by such a superior array of proof?

II.—THE ORIGINAL TEXT OF THE NEW TESTAMENT.

There is the less need to enlarge on this, that information concerning it is by th time widely diffused. Few scholars nowadays would advocate the adoption of the s called Received Text of Erasmus and Stephens, published early in the sixteen century. The discovery and collation of Greek MSS, have since then made succenormous strides, and so many textual critics of supreme ability and industry—successed, Scholtz, Lachmann, Tischendorf, Tregelles, and Westcott and Horthave labouted in this department, that it would appear an act of sheer madness to back to the critical apparatus of our great-grandfathers. Suffice it then to state in brief the general principles followed alike by Tregelles and by Westcott and Hort—with whom alone in the Christian Scriptures this work stands in immediate relation—and then to explain in a very few words why, for the present (the third) edition of the New Testament portion of THE EMPHASISED BIBLE, the text of Tregelles was superseded by that of Westcott and Hort.

The fundamental principle common to the Greek texts of Tregelles and of Westcott and Hort is that in the construction of them, ancient authorities have been resolutely preferred, and the text in both cases has been determined rather by the weight than by the mere number of manuscripts. Ancient readings have been preferred in constructing the Greek texts of both these editions. It would perhaps be correct to say that Westcott and Hort gave more attention than did Tregelles to the lineage of manuscripts, and submitted to a more searching consideration the question how far divergent readings had sprung from common sources, so as to get behind the divergences to an earlier and more ancestral text. In particular their treatment of the two most ancient MSS., the Vatican and the Sinai, both as to their similarities and their differences, impresses the inquirer's mind with a sense of the scientific force with which inductive reasoning is carried; and how, under the converging light thrown backward by these great exemplars, in the hands of these editors, the student can almost see for himself what the Apostolic text must have been.

This allusion to the two greatest Greek Manuscripts of the New Testament opens the way for an explicit statement of the reason which led to the adoption of the later text of Westcott and Hort in preference to the earlier one of Tregelles, which had been employed for the present Translator's first and second editions of the New Testament. It was simply and solely because the later text was the later, that the change, was made; for the lapse of time between them, though not great, enabled Drs. Westcott and Hort to do what had not been vouchsafed to their predecessor—viz., to keep the Sinai MS. steadily before them in the construction of their text of the Four Gospels. It was felt to be presumptuous to conjecture how far the readings of the Sinai Codex would have confirmed or modified Tregelles' previously formed conclusions; and, at the same time, very undesirable for the Translator to assume the functions of textual critic, functions imperatively demanding the practical skill of the expert, to which he could lay no claim. Better far to place himself under the guidance of such consummate masters of textual criticism as Drs. Westcott and Hort, judging, as they had done, so very nearly in the spirit and after the principles of Dr. Tregelles, on the fuller evidence then spread before them. Even in the Four Gospels the differences between the two texts are comparatively slight; while, in the later Books of the New Testament, it becomes a matter of sustained admiration to note how very generally the conclusions of the earlier editor (having the Sinai MS. before him at that stage of his work) are confirmed by his successors, when judging from substantially the same array of evidence.

CHAPTER IV.

THE INCOMMUNICABLE NAME.

As it might appear premature, at the outset of this chapter, to spell out that Divine Name which some regard as not only incommunicable but unpronounceable, it will be considerate to begin the present investigations by the aid of circumlocution and abbreviation, especially as no inconvenience will be occasioned thereby. The Tetragrammaton, or name of four letters (in allusion to the four letters Y H W H), is a technical term frequently employed by scholars, and will here, for a little, serve a useful purpose. Besides employing this term, we can reverently speak of "The Name," or can set down the first letter only, "Y," in the same way as critics are wont to use the Hebrew letter yod as the initial of the Divine Name intended. This understood, we can intelligibly proceed. Our very first sub-division will indicate the serious turn which this inquiry necessarily takes.

I .- THE NAME SUPPRESSED.

A. The Fact.

It is willingly admitted that the suppression has not been absolute; at least so far as Hebrew and English are concerned. The Name, in its four essential letters, was reverently transcribed by the Hebrew copyist, and therefore was necessarily placed before the eye of the Hebrew reader. The latter, however, was instructed not to pronounce it, but to utter instead a less sacred name—Adding or Eldhim. In this way The Name was not suffered to reach the ear of the listener. To that degree it was suppressed. The Septuagint, or ancient Greek version, made the concealment complete by regularly substituting Kurios; as the Vulgate, in like manner, employed Dominus; both Kurios and Dominus having at the same time their own proper service to render as correctly answering to the Hebrew Adonay, confessedly meaning "Lord." The English versions do nearly the same thing, in rendering The Name as LORD, and occasionally Gon; these terms also having their own rightful office to fill as fitly representing the Hebrew titles Adonay and Elohim and El. So that the Tetragrammaton is nearly hidden in our public English versions. Not quite. To those who can note the difference bet ween "LORD" and "Lord" and between "GoD" and "God," and can remember that the former (printed with SMALL CAPITALS) do while the latter do not stand for The Name-to such an intimation of the difference is conveyed. But although the READER who look: carefully at his book can see the distinction, yet the mere HEARER remains completely in the dark respecting it, inasmuch as there is no difference whatever in sound between "LORD" and "Lord" or "GoD" and "God." It hence follows that in nearly all the occurrences of The Name (some 7,000 throughout the Old Testament) the especia Name of God is absolutely withheld from all who simply hear the Bible read. "Nearlall," for there are about half a dozen instances in the A.V., and a few more in the RV in which this concealment does not take place. In other words there are these very fer places in which the Tetragrammaton appears as "Jehovah"; and although it may b d. "What are they among so many?" still their presence has an argumentative value Digitized by GOOSIC

If it was wrong to unveil the Tetrugrammaton at all, then why do it in these instances? If, on the other hand, it was right to let it be seen in these cases, then why not in all? With the exceptions explained, however, it remains true to say, that in our public versions the one especial Name of God is suppressed, wholly concealed from the listening ear, almost as completely hidden from the hastening or uncritical eye.

B. The Immediate Consequences of the Suppression.

These are-

- (i.) Partly literary, though more than that. Reference is here made to the confusion into which many things are thrown through this abnormal state of things. "Baal" is "lord" and so is "Adon" (Adonay)—that is unfortunate; but why add to the embarrassment by rendering Y H W H (and Y H, the shorter form) also as "Lord"? Worst of all is the confusion when "Y" and Adonay occur together, as they do many times in the Book of Ezekiel. Inasmuch as to say, "Lord Lord" for "Adonay Y," was too grotesque and misleading (positively false to the ear), the new device had to be resorted to of rendering this combination by "Lord God"—"God" in this case, and not "Lord" at all, standing for The Name. Even Y H (the shorter form) and Y H W H (the full form) of the Tetragrammaton, coming together, caused a dilemma; though in these instances, the acuteness of the trouble compelled the adoption of a partial remedy, and "the Lord Jehovah" is the result. "Confusion," then, is a term not a whit too strong to apply to these varying devices. No wonder that even intelligent and educated people are continually forgetting what they have heard or read concerning so involved a matter.
  - (ii.) Partly practical. Is it too much to assume that The Name has about it something very grand or very gracious, or at least something very mysterious? Whichever conclusion is received, the question arises whether there is not something essentially presumptuous, however little intended, in substituting for it one of the commonest of titles, seeing that there are on earth "lords many," and the master of the humblest slave is his "lord"? There is surely nothing very grand or gracious or mysterious in that! It is therefore the most natural presumption that the suppression of The Name has entailed on the reader, and especially upon the hearer, irreparable loss.

C. The Reason for the Suppression.

The motive was good—let that be assumed. It was to safeguard the Divine Majesty in the minds of men. It was to prevent the inconsiderate mention of Him before whom seraphs veil their faces—though even so it is very difficult to see how one name should occasion irreverence and another not. Why not, then, leave Him altogether unnamed? Why not fear to allude to Him by any title that could definitely refer to Him? The passages commonly cited as furnishing good reason for the suppression surely cannot mean what is thus attributed to them, since there is a wide distinction between not taking His Name in vain, and not taking His Name into our lips at all, even for prayer or praise. In a word, the motive is respected; but the reverence is regarded as misapplied—the reason given is seen to be invalid.

II.-THE NAME RESTORED.

A. Why?

- 1. Because its suppression was a mistake. So grave a mistake cannot be corrected too soon. An unwarrantable liberty has been taken; the path of humility is to retrace our steps.
- 2. Because thereby serious evil may be averted. Men are saying to-day that "Y" was a mere tribal name, and are suggesting that "Y" Himself was but a local deity. As against this, only let The Name be boldly and uniformly printed, and the humblest Sunday School teacher will be able to show the groundlessness of the assertion.
- 3. Because solid advantage may be counted upon as certain to follow the restoration. Even if the meaning of The Name should not disclose itself, the word itself would gradually gather about it the fitting associations—and that would be a gain; and godly readers would be put on quest—and that would be a further gain; and if the true significance of the Tetragrammaton should be brought to light, there would be a trained constituency to whom appeal could be made—and that would be a yet greater gain.

A PLAUSIBLE OBJECTION ANSWERED.—A plausible argument in favour of leaving The Name veiled, as it is now, may be based upon its concealment by the Septuagint. The plea takes the following form. The Septuagint conceals the Tetragrammaton under the common title Kurios, "Lord." Jesus used that version as it stood, notably in citing Psalm cx. 1. Therefore what was good enough for Him should be good enough for us. Answer First: Jesus Christ was not a scribe or literary critic: His mission was much higher. Answer Second: Jesus had to plead his Messiahship at the bar of the Scriptures as then current; and any criticism by Him of the nation's Sacred Documents might have placed a needless obstacle in the people's path. We thus conclude that the objection may and should be set aside as inconclusive, and so fall back on the reasons given why the Divine Name should be suffered uniformly to appear.

B. In What Form?

1. Why not in the form "Jehovah"? Is that not euphonious? It is, without question. Is it not widely used? It is, and may still be freely employed to assist through a period of transition. But is it not hallowed and endeared by many a beautiful hymn and many a pious memory? Without doubt; and therefore it is with reluctance that it is here declined. But why is it not accepted? There it is—familiar, acceptable, ready for adoption. The reason is, that it is too heavily burdened with merited critical condemnation—as modern, as a compromise, as a "mongrel" word, "hybrid," "fantastic," "monstrous." The facts have only to be known to justify this verdict, and to vindicate the propriety of not employing it in a new and independent translation. What are the facts? And first as to age. "The pronunciation Jehovah was unknown until 1520, when it was introduced by Galatinus; but was contested by Le Mercier, J. Drusius, and L. Capellus, as against grammatical and historical propriety." Next, as to formation. "Erroneously written and pronounced Jehovah which is merely a combination of the sacred Tetragrammaton and the vowels in the Hebrew word for Lord, substituted by the Jews for Jhvh, because they shrank from pronouncing The Name, owing to an old misconception of the two passages, Ex. xx. 7 and Lev. xxiv. 16. . . . To give the name Jhvh the vowels of the word for Lord (Heb. Adonai) and pronounce it Jehovah, is about as hybrid a combination as it would be to spell the name Germany with the vowels in the name Portugal—viz., Gormuna. The monstrous combination Jehovah is not older than about 1520 a.d." From this we may gather that the Jewish scribes are not responsible for the "hybrid" combination. They intentionally wrote alien vowels—not for combination with the sacred consonants, but for the purpose of cautioning the Jewish reader to enunciate a totally different word, viz., some other familiar name of the Most High.

- 2. The form "Yahweh" is here adopted as practically the best. The only competing form would be "Yehweh," differing, it will be observed, only in a single vowel—"e" for "a" in the first syllable. But even this difference vanishes on examination. It is true that "Yehweh" is intended to suggest the derivation of the noun from the simple (Kal) conjugation of the verb, and that some scholars take "Yahweh" as indicating a formation from the causative (Hiphil) conjugation; but, since other scholars (presumably because of the aspirate h) regard "Yahweh" itself as consistent with a Kal formation, thereby leaving us free to accept the spelling "Yahweh" without prejudging the question of the precise line of derivation from the admitted root hdydh, we may very well accept the spelling now widely preferred by scholars, and write the name—"Yahweh."
- 3. The exact pronunciation claims a word to itself. "The true pronunciation seems to have been Yahwe (or Iahway, the initial I = y, as in Iachimo). The final  $\epsilon$  should be pronounced like the French ê, or the English e in there, and the first h sounded as an aspirate. The accent should be on the final syllable." This statement gives rise to a question of rhythm, which is sure sooner or later to make itself felt. We are so used to the three syllables of the form "Jehovah," with its delightfully varied vowels, that we shrink back dismayed in anticipation of the disturbing effect on our Psalmody of the substitution of Yahweh' for Jehovah. Our apprehensions may be dismissed. The readjustment is mainly the business of our hymn-writers; and if it should prove literally true, that "new mercies" shall "new songs" demand, which shall enshrine a new accent in a new rhythm, then we may rest assured that sanctified genius and enthusiasm will prove equal to the occasion. The Translator of THE EMPHASISED BIBLE has in his own humble province recast a good many lines in his rendering of "The Psalms" in consideration of the modified rhythm now required. As for the rest, it may with confidence be counted upon that increasing familiarisation and the silent growth of hallowed memories will ultimately render thrice welcome what was at first so strange.

III.—THE NAME EXPLAINED.

1. It certainly appears to be explained in Exodus iii. 14. It does not follow that the statements there made are rightly understood; nor can any compelling reason be assigned why a translator should be ready to expound everything which he has to represent in English. Nevertheless, the correct rendering of the above passage is so connected with the meaning of The Name, that, were it not for special reasons, the attempt now to be made might not have provoked the charge of presumption. As it is, the reproach of rashness cannot easily be escaped.

- 2. Confessedly it is very discouraging to find the editor of the Polychrome Bible declaring bluntly: "The meaning of JHVH is uncertain." That it is uncertain would appear to be the natural conclusion deducible from the varieties of meaning summed up in the Oxford Gesenius under the name "Yahweh."
- 3. As against this discouragement it may be considered whether the Old Testament does not strongly embolden us to hope that greater success and greater unanimity may yet be attained. Is not a hidden name almost a contradiction in terms? Does not "name" in the Bible very widely imply revelation? Men's names are throughout the Scriptures fraught with significance, enshrining historical incidents, biographical reminiscences, and so forth; and why should the Name of the Ever-Blessed be an exception to this rule? Does not the Almighty Himself employ this Name of His as though it had in it some self-evident force and fitness to reveal His nature and unfold His ways? His Name is continually adduced by Himself as His reason for what He does and what He commands: "For I am Yahweh." Israel and the nations are placed under discipline, says the Divine Speaker, "that they may know that I am Yahweh." Is it not probable, then, that His Name was intended to be understood? Thus encouraged, we proceed; only requesting that the exposition which follows may be regarded as—
  - 4. An Individual Opinion respectfully submitted.
    - (a) The conclusion formed may be thus expressed: The Name itself signifies, "He who becometh"; and the formulac by which that significance is sustained and which is rendered in the Authorised Version "I am that I am," expresses the sense, "I will become whatsoever I please"; or, as more exactly indicating the idiom involved, "I will become whatsoever I may become." We amplify the "may," and more freely suggest the natural latitude which the idiom claims, by saying: "Whatsoever I will, may, or can become."
    - (b) The reasons for this conclusion are two: First, that it gives the simplest, most obvious, most direct force to the derivation of The Name itself, as generally admitted. Yahuch is almost always regarded as the third person, singular, masculine, imperfect tense, from the root hawah, an old form of the root hayah. The one meaning of hawah is "become." So that the force of yahuch thus derived, as a verb, would be "He will become"; or, as expressive of use and wont, "He becometh." Then, passing into use as a noun, it is—
      "He who becometh," "The Becoming One." That is precisely how any other Hebrew name would be formed and would yield up its inherent significance. Thus viewed, its human-like simplicity would be its great recommendation. If the Eternal would speak to man so as to be understood, we seem compelled to expect that He will speak after the manner of men. And if after the manner of men He pleases to take and bear a Name, it would seem the very perfection of condescension that His Name should be formed after the manner of men's names. SECOND, the sense of the formula given above is very simply The formula itself is 'chych 'asher 'chych, in and idiomatically obtained. which it should be noted that the verb 'chych, "I will become," runs forward into a reduplication of itself; for it is that which constitutes the idiom. a mere repetition, the assertion would be unmeaning. To escape this we must resort to mystery or imagination or-idiom. How if the mystery itself is imaginary; and where is imagination to end? how is it to be reduced to any trusty significance? Would it not be more humble and childlike to be prepared to find that the All-wise and All-loving is simply addressing us in an idiom of our own? We have many such idiomatic formulæ even in English: "I will speak what I will speak," and the like. Only, after the manner of our tongue, we avoid the semblance of meaningless repetition by emphasising the auxiliary verb: "I will speak what I will speak"—my mind is made up; or "I will speak what I can, may, must speak"—according to need and opportunity. Now, in Hebrew, the future (imperfect, or incipient) tense (the one used here) is freely employed to express mood; in other words, to convey those nicer shades of thought which in English are conveyed by such helping words as "will," "can," "may," "could," "would," "might," "must." The only question is whether we can assure ourselves that we are not acting fancifully in resorting to that principle of interpretation in the important statement before us. Have we any examples of such an idiom finding place where, as in Exo. iii. 14, a word is folded back upon itself? As a matter of fact, we have in the Old Testament at least three examples in which the recognition of this simple idiom brings out an excellent sense, and in which the Authorised Version leads the way (followed by the Revised) in so expressing the sense.

EXAMPLE I.—1 Samuel xxiii. 13, A.V. and R.V.: "And they went whithersoever they could go." Heb.: "wayyithhall*ku ba'asher yithhallaku." Freely: "And they wandered wheresoever they could, would, or might wander." The repetition is there, and the idiom, and the clear sense of it.

Example II.—2 Samuel xv. 20, A.V. and R.V.: "Seeing I go whither I may." Heb.: "wa'ani hôlêk 'al 'asher 'ani hôlêk." Lit.: "And (or seeing) I am going whither I am going." Again the repetition, again the idiom, again the fit sense thereby conveyed.

Example III.—2 Kings viii. 1, A.V. and R.V.: "And sojourn wheresoever thou canst sojourn." Heb.: "weguri ba'asher thaguri." In the first passage the auxiliary is "could"; in the second, "may"; in the third, "canst." Idiom is recognised in all, and through it the meaning is seized and well expressed.

We thus gain all needful countenance for the idiomatic explication of Exo. iii. 14:

I will become whatsoever I will-may-can-become.

The only difficulty is to suggest the suitable latitude, without multiplying words and without violating any known characteristic of the Speaker. Perhaps the best word on the suitable latitude, without multiplying words and this momentous occasion is: "what I please," since we know that the Divine resources are infinite, and that God will please to become to His people only what is wisest and best. Thus viewed, the formula becomes a most gracious promise; the Divine capacity of adaptation to any circumstances, any difficulties, any necessities that may arise, becomes a veritable bank of faith to such as love God and keep His commandments. The formula is a promise, the promise is concentrated in a Name. The Name is at once a revelation, a memorial, a pledge. To this Name, God will ever be faithful; of it He will never be ashamed; by it He may ever be truthfully proclaimed and gratefully praised.

||This|| is my name to times age-abiding, And ||this|| my memorial to generation after generation.

Praise ye Yah,
For good' is Yahweh,
Sing praises to his name,
For it is sweet.<sup>b</sup>

Praise Yahweh, all ye nations,
Laud him, all ye tribes of men;
For his lovingkindness hath prevailed over us.
And the faithfulness of Yahweh is to times age-abiding.

Praise ye Yah.

5. Whether the foregoing explanation is ever likely to be generally accepted or not, one thing appears to be more and more certain the more the evidence is considered, that the name Yahweh has some inherent meaning of great force and graciousness; at the very least a significance of sufficient peculiarity to make it more fitting to be employed on some occasions than on others. This conclusion, which on its own merits will scarcely be denied, invests the matter with a literary interest which it will be fair not to forget. It may deliver the most open-minded critic from a too ready resort to documentary hypotheses to account for the presence or absence of The Name in or from some verses, sections, and books. The use of previous documents may go some way to account for the appearance and disappearance of that Name; but internal fitness to be avoided or employed may be an equally feasible explanation. Leaving aside the interesting question whether the sudden appearance of the name Yahweh in combination with Elohim in Genesis ii. may not owe its presence to the tenour of the new section which commences at verse 4, in view of Man's coming upon the scene, there are some examples of the presence and absence of The Name to which any documentary hypothesis would appear to be altogether alien. For instance, is it not indicative of what we may call changed moral atmosphere that the prologue of the Book of Job (chapters i. and ii.) and the epilogue (chapters xxxviii.—xlii.) should be replete with the especially gracious proper name "Y," whereas throughout the whole of the doubting, questioning, arguing portion of the Book The Name should occur only once, chapter xii. 9, and then with uncertain attestation? It appears to be equally indicative of a most delicate sense of fitness, that, whereas The Name is employed on an average nearly once in each of the eight-versed sections of Psalm cxix.—a Psalm pervaded by the atmosphere of sustained communion with Yahweh—the one exception in which a less sacred divine name is used is the single instance in which the Psalmist's mind comes into contact with the colder air of disloyalty to the Gracious Being whom he himself delighted to worship:—

"Depart from me, ye evil-doers,—
That I may observe the commandments of my God." a

It is with a feeling of lively satisfaction that the materials for judgment concerning all such peculiarities of sacred usage are now clearly set forth in the pages of The Emphasised Bible.

The above Table may be put to an interesting special use. It will enable the merely English reader to trace the similarity of certain Hebrew letters, as the well-known cause of errors of transcription. For example, he can perceive how minute is the difference in form between dateth and resh, and so how easily "silenced" might creep in where "uplited" should have stood, or vice versd, in Psalm exxxi. 2 (see note there); and similarly how readily ken should have outed ben in Prov. xi. 19.

N.R.-The vowel & may be pronounced as a in father; and & as e in there.

TABLE III.

SIGNS OF EMPHASIS. (See ante, Introduction, Chapter II.)

The signs used in the Old Testament are the same as those employed in the New-namely, ', |, |, |, |, and < >.

Those most frequently adopted are the two which call for decided stress:-

- (1) || ||, when the English words appear in their usual, uninverted order, though the corresponding words are known to be emphatic in the Hebrew.
- (2) < >, when there is an inversion in the English arrangement as well as in that of the Hebrew.—Sometimes the inverted and emphatically preplaced portion of the sentence is of some length, extending to a line or more. In such cases the angular marks frequently appear in darker type (thus < >), so as to be conspicuous, thereby also setting free the lighter marks to show a short inversion within a longer one (cp. Jer. vii. 5, 6). If it be remembered that a closing angular sign never completes a sentence, but always demands a sequel before the statement is finished, both mind and voice will be materially assisted.
- (3) The two signs (', and | |) are used almost indifferently to denote slight emphasis; the accent being generally preferred for single words, and the single upright lines for the inclusion of more than one word in the effect.

<sup>*.*</sup> Any simplification observable in this method, as compared with that followed in the New Testament, may be fairly set down to the simpler elements and structure of Hebrew composition. The principle throughout is the same.

And light was'. 4 And God saw the light

Or: "At first." The definite article in the rendering, "In the beginning," cannot safely be pressed, inasmuch as the phrase may, as preferred by many expositors ancient and modern, be simply construed with what follows: "In the beginning of God's creating," &c.

Heb.: 'clohim'. "Prob. a plural of quality='God-head' (as our 'Lordship'='Lord'")—Davies' H.L., p. 9.
It should be carefully observed that, although 'clohim is plural in form, yet when, as here, it is construed with a verb in the singular, it is naturally singular in sense; especially since the "plural of quality" or "excellence" abounds in Hebrew in cases where the reference is undeniably to something which must be understood in the deniably to something which must be understood in the deniably to something which must be understood in the singular number.

"Prop. 'to cut' or 'carre': hence, 'form,' 'create'"—
Davies' H.L., p. 103; "shape, create"—O.G.: not necessarily, nor generally, to make out of nothing, cp. verses 21, 27; chap. ii. 3; and Num. xvi. 30. Seeing that, outside this passage, no example in the O.T. can be found wherein a making out of nothing is plainly intended by the Heb. bara', the reader who insists on that meaning here does so on his own responsibility. The gratuitous introduction of difficulties should of course be avoided.

The emphasis on "the earth" in ver. 2 is quite regular. Cp. Intro., Chap. II., Synopsis, A, a). The effect of it here is to single out "the earth" from ver. 1, for special comment.

**Meb.: tobs wd-wobs. Evidently an idiomatic phrase, with a play on the sound ("assonance"). The two words occur together only in Is. xxxiv. 11; Jer. iv. 23; examples which favour the conclusion that here also they describe the result of previous overthrow. Tobs by itself is found in several other texts (Deu. xxxii. 10; Job xii. 24; Ps. cvii. 40; Is. xxiv. 10; xxxiv. 11; etc.).

Heb. "Adm; Sep. "the abyes."

This "but" is not demanded by the particle wow in itself, but springs naturally out of the tenour of the clause it introduces.

clause it introduces.

'The beautiful word "brooding"—an exact rendering of the Heb.—is most suggestive; since it vividly describes the cherishing of incipient life, as a preparation for its outburst. The participal form of such a word clearly denotes a process, more or less lengthened, rather than an instantaneous act. Standing where it does, it crowns the description of the condition of things on which the first creative mandate of the six days took effect.

The readering above given of these two important verses may be paraphrased as follows:—
"In the beginning [of the present order of things]
God created (that is, shaped or formed according to his own divine idea] the heavens [above] and the earth

"Now the earth [emphasised idiomatically for the purpose of singling it out for first remark] had be-that it was |good|,-and God divided' |the light | from the |darkness|; 5 and God called' |the light| ||day||, but <the darkness> called he || night ||. So it was 1 evening—and it was 1 morning one day .m

Let there be an expanse in the midst of the waters, -and let it be a means of dividing between waters and waters."

<sup>7</sup> And God made' the expanse, and it divided between the waters that were under the expanse and the waters that were above' the expanse. And it was' so.º 8And God called' |the expanse| ||heavens||. So it was evening and it was morning a second day.

9 And God said'—

Let the waters under the heavens | be gathered together into one' place, and let the dryground' appear'.

And it was' so.P 10 And God called' | the come waste and wild [probably by previous catastrophe]; and darkness [emphasised as about to be dealt with] was on the face of the roaring deep; but [preparing the mind for a new order of things] the Spirit of God was brooding [with quickening effect] on the face of the waters. And [things being so; such being the state of the earth] God said [and thus the renewing, re-creating divine acts commence]."

1 Or: "became," "came to be." Connected with the opening word "so," the simple verb "was" has the same force. Cp. verses 8, 13, 19, 23, 31.

By a well-attested Heb. idiom = "a first day."

Here grammatical exegesis steps in and claims

Here grammatical exogosis steps in and claims its own. Two ways of explaining this striking "refrain" are conceivable—the one, unnatural and absurd; the other, at once living and luminous. Either absurd; the other, at once living and luminous. Either this six-times-repeated statement is a mere extraneous patch of information, having no organic connection with the creative acts amongst which it is inlaid—which no thoughtful reader can seriously suppose—or else on each occurrence it grows out of what has gone before. This being connected, and the words then being grammatically rendered, the reader is on the high road to a correct decipherment of the days, as God-divided tather than sun-divided. Did the calling forth of "light" constitute the first morning? If it did, then the previous "darkness" and the preparatory "brooding" must surely have constituted the first "evening." Then how long was the first day? If no one knows, then no one can say what was the length of the six days. Essential harmony suggests as a crown to the exegosis: That, as is man the little worker, doing a small work on six short days, so is God the great worker, doing a large work on six long, farreaching days.

  2 And he said

Behold, I pray you, my lords, turn aside, I pray you, into the house of your servant,—and tarry the night, and bathe your feet, so shall ye rise early, and go on your way. And they said

Nay, but <in the broadway> will we tarry the night.

But he became exceeding urgent with them, so they turned aside unto him and entered into his house,—and he made for them a banquet, <unleavened cakes> also did he bake, and they did eat.

4 < Ere yet they lay down> || the men of the city—the men of Sodom || had come round against the house, from youth even unto age,—|all the people from every quarter|.

5 And they called unto Lot and said to him,

Where are the men who have come in unto thee to-night? Bring them forth unto us, and let us know them!

- And Lot went forth unto them, to the entrance;
   but <the door> closed he behind him.

things. <sup>2</sup> So Abraham said unto his servant, elder of his house, ruler of all that he had,—

Place, I pray thee, thy hand under my thigh; that I may put thee on oath, by Yahweh God of the heavens, and God of the earth,—

That thou wilt not take a wife for my son, from among the daughters of the Canaanites, in the midst of whom || I || am dwelling: 4 but < unto my own land and unto my own kindred> wilt go,—

So shalt thou take a wife for my son—|for Isaac|.

And the servant said unto him,

Peradventure' the woman may not be willing to follow me into this land,—

May I ||take back|| thy son, into the land from whence thou carnest?

6 And Abraham said unto him,-

Beware, that thou do not take back my son thither!

- Yahweh, God of the heavens, and God of the earth, who took me out of the house of my father, and out of the land of my kindred, and who spake to me, and who sware to me, saying, <To thy seed> will I give this land> ||he|| will send his messenger, before thee, so shalt thou take a wife for my son, from thence.

- So the servant placed his hand, under the thigh of Abraham, his lord,—and sware to him, over this thing.
- Then took the servant ten camels, from among the camels of his lord, and went his way,—|all the goods of his master|| being in his hand,—so he mounted and went his way unto Mesopotamia, unto the city of Nahor.

  11 And he made the camels kneel down outside the city against the well of water,—at the time of evening, at the time of the coming forth of the women that drew water.

  12 Then he said

O Yahweh, God of my lord Abraham!

- I pray thee cause it to fall out before me today,—that thou deal in lovingkindness, with my lord Abraham.

Now ||the young woman|| was of very pleasing appearance, a virgin whom ||no man|| had known,—and she went down unto the fountain, and filled her pitcher and came up. 17 And the servant ran to meet her,—and said,

I pray thee let me drink a little water out of thy pitcher.

18 And she said

Drink my lord,-

And she hastened and lowered her pitcher on her hand and let him drink.

19 And <when she had done giving him drink>,—she said.

<For thy camels also > will I draw, until they have done drinking.

20 So she hastened and emptied her pitcher into the drinking-trough, and ran again unto the well to draw,—and she drew for all his camels.

Now | the man | was eagerly watching her, keeping silence, to see—whether Yahweh had prospered his way, or not.

And it came to pass < when the camels had done drinking> that the man took a rings of gold, half a shekel its weight,—and two bracelets for her hands, ten of gold their weight; 23 and said

Whose daughter art | thou |? I pray thee, tell me. Is' there, in the house of thy father, a place for us to tarry the night?

24 And she said unto him,

<Daughter of Bethuel> am ||I||—[Bethuel] son of Milcah, whom she bare to Nahor.

25 And she said unto him,

<Both straw and fodder in plenty > have we, also a place, to tarry the night.

26 Then the man bowed his head, and bent himself down unto Yahweh; 27 and said.

Blessed' be Yahweh God of my lord Abraham, who hath not withdrawn his loving-kindness and his faithfulness from my lord.—

- <I—being in the way>, Yahweh led' me unto the house of the brethren of my lord!
- And the young woman ran, and told the household of her mother,—according to these words.

  Now || Rebekah|| had a brother, || whose name| was Laban,—so Laban ran unto the man outside unto the fountain.

- ||Then|| shalt thou clear thyself from mine oath, for thou shalt go in unto my kindred, —and <if they will not grant her unto thee> then shalt thou be clear from mine oath.
- So I came in to-day unto the fountain,—and I said
  - O Yahweh God of my lord Abraham! <if I pray thee thou art' prospering my way whereon |I| am going > 43 here' am I' stationed by the fountain of water, -so then it shall come to pass that <the maiden that is coming forth to draw,c and I shall say unto her Let me drink, I pray thee, a little water out of thy pitcher; 44 and she shall say unto me Both | thou | drink, and <for thy camels also > will I draw > the same shall be the woman whom Yahweh hath appointed for the son of my lord.

Ours is the water !

So he called the name of the well, Esek, be-because they had stirred up a quarrel with him.

And they digged another well, and they disputed over that also,—so he called the name thereof Sitnah.

Surely' <my bone and my flesh> art thou'.

So he abode with him a month of days.

15 Then said Laban to Jacob,

Is it because <my brother> thou art', that thou shouldst serve me for naught?

Come, tell me! What shall be thy wages?
Now "Laban" had two daughters,—the name of the elder' "Leah", and the name of the younger' "Rachel".

21 Then said Jacob unto Laban:

Come give me my wife, for fulfilled' are my days, that I may go in unto her.

PSO Laban gathered together all the men of the place, and made a banquet. 23 And it came to pass, <in the evening> that he took Leah his daughter, and brought her in unto him,—and he went in unto her. 24 And Laban gave her Zilpah, his handmaid, unto Leah his daughter, as handmaid. 25 And it came to pass <in the morning>, that lo! !!it was Leah!,—and he said unto Laban.

What' is this' thou hast done to me?b

Was it not < for Rachel > I served with thee? Wherefore, then, hast thou deceived me?

And Laban said,

It must not be done so in our place,—to give the later-born before the firstborn.

Fulfil the week of this one,—then must we give thee ||the other one also||, for the service wherewith thou shalt serve with me |yet seven years more|.

And Jacob did so, and fulfilled the week of this one,—and he gave him Rachel his daughter—to him to wife. And Laban gave to Rachel his daughter Bilhah his handmaid,—to be here as a handmaid. his father,—so then Joseph brought in the talk about them—something bad, unto their father.

Now ||Israel|| loved Joseph more than any of his sons, because he was to him ||the son of his old age||,—and he had made him a long tunic.

4 So his brethren saw that their father loved #him | more than any of his brethren, and they hated him,—and could not bid him prosper. b

3 And Joseph dreamed a dream, and told it to his brethren,—and they went on yet more' to hate him. 6 And he said unto them,—

Hear ye, I pray you, this dream which I have dreamed:

7 Lo! then | | we || were binding sheaves in the midst of the field, when lo! my sheaf rose up' yea and took its stand,—and lo! round about' came your sheaves, and bowed themselves down to my sheaf.

<sup>6</sup> And his brethren said to him,

Shalt thou ||reign|| over us, shalt thou || || have dominion|| over us?

So they went on yet more' to hate him', because of his dreams, and because of his words.

9 Then dreamed he |yet another| dream, and related it to his brethren,—and said:—

Lo! I have dreamed a dream | yet again |,

Lo! then, ||the sun and the moon, and eleven stars|| were bowing themselves down to me.

<sup>10</sup> So he related it unto his father, and unto his brethren.—and his father rebuked him, and said unto him.

What is this dream which thou hast dreamed?
Shall we ||indeed come in|| <I, and thy mother and thy brethren> to bow ourselves down to thee, to the earth?

11 Then were his brethren jealous of him,—but ||his father|| marked the word.

Now his brethren went their way,—to feed their father's flock in Shechem. <sup>18</sup> So Israel said unto Joseph—

Are not ||thy brethren|| feeding the flock in Shechem? Come on! and let me send thee unto them.

And he said to him-

Behold me !

14 So he said to him-

Go, I pray thee, look after the welfare of thy brethren, and the welfare of the flock, and bring me back, word.

And he sent him from the vale of Hebron, and he came in towards Shechem.

1b And a man found him, and lo! he was wandering about in the field,—so the man asked him saying—

What seekest thou?

17 And the man said,

They have broken up from hence, for I heard them saying—

Let us go our way towards Dothan.

So Joseph went after his brethren, and found them in Dothan.

18 And they saw him afar off,—and <ere yet he drew near unto them> they conspired against him to put him to death.

19 And they said each man unto his brother.—

Lo! ||that master* of dreams yonder|| coming in! 20 ||Now|| therefore come! let us slay him and cast him into one of the pits, and we will say—

||A cruel beast|| hath devoured him,-

And let us see what will become of his dreams.

Let us not smite him, so as to take his life !b

22 And Reuben said unto them-

Do not shed blood! Cast him into this pit, which is in the wilderness, but put not forth ||a hand|| against him!

that he might rescue him out of their hand, to restore him unto his father.

So it came to pass < when Joseph had come in unto his brethren> that they stript Joseph of his tunic, |the long tunic which was upon him|, 24 and took him, and cast him into the pit,—but ||the pit|| was empty, there was in it |no water|. 25 And <when they had sat down to eat bread> they lifted up their eyes, and looked, and lo! ||a caravan of Ishmaelites|| coming in from Gilead,—and ||their camels|| were bearing tragacanth gum, and balsam and cistus-gum, they were going their way, to take them down to Egypt. 26 So Judah said unto his brethren,—

What profit that we slay our brother, and conceal his blood?

Come and let us sell him to the Ishmaelites;
but let not ||our own hand|| be upon him,
for ||our own brother, our own flesh|| is he
And his brethren hearkened. 28 And there passed by certain Midianites, travelling merchants, so they drew forth and uplifted
Joseph out of the pit, and sold Joseph to the Ishmaelites, for twenty pieces of silver,—and they brought Joseph into Egypt.

And Reuben returned unto the pit, and lo! Joseph was not' in the pit,—so he rent his clothes; 30 and returned unto his brethren and said,—

And Onan knew that the seed would not be his,—and so <although he did go in unto his brother's wife> yet made he waste upon the ground, so as not to give seed to his brother.

For he knew not that she' was ||his daughter-in-law.|| And she said,

So he gave them to her and came in unto her and she conceived by him.

19 Then she arose and went her way, and put off her veil from her,—and put on the garments of her widowhood.

29 And Judah sent the kid of the goats, by the hand of his friend the Adullamite, to receive the pledge, at the hand of the woman,—but he found her not.

 And the chief of the butlers related' his dream to Joseph,—and said to him,

<In my dream> then lo!, a vine, before me; "and <in the vine> three shoots,—and the same, at sprouting time, had shot up her blossom, and her clusters had brought to perfection ripe grapes.

Now < the cup of Pharaoh! being in my hand > I took the ripe grapes, and pressed them out into the cup of Pharaoh, and set the cup upon Pharaoh's palm.

And Joseph said to him,

This is the interpretation thereof,—
The three shoots are three days:

7 So

Pharaoh awoke, and lo! it was a dream.

8 And it came to pass <in the morning> that his spirit became restless, so he sent and called for all the sacred scribes of Egypt, and all her wise men,—and Pharaoh related to them his dreams, but there was no one that could interpret them, to Pharaoh.

9 Then spake the chief of the butlers with Pharaoh, saying.—

<A dream> have I dreamed, but none' can ||interpret|| it,—but ||I|| have heard say concerning thee, that <on hearing a dream> thou canst interpret it.

<sup>16</sup> And Joseph answered Pharaoh, saying,

|| Not to me | doth it pertain!

17 Then spake Pharaoh unto Joseph, -

<In my dream> ||there was I|| standing on the lip of the river;

When lo! <out of the river > were coming up seven heifers, fat in flesh, and comely in form,—and they fed among the rushes.

- And lo! ||seven other heifers|| coming up after them, poor, and very uncomely in form, and lean in flesh,—I had never seen such, in all the land of Egypt, |for uncomeliness|.
- Then did the lean and uncomely heifers | eat up | the first seven fat heifers; and they passed into their stomach yet could it not be known that they had passed into them, | their appearance | being uncomely as at the beginning.

  So I awoke.

Then looked I in my dream,—

Then did the lean ears |swallow up| the seven good ears.

So I told [these things] unto the sacred scribes, but there was none' that could explain [them] to me.

Then said Joseph unto Pharaoh,

And <for that there was a repeating of the dream unto Pharaoh |twice|> it is because the thing ||is established|| from God, and God is hastening to do it.

Now | therefore let Pharaoh look out a man discreet and wise,—and set him over the land of Egypt.

3 Let Pharaoh do this, that he may appoint overseers over the land,—so shall he take up a fifth of the land of Egypt, during the seven years of plenty.

And let them gather up all the food of these seven good years that are coming in, and let them heap up corn under the hand of Pharaoh, as food in cities, so shall they keep it.

So shall the food become a store for the land, for the seven years of famine, which shall come about in the land of Egypt,— and the land shall not be cut off in the famine.

37 And the thing was good in the eyes of Pharaoh,—and in the eyes of all his servants;

38 and Pharaoh said unto his servants,-

Can we find such a one, ||a man in whom is the Spirit of God ||?

39 So Pharaoh said unto Joseph,

- < After God hath made known unto thee all this> there is no one discreet and wise like thee.
- #IThou || shalt be over my house, and <on

<sup>3</sup> So Joseph's ten brethren went down,—to buy corn from the Egyptians; <sup>3</sup> but <Benjamin, Joseph's own brother> Jacob sent not with his brethren,—for he said, Lest there befall him any mischief.

Thus came in the sons of Israel, to buy comin the midst of them that came,—for the famine was in the land of Canaan.

Now || Joseph —he|| it was, that was in power over the land, ||he|| it was, that was selling corn to all the people of the land,—so Joseph's brethren came in, and bowed themselves down to him with their faces to the earth.

And Joseph beheld his brethren, and recognised them,—and made himself a stranger unto them, and spake with them harsh things, and said unto them—Whence have ye come in?

And they said,

From the land of Canaan, to buy food.

And Joseph recognised his brethren,—whereas ||they|| recognised him not. And Joseph remembered the dreams which he had dreamed regarding them,—so he said unto them—||Spies|| are |ye|! <to see the nakedness of the land > have ye come in!

  25 And they made ready the present, against the coming in of Joseph, at noon,—for they heard that it was || there|| they should eat bread.
- So <when Joseph came into the house> they brought in to him the present which was in their hand, into the house,—and bowed themselves down to him to the earth.

  27 Then asked he after their welfare, and said—

Is it well with your aged father, of whom ye spake? Is he yet' alive?

28 And they said—

It is well with thy servant our father he is yet'alive.

And they bent their heads and bowed themselves down.

Then lifted he up his eyes, and saw Benjamin his brother, son of his mother, and said—

Is |this| your youngest brother, of whom ye spake unto me? And he said, ||God|| grant thee favour my son!

O And Joseph made haste, for his compassions towards his brother |were pent up|, and he sought to weep,—so he went into the inner chamber, and wept there. In Then bathed he his face, and came forth,—and restrained himself, and said.

Set on bread!

  So they set on for him—by himself, and for them—by themselves,—and for the Egyptians that were eating with him—by themselves, for the Egyptians might not eat |bread| with the Hebrews, for <an abomination> had that' been to Egyptians.

Mand Jacob blessed Pharaoh,—and came forth from the presence of Pharaoh.

No then Joseph fixed the dwelling of his father and his brethren, and gave them a possession in the land of Egypt, in the best of the land, in the land of Rameses,—as Pharaol had commanded.
12 And Joseph nourished his father and his brethren, and all his father's house.—with bread, according to the need of their little ones.

But 'read was there none in all the land,— for the famine was very severe,—so that the hand of Egypt and the land of Canaan fainted by reason of the famine.

10 So Joseph gathered up all the silver that was found in the hand of Egypt, and in the land of Canaan, for the corn which they' were buying,—and Joseph brought the silver into the house of Plantach.

20 And the silver was spent out of the land of Egypt, and out of the land of

Do give us bread, for why should we die before thee, although !!silver!! hath failed? 16 Then said Joseph:

Give your cattle, and I will give your for your cattle,—if silver hath failed.

17 So they brought in their cattle unto Joseph, and Joseph gave them bread in exchange for the horses, and for the cattle of the flock, and for the cattle of the herd, and for the asses,—and he provided them with bread, for all their cattle, throughout that year.

When that year was ended, then came they unto him in the second year and said to him—

We will not hide from my lord, how that the silver, and the herds of beasts for my lord, are come to an end,—there is nothing left before my lord, save only our bodies, and our ground:

Wherefore' should we die before thine eyes both we and our ground? Buy thou us and our ground for bread,—and we and our ground will become servants to Pharaoh, and give seed, that we may live and not die, and the ground not lie waste.

39 So Joseph bought all the ground of the Egyptians for Pharaoh, for the Egyptians sold every man his field, because the famine had laid fast hold upon them,—so the land became Pharaoh's. n And <as for the people> he brought them into bondage as servants, b- from one end of the boundary of Egypt unto the other end thereof. 22 Only <the ground of the priests > bought he not,-for the priests had a statutory-portion from Pharaoh, and they had been eating their statutory-portion, which Pharaoh had given them, for which cause' they And ≈ had not sold their ground. Joseph said unto the people,

Lo! I have bought you this day, and your ground, for Pharaoh,—see, here is seed for you, so shall we sow the ground; 24 and it shall come to pass that, <of the yield> ye shall give a fifth to Pharaoh,—but the four parts shall be your own—for seed for the field, and for your food, and for them who are in your households, and for food for your little ones.

25 And they said -

Thou hast saved our lives! let us find favour in the eyes of my lord, so will we become Pharaoh's servants.

And Joseph appointed it for a statute—until this day, regarding the ground of Egypt, that Pharach should take a fifth,—only <the ground of the priests> was theirs alone, is had not become Pharach's.

Thus Israel dwelt in the land of Egypt, in the land of Goshen,—and gained possessions therein, and became fruitful and multiplied exceedingly.

§ 62. Jacob blesses Ephraim and Manassch.

And Jacoblived in the land of Egypt, seventeen years,—so it came to pass that the days of Jacob, the years of his life, were a hundred and forty-seven years.

9 And the days of Israel drew near that he must die, so he called for his son, for Joseph, and said to him—

<If, I pray thee, I have found favour in thine eyes> place, I pray thee, thy hand under my thigh,—so shalt thou deal with me in lovingkindness and faithfulness—

Do not, I pray thee, bury me in Egypt.

<When I shall lie down with my fathers> then shalt thou carry me out of Egypt, and bury me in their buryingplace.

And he said:

||I|| will do according to thy word.

31 Then he said:

Come, swear to me!

And he sware to him. Then did Israel bow himself down on the head of the couch.

48 And it came to pass <after these things> that one said to Joseph,

Lo! ||thy father|| is sick.

So he took his two sons with him, Manasseh and Ephraim. <sup>2</sup> And one told Jacob, and said—

Lo! ||thy son Joseph|| coming in unto thee.

So Israel strengthened himself, and sat up on the couch.

Then said Jacob, unto Joseph.

||God Almighty|| appeared unto me in Luz in the land of Canaan,—and blessed me;

and said unto me-

Behold me! about to make thee fruitful, so will I multiply thee, and give thee to become a multitude of peoples,—so will I give this land to thy seed after thee, as an age-abiding possession.

| Now | therefore | < thy two sons who were born to thee in the land of Egypt, before I came in unto thee in Egypt> are | mine |! || Ephraim and Manasseh || < like Reuben and Simeon>, shall be mine! | But < thine offspring which thou hast begotten after them> || thine own || shall they be,—< after the name of their brethren> shall they be called in their inheritance.

7 But ||as for me|| <when I came in from Padan> Rachel died by me in the land of Canaan in the way, while yet there was a stretch of country to come into Ephrath,—so I buried her there in the way to Ephrath, ||the same|| is Bethlehem.

Then Israel saw Joseph's sons,—and said—
Who are these?

9 And Joseph said unto his father,

<My sons> they are', whom God hath given me in this place.

And may there be called upon them my name, and the name of my fathers.

Abraham and Isaac;

And may they swarm into a multitude in the midst of the earth!

And Joseph saw that his father had laid his right hand on the head of Ephraim, and it was displeasing in his eyes,—so he took hold of his father's hand, to remove it from off the head of Ephraim, on to the head of Manasseh. <sup>18</sup> And Joseph said unto his father—

20 And he blessed them on that day, saying— <In thee> let Israel bless himself saying, God set thee as Ephraim and as Manasseh!
So he set Ephraim before Manasseh.

<sup>21</sup> And Israel said unto Joseph:

Lo! ||I|| am about to die,—but it shall come to pass that |God| will be |with you|, and will take you back into the land of your fathers.

So Jacob made an end of commanding his sons, and gathered up his feet, into the couch,—and ceased to breathe, and was gathered unto his people.

50 1 And Joseph fell upon the face of his father, and wept upon him, and kissed him.

2 Then Joseph commanded his servants, the physicians, to embalm his father,—so the physicians embalmed Israel.

3 And they fulfilled for him forty days, for <so> are they wont to fulfil the days of the embalmed,—and the Egyptians wept for him seventy days.

4 And <when the days of weeping for him were passed> Joseph spake unto the house of Pharaoh, saying,—

<If. I pray you I have found favour in your eyes> speak ye I pray you in the ears of Pharaoh saying:

9 And there went up with him, both chariots, and horsemen,—so it came to pass that ||the company|| was exceeding great.

10 And they came in, as far as the threshing-floor of the Buckthorn, which is beyond the Jordan, then wailed they there—an exceeding great and grievous wailing,—and he made for his father a mourning, of seven days.

12 And his sons did for him thus, as' he had commanded them;
13 so his sons carried him to the land of Canaan, and buried him in the cave of the field of Machpelah,—which Abraham bought—with the field —for a possession of a buryingplace, from Ephron the Hittite over against Mamre.

Ah now! do forgive we pray thee the transgression of thy brethren and their sin in that <with evil> they requited thee.

|| Now || therefore, grant forgiveness, we pray thee for the transgression of the servants of the God of thy father!

And Joseph wept, when they spake unto him.

  - 5 And it came to pass that ||all the persons* who were descended from b Jacob were seventy souls,—but ||Joseph || was already in 6 So then Joseph died, and all his Egypt. brethren, and all that generation. 7 But ||the sons of Israel || were fruitful and swarmed and multiplied and waxed mighty with ||exceeding vigour ||, -- so that the land was filled with them.
  - Then arose a new kingd over Egypt,—who had not known Joseph. 9 So he said unto his people, -

Lo! ||the people of the sons of Israel|| are too many and mighty for us!

- Come on! let us shew ourselves wise with regard to them, -lest they so multiply that it shall come to pass < when war befalleth us> • that || they also || shall join themselves unto them who hate us, and shall make war upon us, and then go up out of the land.

* To follow the weightv explanation subjoined, it hould be borne in mind that the Hebrew in ver. 14 is, second line, 'chych' asher 'chych, then in the fifth line 'chych only; then that yahweh takes up the strain in ver. 15. "Hayah [the word ren-dered above "become"] does not mean 'to be' sentially or ontologically, but phenomenally.
... It seems evident that in the view of the writer 'ehych and yahwel are the same: that God is 'chych, 'I will be,' when speaking of Himself, and yakwek, 'He will be,' when spoken of by others. What he will be others. what he was it is left unexpressed—He will be with them, helper, strengthener, deliverer."

§ 4. The Return of Moses to Egypt.

So Moses went and returned unto Jethroe his father-in-law and said to him-

Let me go, I pray thee, and return unto my brethren who are in Egypt, that I may see whether they are yet alive.

And Jethro said to Moses:

Go and prosper.

19 Then said Yahweh unto Moses in Midian,

Go return to Egypt,-for all the men are dead' who were seeking thy life.4

So Moses took his wife and his sons, and caused them to ride upon the ass, and he returned to the land of Egypt, -and Moses took the staff of God in his hand.

Yahweh said unto Moses, < When thou goest to return to Egypt> see <as touching all the wonders which I have put in thy hand> that thou do them before Pharaoh -but ||I|| will let his heart wax bold, and he will not suffer the people to

§ 5. The First Interview with Pharaoh, and its Results.

5 1 And <afterwards> Moses and Aaron went in and said unto Pharaoh,—

||Thus|| saith Yahweh God of Israel,

Let my people go, that they may hold a festival to me in the desert.

<sup>2</sup> Then said Pharaoh,

Who is Yahweh, that I should hearken to his voice, to let Israel go?

I know not Yahweh, and <certainly Israel> will I not let go!

3 And they said,

"The God of the Hebrews" hath met with us,
—let us go we pray thee a journey of three days into the desert and sacrifice to Yahweh our God, lest he fall upon us with pestilence or with sword.

4 And the king of Egypt said unto them,

Wherefore O Moses and Aaron, should ye loose the people from their works?

Get you to your burdens.

5 And Pharaoh said.

Lo! <many—now> are the people of the land,—and are ye to make them rest from their burdens?

So then Pharaoh gave command on that day unto the taskmasters over the people, and unto their overseers—saying:

Ye shall no more give straw unto the people for making the bricks as heretofore: Let ||them|| go ||themselves||, so shall they gather for themselves straw:

8 Nevertheless, < the fixed number of bricks, which they have been making heretofore> shall ye lay upon them, ye shall not diminish therefrom, —for <idle> they are', < on this account> it is that they are making an outcry, saying, We must go our way, we must sacrifice to our God.

The service must be made heavy on the men, that they may labour on it,—and let them not pay regard to words of falsehood.

Then went forth the taskmasters of the people, and their overseers, and spake unto the people,—saying,—

||Thus|| saith Pharaoh,

I am not' going to give you straw,

Ye yourselves go fetch you straw of any ye can find,—yet hath there not been diminished from your service a single thing.

12 So the people dispersed themselves throughout all the land of Egypt,—to gather stubble for straw: 13 || the taskmasters || meanwhile being urgent saying,—

Complete your works,

<The task of a day> in its day, as when the straw was provided'.

<sup>14</sup> Then were besten the overseers of the sons of Israel, whom the taskmasters of Pharaoh had set over them, saying:

Wherefore' have ye not completed your task for making bricks, <as heretofore> ||so also|| yesterday and' to-day?

Then came in the overseers of the sons of Israel, and made outcry unto Pharaoh, saying. Wherefore shouldst thou do thus to thy

Then did the overseers of the sons of Israel see themselves to be in an evil case, when it was said,—

Ye shall not diminish from your bricks— <the task of a day > in its day!

No So they fell upon Moses and upon Aaron, stationing themselves to meet them,—as they came forth from Pharaoh; 21 and they said unto them, Yahweh look' upon you and judge—in that:

Yahweh look' upon you, and judge,—in that ye have made us odious in the eyes of Pharaoh, and in the eyes of his servants, putting a sword into their hand to slay us.

§ 16. The Eighth Plague: Locusts.

Go in unto Pharach,—for ||I|| have suffered his heart to be dull and the heart of his servants, that I may show these my signs in their midst; 2 and that thou mayest recount in the ears of thy son, and thy son's son what I did in derision of the Egyptians, and my signs, which I displayed among them,—so shall ye know that ||I|| am Yahweh.

And Moses and Aaron went in unto Pharaoh, and said unto him-

||Thus|| saith Yahweh God of the Hebrews, How long' hast thou refused to humble thyself before me?

Let my people go, that they may serve me. But <if ||refusing|| thou art' to let my people go> behold me bringing in to-

Moses—
Stretch forth thy hand over the land of Egypt for the locust, that it may come up over the land of Egypt,—and may eat up every herb of the land, all that the hail hath left.

And Moses stretched forth his staff over the land of Egypt, and ||Yahweh|| caused an east wind to drive through the land, all that day, and all the night, -- < when "the morning" had come> the east wind | had brought the locust. 4 And the locust came up over all the land of Egypt, and settled in all the bounds of Egypt,—very grievous,

before it> had not been such a locust | as that |, neither <after it> should be one like it. 15 So it covered the eye of all the land, and the land was darkened, and it did eat every herb of the land and all the fruit of the trees, which the hail had left remaining,-so that there was not left remaining any green sprout in the trees, or in the herb of the field, in all the land of Egypt.

Then hastened Pharaoh, to call for Moses and for Aaron, -and said—

I have sinned against Yahweh your God, and against you.

Now therefore forgive I pray you my sin—only this time, and make entreaty to Yahweh your God,—that he may take away from me at least this death.

So he's came out from Pharsoh,—and made entreaty unto Yahweh; 's and Yahweh turned back a west wind strong exceedingly, and carried away the locust, and cast it into the Red Sea,—there was not left a single locust in all the bounds of Egypt. *But Yahweh suffered the heart of Pharsoh to wax bold, —and he did not let the sons of Israel go.

§ 18. The Tenth Plague threatened: the Death of the Egyptian Firstborn.

1 Then said Yahweh unto Moses-

<Yet one plague> will I bring in upon Pharaoh, and upon Egypt, <after b that> he will let you go from hence,—<when he doth let you go> he will ||altogether drive|| you out from hence.

Speak, I pray you, in the ears of the people, and let them ask—every man of his neighbour, and every woman of her neighbour, articles of silver and articles of gold.

And Yahweh gave the people favour, in the eyes of the Egyptians,—even the man Moses himself was exceeding great in the land of Egypt,—in the eyes of Pharaoh's servants, and in the eyes of the people.

4 And Moses said,

Thus saith Yahweh ,-

land-way of the Philistines, although it was ||near||,--for God said--

Lest the people be dismayed when they see war and turn back to Egypt.

18 So God took the people round the desert-way of the Red Sea, -and the sons of Israel went up ||armed|| out of the land of Egypt.

And Moses took the bones of Joseph with him,—for he had ||taken an oath|| of the sons of Israel, saying,

God will ||surely visit|| you, so then ye shall carry up my bones from hence, with you.

And they brake up from Succoth, -and encamped in Etham, at the edge of the desert,

Now || Yahweh || was going before them --- < by day> in a pillar of cloud to lead them the way, and by night> in a pillar of fire to give them light,-that they might journey day and night:

22 the pillar of cloud by day ceased not, nor the pillar of fire by night,-from before the people. <sup>1</sup> Then spake Yahweh unto Moses saying:

Speak unto the sons of Israel, that they turn back and encamp before Pi-hahiroth, between Migdol and the sea, -before Baalzephon, < over against it > shall ye encamp by the sea.

Then will Pharaoh say, of the sons of Israel, <Entangled> they are' in the land,-the desert hath closed in upon them.

So will I let the heart of Pharaoh wax bold and he will pursue them, that I may get me honour over Pharaoh, and over all his forces, and the Egyptians shall know that ||I|| am Yahweh.

And they did so.

And it was told the king of Egypt, that the people had fled,—and the heart of Pharaoh and his servants was turned against the people, and they said-

What is this we have done, that we have let Israel go from serving us?

So he yoked his chariot, -- and < his people> took he with him. 7 And he took six hundred chosen chariots, and all the chariots of Egypt,with warriors in every one. b 8 And Yahweh let the heart of Pharaoh king of Egypt wax bold. and he pursued the sons of Israel, -when ||the sons of Israel || were going out with a high hand.

9 So the Egyptians pursued them, and overtook them, encamping by the sea-all the horses and chariots of Pharaoh, and his horsemen and his forces,-by Pi-hahiroth, before Baal-zephon.

Now < when || Pharaoh|| had drawn near> the sons of Israel lifted up their eyes, and lo! || the Egyptians || moving along after them and they feared greatly, and the sons of Israel made outcry unto Yahweh. 11 Then said they unto Moses,

And Moses said unto the people—

Do not fear, stand still, and see the salvation of Yahweh, which he will work for you to-day,—for <as for the Egyptians whom ye have seen to-day> ye shall not again see them any more to times age-abiding.

||Yahweh|| will fight for you,-and ||ye|| shall | forbear |.

15 And Yahweh said unto Moses,

What outery wouldst thou make unto Speak unto the sons of Israel, that me? they go forward; 16 and <thou> lift high thy staff and stretch forth thy hand over the sea, and cleave it asunder,—that the sons of Israel may enter into the midst of the sea, on dry ground; 17 and ||I|| behold me letting the heart of the Egyptians wax bold, that they may enter after them,that I may get me honour over Pharaoh, and over his forces, over his chariots and over 18 And the Egyptians his horsemen. shall know that ||I|| am Yahweh, -when I have gotten me honour over Pharaoh, over his chariots, and over his horsemen.

19 And the messenger of God who was going on before the camp of Israel, removed, and came on behind them,-and the pillar of cloud removed from before them, and stood behind them; 30 so it came in between the camp of the Egyptians and the camp of Israel, so it became a cloud and darkness, and yet lighted up the night,—so that the one came not near unto the other all the night.

And Moses stretched forth his hand over the sea, and Yahweh carried away the sea by a mighty east wind, all the night, and turned the sea into dry land, -and the waters were cloven asunder.

- 22 Then went the sons of Israel into the midst of the sea on the dry ground,—and ||the waters|| <to them> were a wall, on their right hand and on their left. 23 And the Egyptians pursued, and entered after them-all the horses of Pharaoh his chariots and his horsemen,-into the midst of the sea.
- And it came to pass <in the morning watch> that Yahweh looked down into the camp of the Egyptians, through the pillar of fire and cloud, and confused the camp of the Egyptians;  $\infty$  and he took off the wheels of their chariots, and made them drive heavily, -so that the Egyptians said-

And Moses caused Israel to break up from the Red Sea, and they went out into the desert of Shur, -and journeyed three days in the desert, and found no water; 25 and, when they came in towards Marah, they could not drink the waters of Marah, for they were |bitter|,--< for this cause> was the name thereof called Marah.

§ 26. The Murmuring and the Manna.

Then did all the assembly of the sons of Israel murmur against Moses and against Aaron in the desert; 3 and the sons of Israel said unto them-

Oh that we had died by the hand of Yahweh, in the land of Egypt, when we remained by the pot of flesh, when we did eat bread to the full,-for ye have brought us forth into this desert, to cause all this multitude to die by famine.

4 Then said Yahweh unto Moses,

<sup>6</sup> So Moses and Aaron said' unto all the sons of Israel.—

<At eventide> then shall ye know that it was ||Yahweh|| who brought you forth, out of the land of Egypt; 7 and <in the morning> then shall ye see the glory of Yahweh, in that he hath heard your murmurings against Yahweh,—what then are ||we|| that ye should murmur against |us|?

8 And Moses said-

In that Yahweh giveth you in the evening flesh to eat and bread in the morning to the full, in that Yahweh heareth your murmurings wherewith ||ye|| are murmuring against him > what then are ||we||? < Not against us > do ye murmur, but against Yahweh.

9 And Moses said unto Aaron,

Say unto all the assembly of the sons of Israel,

Draw near, before Yahweh,—for he hath heard your murmurings.

10 And it came to pass <when Aaron spake unto all the assembly of the sons of Israel > then turned they towards the desert,—and lo! || the glory of Yahweh|| had appeared in the cloud.

11 Then spake Yahweh unto Moses—saying,

I have heard the murmurings of the sons of Israel,—speak unto them, saying—

<Between the two evenings>a shall ye eat flesh, and <in the morning> shall ye be filled with bread,—so shall ye know that ||I Yahweh|| am your God.

And it came to pass <in the evening> that there came up quail, and covered the camp,—and in the morning was the outpouring of dew, round about the camp; 14 and <when the outpouring of dew went up> then lo! <on the face of the desert> a thin flake, thin as hoar-frost on the earth. 15 And when the sons of Israel saw it, they said one to another—

What is that?

For they knew not what "that" was. Then said Moses unto them,

"That" is the bread which Yahweh hath given you to eat. 16 ||This|| is the thing which Yahweh hath commanded,

Gather ye thereof, each man what he needeth for eating, b - an omer a head by the number of your souls, <each man—for them who are in his tent> shall ye take.

17 And the sons of Israel did so,—and gathered, [some] more, and [some] less; 18 and <when they measured it with the omer> he who had gathered more had nothing over, and ||he who had gathered less|| had no lack: <each man, what he needed for eating>b did they gather.

with worms, and became loathsome,—and Moses was wroth with them.

21 Thus then they gathered it, morning by morning, each man what he needed for eating,—and <as soon as the sun waxed hot> so soon it melted.

<sup>22</sup> And it came to pass <on the sixth day> that they gathered food twice as much, two omers for each one,—so all the princes of the assembly came in, and told Moses. <sup>23</sup> And he said unto them—

||That|| is what Yahweh spake.

<The observance of a holy sabbath to Yahweh> is to-morrow,—<what ye would bake> bake and <what ye would boil> boil, and <all that is left over> put by you to keep until the morning.

Moses had commanded,—and it gave no unpleasant odour, neither was there  therein. 25 Then said Moses—

Eat ye it to-day, for  is to-day unto Yahweh,—<to-day> ye shall not find it in the field. 26 <Six days> shall ye gather it,—but <on the seventh day a sabbath> it shall not be therein.

27 And it came to pass <on the seventh day> that there went forth some of the people to gather,—but they found not.
28 Then said Yahweh unto Moses,—

How long' have ye refused to keep my commandments and my laws? See < because ||Yahwch|| hath given you the sabbath> < for this cause> is ||he|| giving you <on the sixth day> food for two days,—abide ye every man in his place let no man go forth from his dwelling, on the seventh day.

30 So the people rested on the seventh day.

And the house of Israel called the name thereof Manna,—and || the same || was like cori ander seed white, and || the taste thereof || like flat-cake with honey.d 22 And Moses said—

||This|| is the thing which Yahweh hath commanded,

§ 35. The Covenant finally ratified.

1 And <unto Moses> he said-

Come up unto Yahweh-||thou, and Aaron, Nadab and Abihu, and seventy of the elders of Israel | -so shall ye bow yourselves down, from afar. 2 And Moses alone' shall draw near unto Yahweh, but ||they|| shall not draw near, -and || the people || shall not come up with him.

So Moses came, and recounted to the people all the words of Yahweh, and all the regulations, -and all the people responded with one voice and said,

< All the words which Yahweh hath spoken> will we do.

- 4 Then wrote Moses all the words of Yahweh, and rose up early in the morning, and builded an altar under the mountain, -and twelve pillars, for the twelve tribes of Israel; 5 and he sent young men of the sons of Israel,d and they caused to go up ascending-sacrifices, -and slew peace'-offerings to Yahweh of oxen. 6 Then took Moses, half of the blood, and put it in basins, and <half of the blood> dashed he over the altar; 7 then took he the book of the covenant, and read in the ears of the And they said. people.

Thus shalt thou place in the breastpiece for giving sentence, the lights and the perfections, so shall they be upon the heart of Aaron, when he goeth in before Yahweh,—so shall Aaron bear the sentence of the sons of Israel upon his heart, before Yahweh, continually.

And thou shalt make the robe of the ephod wholly of blue; 32 and the opening for his head shall be in the midst thereof,- ||a border || shall there be to the opening thereof round about the work of a weaver, < like the opening of a coat of mail> shall there be to it it must not be rent. **And thou shalt make upon the skirts thereof, pomegranates of blue and purple and crimson, upon the skirts thereof, round about,-and bells of gold in the midst of them round about: 34 a bell of gold, and a pomegranate, a bell of gold and a pomegranate,—upon the skirts of the robe, round about. 25 And it shall be upon Aaron for ministering, -so shall be heard' the sound of him-when he goeth into the holy place, before Yahweh, and cometh out, and dieth not. c

And ||the holy' garments which belong to Aaron | shall belong to his sons after him, to be anointed therein, and to be installed. therein. 30 <Seven days> shall they be put on by him' from among his sons who is priest in his stead,-by him who goeth into the tent of meeting to minister in the holy place.

And <the ram of installation> shalt thou take, -- and shalt boil its flesh in a holy place; 32 and Aaron and his sons shall eat the flesh of the ram, and the bread that is in the basket,-at the opening of the tent of meeting: 33 thus shall they eat those things wherewith a propitiatory-covering hath been made, to install them to hallow them,but ||a stranger|| shall not eat for <holy> they are'. 34 And <if there be left over of the flesh of installation, or of the bread until the morning> then shalt thou burn up what is left over, in the fire, it shall not be eaten for <holy> it is'.

the altar, -two lambs of a year old day by day, continually: 39 < The one' lamb > shalt thou offer in the morning, -and <the second' lamb> shalt thou offer between the evenings; a 40 and a tenth part of fine meal mingled with a fourth part of the hin of beaten oil, and <as a drink-offering> a fourth part of the hin of wine, -with the one' lamb. 41 And <the second' lamb> shalt thou offer between the evenings. <according to the meal-offering of the morning and according to the drink-offering thereof > shalt thou offer with it, for a satisfying odour, an altar-flame to Yahweh: a continual ascending-sacrifice to your generations, at the opening of the tent of meeting, before Yahweh, - where I will meet with you, b to speak unto thee. 45 So will I meet there, with the sons of Israel,—and it shall be hallowed by my glory. 44 Thus will I hallow the tent of meeting, and the altar, -and < Aaron and his sons> will I hallow to minister as priests unto me. 45 Thus will I make my habitation in the midst of the sons of Israel, —and will be their' God; 46 and they shall know that ||I-Yahweh|| am their God. who brought them forth out of the land of Egypt that I might make my habitation in their midst,-

|| I-Yahweh|| their God.

34 Then said Yahweh unto Moses-

Take to thee aromatic spices stacte and onycha, and galbanum,—aromatic spices, and pure frankincense, - < weight for weight> shall it be. 25 And thou shalt make of it an incense, a perfume, the work of a perfumer,—salted pure holy. 36 And thou shalt beat some of it to powder, and place thereof before the testimony, in the tent of meeting, where I am to meet with thee. - < most holy > shall it be to you. 31 1 Then spake Yahweh unto Moses saying:

- § 38. Israel's Revolt into Idolatry, and their Restoration. Remarkable Episodes: - Breaking the Tables; Pitching a Temporary Tent outside the Camp; Yahweh's Proclamation of all his Goodness; Moses' Face shineth.
- And <when the people saw that Moses 32 delayed to come down out of the mount>* the people gathered themselves together unto Aaron, and said unto him-

Up, make for us gods b who shall go before us, for <as for this' Moses—the man who brought us up out of the land of Egypt> we know not what hath befallen him.

Break off the rings of gold, which are in the ears of your wives, of your sons, and of your daughters,-and bring them unto me.

3 And all the people of themselves brake off the rings of gold which were in their ears,-and brought them unto Aaron. 4 And he received [the gold] at their hand, and fashioned it with a graving tool, and made it a molten calf, c-and they said-

||These|| are thy gods, O Israel, who brought thee up, out of the land of Egypt.

5 And when Aaron saw it he built an altar before it. And Asron made proclamation and said. < A festival to Yahweh>d to-morrow!

6 So they rose up early on the morrow, and offered ascending-sacrifices, and brought near peace-offerings,-and the people sat down to est and to drink, and then rose up-to make sport ! <sup>7</sup> Then spake Yahweh unto Moses-

Go get thee down, for thy people whom thou hast brought up out of the land of Egypt have corrupted themselves. 1 8 They have turned aside quickly out of the way which I commandeds them, they have made for themselves—a molten calf,—and have bowed themselves down thereto, and have sacrificed thereto, and have said

<For mischief>* hath he taken them forth, to slay them among the mountains, and to make an end of them from off the face of the ground?

Turn thou from the kindling of thine anger, and be grieved over the calamity to thy people.

I will multiply your seed, as the stars of the heavens,—and <all this land of which I have spoken> will I give to your seed, and they shall inherit it to times age-abiding.

- 14 So then Yahweh was grieved,—over the calamity,—which he had spoken of inflicting on his people.
- And Moses turned and went down out of the mount, with the two tables of testimony in his hand,—tables written upon on both sides of them, <on this and on that> were they written.

The noise of war, in the camp!

18 But he said-

<Not the noise of the cry of heroism, nor yet the noise of the cry of defeat,—the noise of alternate song > do ||I|| hear.

19 And it came to pass <when he drew near unto the camp, and saw the calf, and the dancings>,that the anger of Moses kindled, and he cast out of his hands the tables, and brake them in pieces, at the foot of the mountain.

Then took he the calf which they had made, and burned it in the fire, and ground it till it became powder,—and strewed it on the face of the waters, and made the sons of Israel drink.<sup>4</sup>

Aaron,

84 1 And Yahweh said unto Moses-

Hew thee two tables of stone like the first,—and I will write upon the tables, the words which were upon the first tables, which thou didst break in pieces; <sup>2</sup> and be thou ready by the morning,—and thou shalt come up, in the morning, into Mount Sinai; then shalt thou station thyself for me there, upon the top of the mount; <sup>3</sup> and ||no man|| may come up with thee, and let no man so much as be seen in all the mount,—and let not even ||the flocks or the herds|| feed in front of that mountain.

<sup>4</sup> So he hewed two tables of stone, like the first, and Moses rose up early in the morning, and went up into Mount Sinai, as Yahweh had commanded him,—and took in his hand two tables of stone.

Yahweh, Yahweh,

A GOD of compassion, and favour,-

Slow to anger and abundant in lovingkindness and faithfulness:

Keeping lovingkindness to a thousand generations.

> Forgiving iniquity and transgression and sin, Though he leave not ||utterly unpunished||, Visiting the iniquity of fathers

- 8 Then Moses made haste,—and bent his head towards the earth and bowed himself down;
  9 and said—
  - <If, I pray thee I have found favour in thine eyes, O My Lord> I pray thee let My Lord go on in our midst,—although  it is, so wilt thou pardon our iniquity b and our sin and take us as thine own.
- This most gracious proclamation, by God, of His name and character is printed in the type set apart in this Bible (O.T.) for "refrains"; so as at once to call attention to the fact (to be verified as we go on) that this passage is well worthy to be described as The Refrain of the Bible. The devout reader cannot fail to be delighted with the typographical reminders of this fundamental revelation which are scattered throughout the Old Testament. The paragraph, in full, may occur nowhere else, but snatches of it abound.—On its closing words, Kalisch comments in the following weighty manner:—"God does not clear off the sin at once, but settles [p-k-d] it gradually within three or four generations; lest the individual, crushed by the weight of the punishments, perish. And this is indeed an act of divine mercy!—But the sons to the third or fourth generation can the more bear a part of the guilt, as the blessing of [a] thousand, that is, innumerable generations is promised to them, so that this circumstance also is a testimony of the love of God." the sons of Israel-

Yahweh hath put wisdom and understanding, to know how to work any manner of workmanship for the holy service, -according to all that Yahweh hath commanded.

§ 40. The Sanctuary is prepared.

So then Moses called upon Bezaleel, and upon Oholiab, and upon every man that was wisehearted, in whose heart Yahweh had put wisdom,-every one whose heart lifted him up, to draw near unto the work, to do it. 3 And they took, from the presence of Moses, all the heaveoffering which the sons of Israel had brought in for the work of the holy' service to do it,—howbeit ||they|| brought in unto him yet more free-will offerings morning by morn-<sup>4</sup>Then came in all the wise men ing. who were doing all the holy work,-man by man, from his work which ||they| were doing; <sup>5</sup> and spake unto Moses, saying,

<More than enough > are the people bringing in,-[more] than is needed for the service pertaining to the work, which Yahweh hath commanded to be done.

<sup>6</sup> So Moses gave commandment, and they passed a proclamation throughout the camp, saying,

Let "neither man nor woman" make any more material for the holy' heave-offering. So the people were restrained from bringing in. <sup>7</sup> For the material was enough for all the work to make it,-|and to spare||.

- Then did all the wise-hearted among the workers of the material make the habitation of ten curtains, -< of fine-twined linen, and blue and purple and crimson, with cherubim the work of the skilful weaver> did he make 9 || The length of each' curtain || was them. twenty-eight cubits, and ||the breadth|| four cubits, for each curtain, -< one measure > had all the curtains. 10 And he joined the [first] five curtains, one to another, -and <the [other] five curtains> joined he one to another. 11 And he made loops of blue, upon the border of the first curtain, at the edge of the set, -||thus|| made he in the border of the [other] curtain, at the edge of the second set: 12 < Fifty loops > made he in the first' curtain, and <fifty loops> made he in the edge of the curtain that was in the second' set,—the loops being ||opposite|| one to another. 13 And he made fifty clasps of gold,—and joined
- the curtains one to another with the clasps, and so the habitation became |one|.
- And he made curtains of goat's-hair, for the tent over the habitation, -<eleven curtains> did he make them: 15 || the length of each' curtain || was thirty cubits, and || four cubits || was the breath of each curtain, - < one measure > had the eleven curtains. 16 And he joined five of the curtains by themselves, -and the six curtains by themselves. 17 And he made fifty loops upon the border of the curtain that was outmost in the [one] set and < fifty loops > made he upon the border of the curtain of the second set. 18 And he made fifty clasps of

§ 1. Of various kinds of Offering.

- 1 Then called he unto Moses,—and Yahweh spake unto him, out of the tent of meeting saying:
  - Speak thou unto the sons of Israel and thou shalt say unto them-
    - ≪When ∥any man ⊨ would bring near from among you an oblation b unto Yahweh> <from the beasts from the herd or from the flock> shall ye bring near your oblation.
  - i. The Ascending-Sacrifice (A.V. and R.V." Burnt-Offering").

a. Of the Herd (bullock).

- ≺If <an ascending-sacrifice> be his oblation -of the herd >  shall he bring near, -< unto the entrance of the tent of meeting> shall he bring it, for its acceptance, before Yahweh. shall he lean his hand, upon the head of the ascending-sacrifice,-and it shall be accepted for him, to put a propitiatory coveringe over him; 5 and hed shall slay the young bullock • before Yahweh, -- and the sons of

c. Of Birds.

14 But <if <of €irds> be the ascending-sacrifice of his oblation unto Yahweh> then shall he bring near, of the turtle-doves or of the young pigeons, his oblation. 15 And the priest shall bring it near unto the altar, shall nip off its head, and make a perfume at the altar. - and its blood shall be drained out upon the wall of the altar. 16 Then shall he take away its crop with its plumage,-and cast it beside the altar eastward, into the place of fat ashes; 17 and he shall cleave it in its wings-he shall not divide it asunder, so shall the priest make a perfume therewith at the altar, upon the wood that is on the fire, -- < an ascending-sacrifice> it is' an altar-flame of a satisfying odour unto Yahweh.

ii. The Meal-offering (A.V. "Meat-offering": Heb. minḥah.)

a. Of fine Meal.

But < when ||any person|| would bring near as an oblation a meal-offering d unto Yahweh> <of fine meal> shall be his oblation,and he shall pour out thereon, oil, and place thereon frankincense; 2 so shall he bring it in unto the sons of Aaron, the priests, and heb shall grasp therefrom a handful of the fine meal thereof, and of the oil thereof, besides all the frankincense thereof,-and the priest shall make a perfume with the memorial thereof at the altar, an altarflame of a satisfying odour unto 3 But || the remainder of the Yahweh. meal-offering || pertaineth unto Aaron and unto his sons, -||most holy, from among the altar-flames of Yahweh "...

b. From the Oven.

4 Moreover when thou wouldst bring near, as an oblation of a meal-offering, something baked in an oven round, unleavened cakes of fine meal, overflowed with oil> [shall it be], or unleavened wafers anointed with oil.

c. From the Girdle.

d. From the Boiler.

- But <if  be thine oblation> <of fine meal with oil> shall it be made. Then shalt thou bring in the meal-offering that is made of these unto Yahweh,—and one shall bring it near unto the priest, and he shall take it near, unto the altar. Then shall the priest uplift, out of the meal-offering, a memorial thereof, and make a perfume at the altar,—an altar-flame of a satisfying dour unto Yahweh.

  10 But ||the remainder of the meal-offering|| pertaineth to Aaron and to his sons,—||most holy from among the altar-flames of Yahweh||.
- 11 || None of the meal-offerings which ye bring near unto Yahweh|| shall be made into anything leavened, -for <of no leaven and of no syrup>b may ye make a perfume, as an altar-flame unto Yahweh.

e. Of First-fruits.

- As for an oblation of first-fruits > ye shall bring them near unto Yahweh, —but <unto the altar > they shall not take them up as a satisfying odour.
- And <every meal-offering oblation of thine> <with salt> shalt thou season, and thou shalt not suffer to be lacking the salt of the covenant of thy God, from upon thy mealoffering,—<upon every oblation of thine> shalt thou offer salt.

f. Of First-ripe Corn.

But <if thou wouldst bring near a mealoffering of first-ripe corn, unto Yahweh> <of green ears, roasted in fire, crushed grain of garden-land> shalt thou bring near thy meal-offering of first-ripe corn. <sup>15</sup> And thou shalt place thereon, oil, and shalt put thereon, frankincense,— it is'. <sup>16</sup> Then shall the priest make a perfume, with the memorial thereof, —from the crushed grain thereof, and from the oil thereof, besides all the frankincense thereof,— ||an altar-flame, unto Yahweh||...

iii. The Peace-offering.

a. Of the Herd.

But <if  be his oblation> 3
<if <of the herd> ||he himself|| be bringing near,—whether male or female> <without defect> shall he bring it near before Yahweh. 2 Then shall he lean his hand upon the head of his oblation, and slay it at the entrance of the tent of meeting,—and the sons of Aaron the priests shall dash the blood against the altar round about. 3 Then shall he bring near.

§ 5. Aaron begins to officiate in the Priesthood, and the Glory of Yahweh appears.

9 1 And it came to pass on the eighth day that Moses called for Aaron and for his sons,—and for the elders of Israel; 2 and said unto Aaron-Take for thyself a choice calf, as a sin-bearer, b and a ram for an ascending-sacrifice each without defect, - and bring them near before Yahweh; 3 and <unto the sons of Israel> shalt thou speak saying.-

Take ye a he-goat, as a sin-bearer, and a calf and a young sheep each a year old without defect, for an ascending-sacrifice; and an ox and a ram for peace-offerings to sacrifice before Yahweh, and a mealoffering overflowed with oil,-for <today> doth | Yahweh | appear unto you.

5 So they broughte that which Moses commanded before the tent of meeting, - and all the assembly drew near, and stood before 6 And Moses said-Yahweh.

||This|| is the thing which Yahweh hath commanded that ye shall do,-that the glory of Yahweh may appear unto you.

7 And Moses said unto Aaron-

Draw near unto the altar, and offer thy sinbearer b and thine ascending-sacrifice, and put a propitiatory-covering about thyself and about the people, -and offer the oblation of the people, and put a propitiatorycovering about them,

As Yahweh hath commanded.

So Aaron drew near unto the altar,—and slew the sin'-bearing' calf which was for himself; and the sons of Aaron brought the blood unto him, and he dipped his finger in the blood, and put [thereof] upon the horns of the altar, -and <the [remainder of the] blood> poured he out at the base of the altar; 10 and < with the fat and the kidneys, and the cauld from the liver. of the sin-bearer> made he a perfume at the altar,--

As Yahweh commanded Moses.

11 But <the flesh and the skin> consumed he with fire, outside the camp. 12 Then slew he the ascending-sacrifice,—and the sons of Aaron presented unto him the blood, and he dashed a it against the altar round about.

<sup>13</sup> And <the ascending-sacrifice> presented they unto him, piece by piece thereof, also the head, b—and he made a perfume upon the altar: 14 and he bathed the inwards, and the legs,—and made a perfume upon the ascending-sacrifice  $^{15}$  Then brought he at the altar. near the oblation of the people,-and took the sin-bearing goat which pertained to the people, and slew it and made therewith a sin-bearer like the first. 16 Then brought he near the ascending-sacrifice,—and offered it according to the regulation. 17 Then brought he near the meal-offering, and filled his hand therefrom,c and made a perfume upon the altar,-in addition to the ascending - sacrifice of the morning. 18 Then slew he the ox, and the ram, as a peace'- offering, which pertained unto the people, -- and the sons of Aaron presented the blood unto him, and he dashed a it against the altar round about; 19 and the portions of fat from the ox, -- and from the ram, the fat-tail and the covering and the kidneys, and the cauld of the liver; 20 and they put the portions of fat upon the breasts,-and he made a perfume with the fat at the altar; 21 but <the breasts and the right shoulder> odid Aaron wave as a wave-offering before Yahweh, -as Moses commanded.f

Then Aaron lifted up his hands towards the people and blessed them, -and he came down from offering the sin-bearer and the ascendingsacrifice and the peace-offering.

And < when Moses and Aaron had entered into the tent of meeting, -and had come forth and blessed the people> then appeared the glory of Yahweh unto all the people;

24 yea, there came forth fire from before Yahweh, and consumed upon the altar, the ascendingsacrifice and the portions of fat,-and all the people beheld, and shouted, and fell down upon their faces.h

§ 6. Aaron's Sons, Nadab and Abihu, offer Strange Fire and are consumed.

Draw near bear away your brethren from before the sanctuary, unto the outside of the camp.

So they drew near and bare them away, in their tunics, unto the outside of the camp,—as spake Moses.

6 Then said Moses unto Aaron, and to Eleazar and to Ithamar, his sons—

<Your heads> ye may not bare and <your garments> ye shall not rend so shall ye not die, neither <against all the assembly> will he be wroth,—but let "your brethren the whole house of Israel" bewail the consuming fire wherewith Yahweh hath consumed. And they did according to the word of Moses.

before Yahweh,—so shall they be thine and thy sons' with thee, by an age-abiding statute, As Yahweh hath commanded.

§ 8. Aaron's Justification for not eating the Sin-offering.

Now <as for the sin-bearing goat> Moss ||diligently sought|| it but lo! it had been burnt up,—then was he wroth against Eleazar and against Ithamar, the sons of Aaron that were left saying:

19 Then spake Aaron unto Moses-

Lo! < this very day when they had brought near their own sin-bearer and their own ascending-sacrifice> there befell me' such things as these,— < if then I had eaten of the sin-bearer this day> would it have been well-pleasing in the eyes of Yahweh!

<sup>20</sup> And <when Moses heard that> then was it well-pleasing in his eyes.

§ 9. Concerning Clean and Unclean Beasts.

And Yahweh spake unto Moses and unto Aaron saying unto them:

2 Speak ye unto the sons of Israel, saying,-

"These || are the living things which ye may eat, of all the beasts which are upon the earth: 3 < Whatsoever parteth the hoof and is cloven-footed, and cheweth the cud, among beasts > || that || may ! cat. 4 Nevertheless || these || shirtye not eat, of them that chew the cu and of them that part the hoof.—

And | these | shall ye abhor of birds, they shall not be eaten <an abomination> they are',—the eagle and the ossifrage, and the osprey; b 14 and the vulture, c and the falcon after its kind; 15 every raven, after its kind; 16 and the female ostrich, 4 and the male ostrich, and the sea-gull,—and the hawk after its kind; 17 and the pelican and the gannet and the bittern; 5 18 and the swan and the vomiting pelican and the little vulture; 19 and the stork, and the parrot after its kind,—and the mountain-cock and the bat. h

Every creeping thing that flieth, that goeth on all-fours an abomination it is unto you.
21 Nevertheless these may ye eat, of all creeping things that fly, that go on all-fours — such as have legs above their feet, to leap therewith upon the earth—22 < these of them > may ye eat:

the swarming-locust after its kind, and the devouring locust after its kind, and the chargol-locust after its kind, and the chagab-locust after its kind.

**2 And ||he that beareth away the carcase of them|| shall wash his clothes, and shall be unclean until the evening,— <unclean> they are' unto you.

And ||these|| <unto you> shall be unclean, among the creeping things that creep upon the earth,—the weazel and the mouse and

in These || are they which are unclean to you, among all that creep,- whosoever toucheth them when they are dead! shall be unclean until the evening; 32 and ||everything whereon any of them shall fall when they are dead || shall be unclean - < of any articles of wood or cloth or skin or sackcloth, any article wherewith any work is done> -shall be put in water and shall be unclean until the evening and then be clean. 33 And < as for any earthen vessel whereinto any of them may fall> ||everything therein || shall be unclean and <the vessel itself> shall ye break in pieces. <Of all the food that may be eaten, that whereon shall come water> shall be unclean,-and "all drink which might be drunk in any [such] vessel | shall be unclean. And ||everything whereon shall fall any part of the carcase of them | shall be unclean, |oven or fire-range| it shall be destroyed <unclean> they are',-and <unclean> shall they remain to you. Notwithstanding a fountain or cistern wherein is a gathering of waters || shall be clean.—but the that toucheth the carcase of them | shall be unclean. 37 And || when any part of the carcase of them shall fall upon seed for sowing, which is to be sown> the same is ||clean||. 38 But < when water shall be put upon seed, and there shall fall thereon any part of the carcase of them> <unclean> it is' to you.

And <when any of the beasts which are yours for food shall die> "he that toucheth the carcase of it" shall be unclean until the evening. And "he that eateth of the carcase of it" shall wash his clothes and be unclean until the evening,—|he also that carrieth away the carcase thereof shall wash his clothes and be unclean until the evening.

And <any creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth> < an abomination > it is'--it shall not be eaten. 42 < Everything that goeth upon the belly and everything that goeth upon all-fours even to everything having many feet, as regardeth any creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth> ye shall not eat them for <an abomination> they are'. Do not make your persons abominable, with any creeping thing that creepeth,-neither shall ye make yourselves unclean with them, that ye should become unclean thereby. § 1. The Numbering of the Hosts of Israel. (Cp. § 22).

1 ¹ Then spake Yahweh unto Moses in the desert of Sinai in the tent of meeting,—on the first of the second month in the second year, by their coming forth out of the land of Egypt, saying:

Reckon ye up the sum of all the assembly of the sons of Israel, by their families, by their ancestral houses,—in the counting of names, every male, by their polls; from twenty years old and upwards, every one able to go forth to war, in Israel,—ye shall number them by their hosts. thou and Aaron!; and <with you> shall be one man for each tribe,—||each man|| </wi> head of his ancestral house> shall be'.
I'These! then are the names of the men who shall stand with you,—

<Of Reuben> Elizur son of Shedeur;

 Simeon> Shelumiel son of Zurishaddai;

Of Judah > Nahshôn son of Amminadab;

8 <Of Issachar> Nethanel son of Zuar;

<Of Zebulun> Eliab, son of Hêlôn;

<Of the sons of Joseph>-

<Of Ephraim> Elishama, son of Ammihud;

<Of Manasseh> Gamaliel son of Pedahzur;

<Of Benjamin> Abidan, son of Gideoni;

<Of Dan > Ahiezer, son of Ammishaddai; a

Asher> Pagiel son of Ochran;

<Of Gad> Eliasaph son of Deuel; <Of Naphtali> Ahira, son of Enân.

These are they who had been summoned by the assembly, being |princes of the tribes of their fathers,—heads of the thousands of Israel.

So then Moses and Aaron took these men, who were distinguished by name; <sup>18</sup> <all the assembly also > called they together, on the first of the second month,—and they declared their pedigree according to their families, by their ancestral houses,—in the counting of names, from twenty years old and upwards, by their polls. <sup>19</sup> <As Yahweh commanded Moses > so he mustered them in the desert of Sinai. <sup>20</sup> And they were [as followeth]—

§ 10. The First Commemorative Passover.

And Yahweh spake unto Moses in the desert of Sinai, in the second year by their coming forth out of the land of Egypt in the first month saying:

Let the sons of Israel therefore keep the passover in its appointed season: 3 < on the fourteenth day of this month between the two evenings> shall ye keep it in its appointed season, -- < according to all the statutes thereof and according to all the regulations thereof> shall ye keep it.

- <sup>4</sup> Then spake Moses unto the sons of Israel, that they should keep the passover. 5 So they kept the passover in the first [month] on the fourteenth day of the month, between the two evenings, b in the desert of Sinai, -< according to all that Yahweh commanded Moses> ||so|| did' the sons of Israel. 6 But so it was that there were certain men who had become unclean by a dead person, and could not keep the passover on that day,-therefore came they near before Moses and before Aaron on that day. 7 Then said those men unto him,
  - Well are unclean by a dead person, d-wherefore' should we become of less esteem for want of offering the oblation of Yahweh in its appointed season, in the midst of the sons of Israel?
- 8 And Moses said unto them, -

Stay, and let me hear, what Yahweh shall command concerning you!

Then spake Yahweh unto Moses, saying:

Speak unto the sons of Israel, saying,-

<Though ||any man || be unclean by a dead person, or be on a journey afar off, whether in the case of yourselves or of your generations> yet shall he keep a passover unto Yahweh. 11 < In the second month on the fourteenth day between the two evenings> shall they keep it, -with unleavened cakes and bitter herbs> shall they eat it. 12 They shall not leave thereof until morning, and <no bone > shall they break therein -<according to all the statutes of the passover> shall they keep it. 13 But

§ 11. The Guiding Cloud.

Now <on the day the habitation was reared> the cloud covered the habitation, even the tent of the testimony, -and <in the evening> it was over the habitation like an appearance of fire until morning. 16 || Thus || came it to pass continually, ||the cloud|| covered it,-and an appearance of fire by night; 17 but <at the bidding of the upgoings of the cloud from off the tent> then ||after that|| the sons of Israel set forward,—and <in the place where the cloud abode> ||there|| the sons of Israel encamped: 18 < at the bidding of Yahweh > the sons of Israel set forward, and <at the bidding of Yahweh> they encamped, -<all the days that the cloud abode upon the habitation> they remained encamped. 19 And < when the cloud lengthened out its stay upon the habitation many days> then would the sons of Israel keep the watch of Yahweh, and would not set forward. 20 And ||so it was || < when the cloud would be a few days* upon the habitation> <at the bidding of Yahweh> they remained encamped, and <at the bidding of Yahweh> they set forward. 21 And ||so it was || < when the cloud would be from evening until morning> <as soon as the cloud went up in the morning> so soon did they set forward: < whether by day or by night> <as soon as the cloud went up> so soon did they set forward. 22 < Whether for two days, or a month, or a year, b the cloud lengthened out its stay upon the habitation abiding thereupon> the sons of Israel remained encamped and set not forward,-but <at the upgoings thereof> they set forward. 23 < At the bidding of Yahweh> they encamped, and <at the bidding of Yahweh> they set forward, -<the watch of Yahweh> they kept, at the bidding of Yahweh, by the hande of Moses.d

- And so it came to pass <in the second year in the second month, on the twentieth of the month> that the cloud lifted itself up, from off the habitation of the testimony; <sup>12</sup> and the sons of Israel set forward by their removals from the desert of Sinai,—and then the cloud abode in the desert of Paran. <sup>13</sup> Thus then did they set forward for the first time,—at the bidding of Yahweh by the hand of Moses.

- § 14. The Murmuring of the People occasions the Satisfying (and the Smiting) of the Flesh, and the wider Gift of the Spirit.
- 11 ¹ And it came to pass that <when the people were giving themselves up to murmuring> it was grievous in the ears b of Yahweh,—so Yahweh hearkened and kindled was his anger, and the fire of Yahweh burned among them, and consumed the uttermost part of the camp. ² Then did the people make outcry unto Moses,—and Moses prayed unto Yahweh, and the fire sank down. ² So he called the name of that place. Taberah [i.e. "A Burning"],—because there burned among them the fire of Yahweh.
  - Moreover || the mixed multitude that was in their midst|| concealed not their lusting,—and so even the sons of Israel | fell away and wept|, and said:

Who will grant us to eat |flesh|? <sup>5</sup> We remember the fish that we did eat in Egypt without money,—the cucumbers, and the water-melons, and the leeks and the onions and the garlick. <sup>6</sup> But ||now|| our sould is dried up there is nothing at all,—unless <unto the manna> [we turn] our eyes.

Now || the manna.| was || like coriander seed|, and the appearance thereof like the appearance of bdellium. Bethe people used to go about and pick it up, and grind it with a pair of millstones, or pound it in a mortar, and boil it in a pot, and make it into round cakes,—then was the taste thereof like the taste of a sweet cake made with oil. See When the dew came down upon the camp by night > the manna came down thereupon.

So then Moses heard the people weeping by their families, every one at the entrance of his tent,—then kindled the anger of Yahweh fiercely, and <in the eyes of Moses > it was grievous.*

This is attested to be an alteration made by the Sopherim (= Editorial Scribes). Some authorities state that the text originally was, "Kill me, I pray Thee, out of hand, that I may not see Thy evil"—i.c. the evil or punishment wherewith Thou wilt vist Israel. As this might be so construed as to accribe evil to the Lord, the Sopherim altered it into "that I may not see my evil." From the Jerusalem Targum it is evident that in some Schools the textual reading was, "the evil of the people," or "their evil" —Condensed from G.

§ 18. The Conspiracy against Moses under Korah, Dathan and Abiram.

16 ¹ Then took c Korah, son of Izhar, son of Kohath, son of Levi,—and Dathan and Abiram, sons of Eliab, and On, son of Peleth, sons of Reuben; ² and rose upc before Moses, with certain men of the sons of Israel, two hundred and fifty,—princes of assembly, called to the stated meeting, men of renown; ³ and gathered themselves together against Moses and against Aaron, and said unto them.

"Too much for you! when !!all the assembly! are !!all of them! holy, and <in the midst of them > is Yahweh,— Wherefore then should ye set yourselves up above the convocation of Yahweh?

<sup>4</sup> And <when Moses heard it> he fell upon his face. <sup>5</sup> Then spake he unto Korah, and unto all his assembly, saying,

<In the morning> will Yahweh make known—who are his, and who is the holy one, and will cause him to come near unto himself,—yea <him whom he shall choose> will he cause to come near unto himself.

6 | This | do,-

Take to you censers, Korah and all his assembly; 7 and place therein fire, and put thereon incense before Yahweh to-morrow.

8 And Moses said unto Korah,-

Hear, I pray you ye sons of Levi! <sup>9</sup> Is it too small a thing for you that the God of Israel hath separated you from the assembly of Israel, to bring you near unto himself,—to do the laborious work of the habitation of Yahweh, and to stand before the assembly to wait upon them? <sup>10</sup> But <having brought thee near, and all thy brethren the sons of Levi with thee> must ye seek | priesthood also!?

Wherefore' ||thou and all thine assembly || are conspiring against Yahweh,-

But <Aaron> what is he', that ye should murmur against him'?

- Then sent Moses, to call for Dathan and for Abiram sons of Eliab,—and they said We will not come up:
- Was it ||a small thing|| that thou didst bring us up out of a land flowing with milk and honey, to put us to death in the desert, but thou must ||continue even to lord it|| over us?
- Certainly <not into a land flowing with milk and honey> hast thou brought us, nor given unto us an inheritance of field and vineyard,—

<The eyes of those men> wilt thou dig out?

We will not come up.

Then was Moses very angry, and he said unto-Yahweh.

Do not thou have respect unto their mealoffering.

<Not one ass from them> have I taken, neither have I wronged one of them.

16 And Moses said unto Korah,

||Thou, and all thine assembly|| come ye before Yahweh,—|thou, and they, and Aaron|
||to-morrow||.

- And take ye each man his censer, and put thereon incense, then shall ye bring near before Yahweh, each man his censer, two hundred and fifty censers,—and ||thou and Aaron|| each man his censer.
- 18 So they took each man his censer, and put thereon fire, and placed thereon incense,—and took their stand at the entrance of the tent of meeting with Moses and Aaron. b 19 And Korah gathered together against them all the assembly, unto the entrance of the tent of meeting,—then appeared the glory of Yahweh, unto all the assembly.

  20 Then spake Yahweh unto Moses and unto Aaron, saying:

shall tone man sin, and <against all the assembly wilt thou be wroth?

22 And Yahweh spake unto Moses saying,

24 Speak unto the assembly saying,-

Get ye up from round about the habitation of Korah Dathan and Abiram.

28 So Moses rose up, and went unto Dathan and Abiram,—then went after him the elders of Israel.

26 And he spake unto the assembly saying—

Remove, I pray you, from beside the tents of these lawless men, and do not touch aught that pertaineth unto them, — lest ye be carried off, in all their sins.

30 So they went up from beside the habitation of Korah Dathan and Abiram on every side,—and Dathan and Abiram earne out and stationed themselves at the entrance of their tents, with their wives and their sons and their little ones.

28 Then said Moses,

<Hereby> shall ye know, that "Yahweh" hath sent me, to do' all these works,—verily not out of my own heart:—

ZIf <as all human beings die> these' do die, and !'the visitation of all human beings!| be visited upon them> 'Yahweh!| hath not sent me.

But <if  Yahweh create and the ground open wide her mouth and swallow them up with all that pertain unto them, and so they go down alive unto hades> then shall ye know, that these men have despised Yahweh.

31 And it came to pass <as he made an end of speaking all these words> that the ground which was under them |clave asunder|; 32 and the earth opened' her mouth, and swallowed up them, and their households,—and all the human beings who pertained unto Korah, with all their goods: 33 so ||they||, and all that pertained unto them, |went down|, alive', unto hades,—and the earth |closed upon them|, and they perished out of the midst of the convocation.

34 And ||all Israel who were round about them|| fled at their cry, b—for they said,

Lest the earth |swallow us up |.

35 ||Fire also|| came forth from Yahweh,—and consumed the two hundred and fifty men, who offered the incense.

36 Then spake Yahweh unto Moses, saying:

- 37 Say unto Eleazar, son of Aaron the priest, that he take up the censers out of the midst of the burning, and <the fire> scatter thou yonder,—for they have been hallowed.
- 28 <As for the censers of these sinners against their own persons> they shall be made into beaten-out plates, as an overlay for the altar, for they had brought them near before Yahweh, and hallowed them,—so shall they become a sign unto the sons of Israel.

<sup>20</sup> And Eleazar the priest took the censers of bronze, which the consumed men had brought near,—and beat them out into plates for overlaying the altar: <sup>40</sup> a memorial unto the sons of Israel.

That no stranger who is not of the seed of Aaron || shall draw near to offer incense before Yahweh,—lest he become like Korah and like his assembly,

As spake Yahweh by the hand of Moses, with regard thereto.

<sup>41</sup> And all the assembly of the sons of Israel murmured on the morrow, against Moses and against Aaron, saying,—

 || Ye|| have caused the death of the people of Yahweh.

<sup>42</sup> And it came to pass, <when the assembly gathered themselves together against Moses and against Aaron> that they turned towards the tent of meeting, and lo! the cloud |had covered it|: and the glory of Yahweh | appeared |.

43 And Moses and Aaron came in before the tent of meeting. 44 Then spake Yahweh unto Moses saying:

Lift yourselves up out of the midst of this assembly, that I may consume them as in a moment,—

And they fell upon their faces.

46 Then

said Moses unto Aaron-

Take the censer and place thereon fire from off the altar, and put incense [thereon], and going quickly into the assembly, put a propitiatory-covering over them,—for wrath | hath gone forth | from before Yahweh the plague | hath begun |.

Then took Aaron as Moses spake and ran into the midst of the convocation, and lo! the plague | had begun | among the people,—so he placed the incense, and put a propitiatory-covering over the people: 48 thus did he take his stand between the dead and the living,—and the plague | was restrained |. 49 And so it was, that they who died in the plague were fourteen thousand, and seven hundred,—besides them who died over the matter of Korah. 50 And Aaron returned unto Moses, unto the entrance of the tent of meeting.—when "the plague" had been restrained.

 Speak unto the sons of Israel and take of them one staff each for an ancestral house of all their princes, by their ancestral houses, "twelve staves",—<each man's name> shalt thou write upon his staff;

<sup>4</sup> Then shalt thou lay them up in the tent of meeting,—before the testimony where I meet with you.

<sup>5</sup> So shall it come to pass, that <the man whom I shall choose> ||his staff|| shall bud,—so will I cause to cease from against me' the murmurings of the sons of Israel, wherewith ||they|| are murmuring against you'.

And Moses spake unto the sons of Israel and every one of their princes gave unto him a staff apiece, for each princes by their ancestral houses, twelve stavess,—and the staff of Aaron was in the midst of their staves. So Moses laid up the staves before Yahweh,—in the tent of the testimony.

And it came to pass on the morrow, that Moses entered into the tent of the testimony; and lo! the staff of Aaron for the house of Levi had budded,—yea it had brought forth buds and bloomed blossoms, and borne ripe almonds. So then Moses brought forth' all the staves from before Yahweh, unto all the sons of Israel,—and they saw and took each man his own staff.

10 And Yahweh said unto Moses—

Put back the rod of Aaron before the testimony, to be kept as a sign unto such as are perverse, b—that thou mayest bring to an end their murmurings against me that they die not.

11 Thus did Moses,—<as Yahweh commanded him> ||so|| did he.

15 So he took up his parable, and said,—

The oracle of Balaam, son of Beor,

Yea the oracle of the man of opened eye;

The oracle of one hearing sayings of God, And knowing the knowledge of the Most High,—

Who < the sight of the Almighty > receiveth in vision,

Who falleth down but hath unveiled eyes:-

I see One who is not now, I observe One who is not nigh,— There hath marched forth a Star out of Jacob

And arisen a Sceptre out of Israel,
That hath dishonoured the beard of Moab,
Yes the crown of the head b of all the tumultuous;

So Edom hath become a possession. Yea a possession' is Seir to his foes,— But ||Israel|| is doing valiantly;

- Yea One wieldeth dominion out of Jacob,— Who hath destroyed the remnant out of the fortress.
- <sup>20</sup> And <when he saw Amalek> he took up his parable, and said—

<The beginning of nations>—Amalek, But |his latter end|| is even to perish.

And <when he saw the Kenite> he took up his parable and said,—

Enduring' thy dwelling-place,

Set thou, then, <in the crag> thy nest; d
Yet shall it be for destruction, O Kain,—
How long shall Assyria hold thee captive?

- 23 And he took up his parable o and said,—
- Alas! who shall survive its fulfilment by God;
  When ||ships|| [come] from the coast of the isles,

And humble Assyria, and humble the Hebrew,—

And ||he too ||s is even to perish?

- Then Balaam arose, and went and returned unto his place,—and ||Balak also|| went his way.

<sup>5</sup> And Moses said unto the judges of Israel,— Slay ye each one his men, who have let themselves be bound unto Baal-peor.

And lo! ha man of the sons of Israel coming in who brought near unto his brethren a Midianite woman, before the eyes of Moses, and before the eyes of all the assembly of the sons of Israel,—||when they' were weeping at the entrance of the tent of meeting || 7 And Phinehas, son of Eleazar, son of Aaron the priest saw' it,—so he rose up out of the midst of the assembly, and took a spear in his hand;

Exact thou, the avenging of the sons of Israel, from the Midianites, -and <afterwards> shalt thou be withdrawn unto thy kinsfolk.

Arm ye from among you men for the war,—and let them go against Midian, to render the avenging of Yahweh upon 4 < A thousand from each Midian. tribe,-of all the tribes of Israel> shall ye send forth unto the war.

<sup>5</sup> And there volunteered out of the thousands of Israel, a thousand of each tribe, - twelve thousand armed for war. 6 And Moses sent them, a thousand of each tribe, to the war,—||them, and Phinehas son of Eleazar the priest || to the war, with the vessels of the sanctuary, and the alarm trumpets, o in his <sup>7</sup>So they made war upon hand. Now therefore, slay ye every male among the young,—every woman also that hath cohabited with man> slay ye.

But <whatsoever cannot go into fire> ve shall pass through water.

And ye shall wash your clothes on the seventh day and be clean,—and <afterwards> shall ye come into the camp.

And it came to pass that the booty, <over and above the prey which the people of the host had seized> was,—<of the flock> six hundred and seventy-five thousand; so and <of the herd> seventy-two thousand; so and <of the asses> sixty-one thousand; so and <of the human persons, even of the woman-kind who had not cohabited with man>,— |all the persons|, thirty-two thousand.

As Yahweh commanded Moses.

Then came near unto Moses, the officers who belonged unto the thousands of the host,—the princes of thousands, and the princes of hundreds; and said unto Moses,

"Thy servants" have reckoned up the sum of the men of war who are in our hand, -and there is not missed from among us ||a man||!

- Therefore have we brought near an offering unto Yahweh, what ||each man|| hath found-articles of gold, ankle chains and bracelets, rings earrings and buckles,—to put a propitiatory-covering over our souls. before Yahweh.
- <sup>51</sup> So Moses and Eleazar the priest took the gold of them, -all the wrought articles. 22 And all the gold of the heave-offering which they offered upb unto Yahweh, was sixteen thousand, seven hundred and fifty shekels, -||of the princes of thousands, and of the princes of hundreds".
- " |The men of the host || had taken prey each man for himself." 54 So then Moses and Eleazar the priest took' the gold of the princes of thousands and hundreds, -and brought it into the tent of meeting, as a memorial for the sons of Israel before Yahweh.

§ 38. The Trans-Jordanic Inheritance of the Two-and-a-Half Tribes.

32 Now || much cattle || had come into the possession of the sons of Reuben and of the sons of Gad ||an exceeding mighty number||. <when they saw the land of Jazer and the land of Gilead> lo! ||the place|| was a place 2 So the sons of Gad and the for cattle. sons of Reuben came in, -and spake unto Moses and unto Eleazar the priest, and unto the princes of assembly, saying:

As touching Ataroth and Dibon, and Jazer and Nimrah, and Heshbon and Elealeh,and Sebam and Nebo and Beôn - 4the land which Yahweh smote' before the assembly of Israel >  it is',—and ||thy servants|| have cattle.

5 And they said-

- <If we have found favour in thine eyes> let this land be given unto thy servants for a possession,—do not take us over the Jordan.
- Then said Moses unto the sons of Gad and unto the sons of Reuben,-

Shall || your brethren || go into the war, and | ye || settle down here? 7 Wherefore, then should ye dissuade the heart of the sons of Israel,—from passing over into the land which Yahweh hath given' to them?

- ||Thus|| did your fathers,-when I sent them from Kadesh-barnea, to view the land, and they went up as far as the ravine of Each of a and viewed the land, and them dissuaded the heart of the sons of Israel from entering into the land, which Yahweh | had given them! 10 Then was the anger of Yahweh kindled on that day, -and he sware, saying:
- Surely none of the men that came up out of Egypt from twenty years old and upwards, shall see the soil, which I sware unto Abraham, unto Isaac, and unto Jacob,-because they have not followed after me fully; 12 save Caleb son of Jephunneh the Kenezite, and Joshua son of Nun,-for they followed after Yahweh |fully|.

So the anger of Yahweh kindled upon Israel, and he made them wander in the desert, forty years, -until all the generation who had done the evil in the eyes of Yahweh | had wasted away |.

Lo! therefore, ye have arisen in the room of your fathers, a brood of sinful men,-to heap up yet more upon the heat of the anger of Yahweh towards Israel.

<If ye do turn away from following him> then will he yet again leave them behind in the desert, -so shall ye bring destruction upon all this people.

16 Then came they near unto him, and said,

<Folds for flocks> would we build for our cattle | here |, -and cities for our little ones; but ||we|| would arm ourselves promptly before the sons of Israel, until that we have brought them into their place, -so should our little ones remain in the fortified' cities, because of the inhabitants of the land. 18 We would not return unto our houses, -until the sons of Israel have possessed themselves each man of his inheritance. 19 For we would not inherit with them, over the Jordan and onwards, -because our inheritance hath come unto us on this side the Jordan, towards sunrise.

20 And Moses said unto them,

If ye will indeed do this thing,—if ye will arm yourselves, before Yahweh, for the war; 21 and every armed man of you pass over the Jordan before Yahweh, -until he hath dispossessed his enemies from before him; 22 and the land be subdued' before Yahweh> then <afterwards> shall ye return, and shall be acquitted by Yahweh and by Israel,-and this land shall be' yours for a possession before Yahweh.

But <if ye shall not do this> lo!b ye will have sinned against Yahweh,—and take note of your sin, that it will find you out.

Build you cities for your little ones, and folds for your flocks,-and then < that which hath gone forth from your mouth> ye shall do.

But <if they will not pass over armed with you>a then shall they accept a possession in your midst in the land of Canaan.

Then I said unto you,-

Ye must not tremble nor be afraid of them:

< Yahweh your God, who is going before you> ||he|| will fight for you,—according to all that he did with you in Egypt before your eyes; 31 also in the desert which thou hast seen, where Yahweh thy God carried thee as a man will carry his son, throughout all the way that ye journeyed, until ye entered as far as this place.

But <in this thing> ye were putting no' trust in Yahweh your God; 33 who was going before you in the way-to search out for you a place, b where ye might encamp, in the fire by night that ye might get sight of the way wherein ye should go, and in the cloud by day.

44 Then came forth the Amorites who were dwelling in that country to meet you, and they chased you, as do |bees|;* and struck you down in Seir, as far as Hormah.

45 So then ye returned and wept, before Yahweh,—but Yahweh hearkened not unto your voice, nor gave ear unto you.

46 And ye abode in Kadesh many days,—how many' were the days that ye abode [there]!

Then turned we and set forward towards the desert by way of the Red Sea, as Yahweh, spake' unto me; and we encompassed Mount Seir many days.

2 And Yahweh spake unto me, saying:

<Long enough> have ye encompassed this mountain,—turn yourselves north, wards. 4 And <the people> command thou saying,

Ye' are about to pass through the boundary of your brethren the sons of Esau, who are dwelling in Seir,and <should they be afraid of you> take ye good' heed to yourselves: 5 do not engage in strife with them, for I will not give you of their land, so much as place for the tread of a foot-sole, - for <as a possession to Esau> have I given Mount Seir. <Food> shall ye buy of them with silver so shall ye eat, -- < yea even water> shall ye buy of them with silver, so shall ye drink. 7 For "Yahweh thy God" hath blessed thee in all the work of thy hand,b he hath considered thy traversing of this great desert, - < these forty years> hath Yahweh thy God been with thee, thou hast lacked | nothing |.

So we passed on away from our brethren the sons of Esau who dwell in Seir, from the way of the waste plain, from Elath, and from Ezion-geber,—and we turned and passed on by way of the desert of Moab.

And Yahweh said unto me-

Do not lay siege to Moab, nor engage in strife with them, in battle,—for I will not give unto thee of his land, as a possession, for <unto the sons of Lot>c have I given Ar, as a possession.

10 ||The Emim|| formerly dwelt therein,—a people great and many and tall like the Anakim.

11 <(fiants> used ||they also|| to be accounted like the Anakim,—but ||the Moabites|| called them Emim.<sup>d</sup> 12 And <in Seir> dwelt the Horim aforetime, but ||the sons of Esau|| dispossessed them and destroyed them from before them, and dwelt in their stead,—as did Israel unto the land of his own possession, which Yahweh had given unto them.

|| Now ||* arise and pass ye over the ravine of Zered.

So we passed over the ravine of Zered.

Now || the days in which we journeyed from Kadesh-barnea, as far as where we crossed the ravine of Zered || were thirty-eight years, b—until all the generation of the men of war were consumed out of the midst of the camp, as Yahweh had sworn unto them.

Yea ||even the hand of Yahweh|| was against them, to destroy them out of the midst of the camp,—until they were consumeu.

So it came to pass < when all the men of war were consumed, by dying, out of the midst of the people> 17 then spake Yahweh unto me_saying:

"Thou art passing, to-day, the boundary of Moab, even Ar; 19 so wilt thou draw near over against the sons of Ammon, do not thou besiege them, neither engage in strife with them,—for I will not give of the land of the sons of Ammon unto thee, as a possession, for <unto the sons of Lot>° have I given it as a possession.

20 < A land of giants > used ||that also|| to be accounted, — ||giants|| dwelt therein aforetime, but ||the Ammonites|| called them Zamzummim:

21 a people great and many and tall like the Anakim,—but Yahweh destroyed them from before them, and they took their possessions, and dwelt in their stead: 22 as he did for the sons of Esau, who are dwelling in Seir,—when he destroyed the Horim from before them, and they took their possessions, and have dwelt in their stead, ||even unto this day||. 23 < The Avvim also, who dwelt in settlements as far as Gazza ||Caphtorim, who were coming forth out of Caphtoril, destroyed them, and dwelt in their stead.

Arise ye set forward and cross over the ravine of Arnon, see! I have given intended that the hand—Sihon king of Heshbon, the Amorite, and his land begin—take possession,—and engage in strife with him in battle.

"This day" will I begin to extend the dread of thee, and the fear of the over the face of the peoples under a the heavens,—who will hear the report of thee, then will they quake as writhe in pain because of thee.

- Then lay I prostrate before Yahweh as at the first, forty days and forty nights, <food> did I not eat, and <water> did I not drink,—because of all your sin which ye had sinned, in doing the thing that was wicked b in the eyes of Yahweh to provoke him to anger. 19 For I shrank with fear from the face of the anger and the hot displeasure, wherewith Yahweh was provoked against you to destroy you,-but Yahweh hearkened unto me, even at that time. 20 And < with Aaron > did Yahweh show himself exceedingly angry, to destroy him,-so I prostrated myself, even in behalf of Aaron at that time. 21 And <your sin which ye had made even the calf > took I and burned it up with fire, and pounded it very small, until it was fine as dust,—then cast I the dust thereof into the torrent that descended out of the mountain.e

Then said Joshua unto the people.

Hallow yourselves,—for <to-morrow> will Yahweh do in your midst, wonderful things.

And Joshua spake unto the priests, saying,

Take ye up the ark of the covenant, and pass on before the people.

So they took up the ark of the covenant, and went on before the people.

7 Then said Yahweh unto Joshua:

< This day> will I begin to magnify thee' in the eyes of all Israel,—who shall know, that <as I was with Moses> I will be with thee.

"Thou | therefore, shalt command the priests' who are bearing the ark of the covenant, saying, —

<When ye are come as far as the edge of the waters of the Jordan> <in the Jordan> shall ye stand.

Then said Joshua, unto the sons of Israel,— Draw near hither, and hear ye the words of Yahweh your God.

10 And Joshua said.

Hereby" shall ye know, that a Living Gon is in your midst,—and that he will "certainly dispossess" from before you, the Canaanite and the Hittite, and the Hivite and the Perizzite, and the Girgashite, and the Amorite, and the Jebusite.

Lo! "the ark of the covenant of the Lord" of all the earth, is about to pass before you into the Jordan.

- Now || therefore, take you twelve men, out of the tribes of Israel,—one man severally for each tribe; 13 and it shall be < when the soles of the feet of the priests who are bearing the ark of Yahweh, Lord of all the earth, |do rest| in the waters of the Jordan > the waters of the Jordan | shall be cut off, the waters that are coming down from above ||,—and shall stand in one mound.
- MANd it came to pass, < when the people set out from their tents, to cross the Jordan,—with the priests bearing the ark of the covenant before the people > 15 then < as the bearers of the ark came as far as the Jordan, and || the feet of the priests who were bearing the ark! were dipped in the edge of the waters,—||the Jordan being full over all his banks, all the days of harvest | > 16 that the waters which were coming down from above stood'-rose up in one mound a great way off by the city Adam, which is beside Zarethan, and they which were going down to the sea of the waste plain the salt sea! failed'-were cut off,-and ||the people|| passed over right against Jericho. 17 And the priests who were bearing the ark of the covenant of Yahweh, stood' on dry ground, in the midst of the Jordan with firm footing,- while all Israel' were passing over on dry ground, until all the nation had made an end' of passing over the Jordan.

And it came to pass, <when all the nation and had made an end of passing over the Jordan that Yahweh' spake unto Joshua, saying:

- Take unto you, from among the people twelve men, ||one man severally from each tribe||; and command ye them saying,
  - Take you up from hence out of the midst of the Jordan from the place where stood the feet of the priests with firm footing twelve stones,—and carry them over with you, and lay them down in the lodging-place where ye shall lodge tonight.

So Joshua called unto the twelve men whom he had made ready, from among the sons of Israel,—one man severally out of each tribe; and Joshua said unto them:

Pass ye over before the ark of Yahweh your God into the midst of the Jordan,—and lift ye up each man one stone upon his shoulder, according to the number of the tribes of the sons of Israel: that this may be a sign in your midst,—for your sons will ask in time to come, saying,

What mean these stones to you?

Then shall ye say unto them-

That the waters of the Jordan were cut off from before the ark of the covenant of Yahweh, <when it passed into the Jordan > the waters of the Jordan | were cut off |.

So shall these stones become a memorial unto the sons of Israel, unto times ageabiding.

- And the sons of Israel did so as Joshua commanded, and took up twelve stones out of the midst of the Jordan as spake Yahweh unto Joshua, according to the number of the tribes of the sons of Israel,—and carried them with them unto the place where they lodged, and laid them down there. 9 < Twelve stones also > did Joshua set up in the midst of the Jordan in the place where stood the feet of the priests who were bearing the ark of the covenant,—and they have remained there until this day.
- Now || the priests who were bearing the ark continued standing in the midst of the Jordan until everything was finished which Yahwel commanded Joshua to speak unto the people according to all that Moses commanded Joshua,—the people therefore hasted an passed over.

  11 And so it was <as soo as all the people had made an end of passin over>,—then passed over the ark of Yahwel and the priests in presence of the people.

- <On that day> did Yahweh magnify Joshua in the eyes of all Israel,-and they revered him, as they revered Moses all the days of his life.

- 16 Command the priests who are bearing the ark of testimony, -that they come up out of the Jordan.

- And it came to pass < when all the kings of the Amorites who were over the Jordan westward and all the kings of the Canaanites who were by the sea, heard' how that Yahweh had dried up the waters of the Jordan from before the sons of Israel, until they had passed over> that their heart melted, and there was no spirit in them any more, because of the sons of Israel.

§ 7. Achan's Sin and Punishment.

- 7 1 But the sons of Israel had committed an act of unfaithfulness, in respect of what was devoted, -for Achan son of Carmi son of Zabdi, son of Zerah, of the tribe of Judah, had taken' of what was devoted, and the anger of Yahweh had kindled against the sons of Israel.
  - 2 And Joshua sent men from Jericho to Ai which was beside Beth-aven, on the east side of Bethel, and spake unto them saying,

§ 8. Ai Captured.

8 1 Then said Yahweh unto Joshua-

Do not fear nor be dismayed, take wh thee all the army, and arise go up to Ai,—see! I have given into thy hand, the king of Ai and his people, and his city, and his land; so shalt thou do unto Ai and to her king, as thou didst unto Jericho and unto her king, save only' < the spoil thereof and the cattle thereof > shall ye take as your own prey,—set thee an ambush for the city, behind it.

<sup>3</sup> So Joshua arose, and all the people of war, to go up to Ai,—and Joshua chose out thirty thousand men, the mighty men of valour, and sent them forth by night. <sup>4</sup> And he commanded them, saying—

See! | ||ye|| shall be lying in ambush against the city, behind the city, do not go very far from the city,—so shall ye all be ready.

- § 9. The Blessings and Curses of the Law, written on Altar-Stones, Read aloud, and Confirmed by all the People.
- God of Israel,—in Mount Ebal: <sup>21</sup> as Moses the servant of Yahweh, commanded the sons of Israel, as it is written in the soroll of the law of Moses, an altar of whole stones, whereon had not been wielded any tool of iron,—and they caused to go up thereon ascending-sacrifices unto Yahweh, and sacrificed peace-offerings. <sup>22</sup> Then wrote he there upon the stones a copy of the law of Moses which he wrote in the presence of the sons of Israel.

  And ||all Israel and their elders and officers and their judges|| were standing on this side
  - And ||all Israel and their elders and officers | and their judges|| were standing on this side and on that side of the ark before the priests the Levites who were bearing the ark of the covenant of Yahweh, ||as well the sojourner
    as the home-born||, half of them over against Mount Gerizim, and half of them over against Mount Ebal, as Moses the servant of Yahweh commanded to bless the sons of Israel first of all. And <after that> read he all the words of the law, the blessing and the cursing,— according to all that was written in the scroll of the law. There was not a word of all that

Moses commanded,—which Joshua read not before all the convocation of Israel, with the women and the little ones and the sojourner who was going on in their midst.

§ 10. The Gibeonites by Craft secure a Covenant with Israel.

- 1 And it came to pass, when they heard,— 9 namely, all the kings who were over the Jordan in the hill country and in the lowland, and in all the coast of the great soa, over against the Lebanon,—the Hittite, and the Amorite, the Canaanite, the Perizzite, the Hivite, and the Jebusite;— then gathered they themselves together as one man, to fight with Joshua, and with Israel,—|| with one accord || b
- Now || the inhabitants of Gibeon|| heard that' which Joshua had done unto Jericho and unto Ai; '4 || they || however, acted craftily, and went and started, d—and took old sacks for their asses, and leathern wine bottles, old, and rent, and bound up; 's and sandals, old and patched, upon their feet, and worn-out mantles upon them,—and ||all the bread of their provision|| was dry' and broken'. So they took their journey unto Joshua, unto the camp, at Gilgal,—and said unto him, and unto the men of Israel.

<From a far country> are we come,

- || Now || therefore solemnise with us a covenant.

  7 And the men of Israel said unto the Hivites, —
  Peradventure' <in our midst> ye' are dwelling, how then can we solemnise with you'

- <sup>8</sup> And they said unto Joshua:

<Thy servants> we are'.

And Joshus said unto them:

|| Who|| are' ye? And || from whence || oome ye?

9 And they said unto him-

<From a very far country> have thy servants come, because of the name of Yahweh thy God,—because we had heard his fame, and all that he had done in Egypt; <sup>10</sup> and all that he had done unto the two kings of the Amorites who were over the Jordan,—unto Sihon, king of Heshbon, and unto Og king of Bashan, who was in Ashtaroth. <sup>11</sup> So our elders and all the inhabitants of our land spake unto us, saying—

Take ye in your hand provision for the journey, and go your way to meet them,—then shall ye say unto them < Your servants > we are. ||Now|| therefore solemnise with us a covenant.

§ 11. The Conquests of Joshua described and summed up.

And it came to pass <when Adonizedec 10 king of Jerusalem heard' that Joshua had captured Ai and devoted it to destruction, <as he had done unto Jericho and her king> ||so|| had he done unto Ai and her king,—and that the inhabitants of Gibeon had made peace' with Israel and had come into their midst> 2 then feared they greatly, because Gibeon' was ||a great city||, as one of the royal' cities,—and because ||it|| was greater than Ai and ||all the men thereof|| were mighty: 2 therefore sent Adonizedec king of Jerusalem unto Hoham king of Hebron and unto Piram king of Jarmuth and unto Japhia king of Lachish and unto Debir king of Eglon saying:

Come up unto me and help me, that we may smite Gibeon,—for it hath made peace with Joshua and with the sons of Israel.

5 So they gathered themselves together and came up, even the five kings of the Amorites—the king of Jerusalem, the king of Hebron, the king of Jarmuth, the king of Lachish, the king of Eglon,—lithey, and all their hosts!,—and encamped near Gibeon, and made war against it.

6 So the men of Gibeon sent unto Joshua, unto the camp at Gilgal, saying,

Do not withhold thy hande from thy servants,-

Come up unto us quickly and save us and help us, for all the kings of the Amorites that dwell in the hill-country are gathered together against us.

7 So Joshua went up from Gilgal, ||he and all the people of war with him, even all the mighty men of valour||. 8 And Yahweh said unto Joshua:

Do not fear because of them, for <into thy hand> have I delivered them,—not a man of them shall stand before thee.

suddenly,—<all the night> came he up from Gilgal.

10 And Yahweh confused them before Israel, and smote them with a great slaughter at Gibeon,—and chased them along the way that goeth up Beth-horon, and smote them as far as Azekah and as far as Makkedah.

IThen || spake Joshua unto Yahweh, on the day when Yahweh delivered up the Amorites before the sons of Israel, —yea he said, in the presence of Israel—

Thou Sun! <in Gibeon> be still

And thou Moon! in the vale of Aijalon.

<sup>36</sup> So these five kings fled',—and hid themselves in a cave at Makkedah. <sup>17</sup> And it was told Joshua saying,—

The five kings are found', hid in a cave at Makkedah.

18 And Joshua said.

Roll ye great stones against the mouth of the cave,—and set over it men to watch them; but do not ||ye|| stay, chase after your enemies, so shall ye attack them' in the rear,—do not suffer them to enter into their cities, for Yahweh your God hath delivered' them into your hand.

And it came to pass <when Joshua and the sons of Israel had made an end of smiting them with a very great slaughter, until they were spent> then did || the remainder that were left of them || enter into the fortified cities. If And all the people returned unto the camp, unto Joshua at Makkedah, in peace,—none sharpened his tongue' at any man of the sons of Israel. If Then said Joshua.

Open ye the mouth of the cave,—and bring out unto me, these five kings, out of the cave.

And they did so, and brought out unto him, these five kings, out of the cave,—namely, the king of Jerusalem, the king of Hebron, the king of Jarmuth, the king of Lachish, the king of Eglon.

And it came to pass < when they brought out these kings unto Joshua that Joshua called for all the men of Israel, and said unto the captains of the men of war who had been with him,

Come near, put your feet upon the necks of these kings.

So they came near, and put their feet upon the necks of them.

Then said Joshua unto them:

Do not fear, nor be alarmed,—be firm and bold, for < thus and thus > will Yahweh do unto all your enemies, against whom ye' do fight.

- And Joshua smote' them after this, and put them to death, and hanged them upon five trees,—and they remained hung on the trees, until the evening.

  And it came to pass  that Joshua gave command, and they took them down off the trees, and cast them into the cave, where they had hid themselves,—and put great stones upon the mouth of the cave, [which remain] ||until this very day||.
- And Joshua captured || Makkedah|| on that day and smote it with the edge of the sword, and <the king thereof> devoted he to destruction, them's and all the souls that were therein, he left no survivor,—but did unto the king of Makkedah, as he had done unto the king of Jericho.
- And Joshua passed over and all Israel with him from Makkedah unto Libnah,—and fought against Libnah; and Yahweh delivered lit also into the hand of Israel with the king thereof, and he smote it with the edge of the sword with all the souls that were therein, he left therein no survivor,—but did unto the king thereof, as he had done unto the king of Jericho.
- And Joshua passed over, and all Israel with him, from Libnah unto Lachish,—and encamped against it, and fought against it; <sup>22</sup> and Yahweh delivered Lachish into the hand of Israel, and he captured it on the second day, and smote it with the edge of the sword, with all the souls that were therein,—according to all that he had done unto Libnah.
- 33 ||Then|| came up Horam king of Gezer, to help Lachish,—and Joshua smote him and his people, until he had not left him a survivor.
- And Joshua passed over and all Israel with him from Lachish unto Eglon,—and they encamped against it, and fought against it; and captured it on the same day and smote it with the edge of the sword, and <all the souls that were therein on that day > devoted he to destruction,—according to all that he had no Lachish.

Joshua went up, and all Israel with him, aptured it, and smote it with ord, and the king thereof, reof, with all the souls that t not a survivor, according ne to Eglon,—he devoted it' Il the souls that were therein.

- Then Joshua turned back, and all Israel with him, unto Debir,—and fought against it; so and captured it, and the king thereof, and all the cities thereof, and smote them with the edge of the sword, and devoted to destruction every sout that was therein, he left not a survivor,—<as he had done unto Hebron> ||so|| did he unto Debir, and unto the king thereof, as also he had done unto Libnah, and unto her king.
- So Joshua smote all the land—the hill country, and the south, and the lowland, and the slopes, and all their kings, he left not a survivor,—but <every breathing thing> devoted he to destruction, as Yahweh, God of Israel, had commanded. 41 Yea Joshua amote them, from Kadesh-barnea, even as far as Gaza,—and all the land of Goshen, even as far as Gibeon. 42 Yea <all these kings and their land> did Joshua capture at one time,—because || Yahweh, God of Israel || fought for Israel.
- 43 And Joshua returned, and all Israel with him, unto the camp at Gilgal.
- And it came to pass < when Jabin king of Hazor heard> that he sent unto Jobab kin of Madon, and unto the king of Shimron, and unto the king of Achshaph; 2 and unto the kings who were on the north in the hill country and in the waste plain south of Chinneroth, and in the lowland, -and in the heights of Dor, on the west: 3 the Canaanite on the east and on the west, and the Amorite, and the Hittite, and the Perizzite and the Jebusite, in the hill country,and the Hivite under Hermon, in the land of Mizpah; 4 and they came out-||they and all their hosts with them, much people like the sand that is upon the seashore for multitude, with horses and chariots very many ||. 5 And <when all these kings were gathered together> they came in, and encamped as one man, at the waters of Merom> to fight with Then said Yahweh unto Israel. Do not fear because of them, for <to-morrow, about this time> am I' going to deliver up all of them, slain, before Israel,—<their horses> shalt thou ham-string, and <their chariots> shalt thou burn up with fire.

- 7 So Joshua and all the army with him came in upon them, by the waters of Merom, suddenly, and fell upon them. And Yahweh delivered them up into the hand of Israel and they smote them, and chased them as far as great Zidon, and as far as Misrephoth-maim, and as far as the valley of Mizpeh, eastward, —yea they smote them until they left them not a survivor.

captured Hazor, and <the king thereof> smote he with the sword,—for || Hazor, aforetime|| was the head of all these kingdoms. 11 And they smote all the souls that were therein, with the edge of the sword, devoting them to destruction, there was left no breathing thing,—and <Hazor> burned he up with fire. 12 And <all the cities of these kings, and all the kings thereof> did Joshua capture, and he smote them with the edge of the sword, devoting them to destruction,—as Moses, the servant of Yahweh, commanded.

Yet < none of the cities that were still standing upon their mound>b did Israel burn < none but Hazor alone> did Joshua burn. 14 But <all the spoil of these cities, and the cattle> did the sons of Israel take as their prey,—nevertheless' <all the human beings> smote they with the edge of the sword until they had destroyed them', they left remaining no breathing thing.

||so|| Moses commanded Joshua', and ||so||
Joshua |did|, he set aside nothing' of all that Yahweh commanded Moses.

So Joshua took all this land—the hill country and all the south and all the land of Goshen, and the lowland, and the waste plain,-and the hill country of Israel and the lowland thereof: 17 from Mount Halak, that goeth up to Seir, even as far as Baal-gad, in the valley of the Lebanon, under Mount Hermon, -and <all their kings> he captured, and smote them and put them to death. 18 < Many days> did Joshua < with all 19 There was not' these kings> make war. a city' that made peace with the sons of Israel, save the Hivites dwelling in Gibeon, -< the whole> took they in battle. 20 For <from Yahweh> came it to pass, that their heart was emboldenedd to come out to war with Israel that he might devote them to destruction, that they might find no favour,—but that he might destroy them,-

As Yahweh commanded Moses.

And Joshua came in at that time and cut off the Anakim from the hill country—from Hebron from Debir from Anah, and from all the hill country of Judah, and from all the hill country of Israel,—< with their cities> did Joshua devote them to destruction. <sup>22</sup> There was left remaining none of the Anakim, in the land of the sons of Israel,—save only < in Gaza, in Gath, and in Ashdod > did some remain.

23 So Joshua took' the whole land according to all that Yahweh had spoken unto Moses, and Joshua gave it for an inheritance unto Israel according to their portions' by their tribes,—and || the land || had rest from war.

2 < By lot > was their inheritance divided, -||as a Yahweh commanded by the hand of Moses, untob the nine tribes and unto the half tribe.

For Moses had given the two tribes and the half tribe their inheritance over the Jordan.but <unto the Levites> gave he no inheritance in their midst; 4 for the sons of Joseph became two tribes Manasseh and Ephraim, -so they gave no portion to the Levites in the land, save only cities to dwell in, with the pasture lands thereof, for their cattle and for their substance.

< As Yahweh commanded Moses > ||so|| did' the sons of Israel, -when they apportioned

Then came near the sons of Judah unto Joshua in Gilgal, and Caleb the son of Jephunneh, the Kenizzite, said unto him,- ||Thou|| knowest the word which Yahweh spake unto Mores the man of God in my behalf and in thine, in Kadesh-barnea.

  - Surely || the land on which thy foot hath trodden | <unto thee> shall belong for an inheritance and unto thy sons, unto times age-abiding,-because thou hast wholly followed Yahweh my God.
- ||Now|| therefore lo! Yahweh hath kept me alive as he spake these forty and five years, from the time Yahweh spake this word unto Moses, while Israel journeyed in the desert.
  - ||Now|| therefore lo! ||I-to-day|| am eighty and five years old: 11 I remain, to-day, as courageous as on the day when Moses sent me <as my strength was then'> so' also my strength is now', -for war both to go out and to come in.

§ 8. Ai Captured.

8 1 Then said Yahweh unto Joshua-

Do not fear nor be dismayed, take wh thee all the army, and arise go up to Ai,—see! I have given into thy hand the king of Ai and his people, and his city, and his land; so shalt thou do unto Ai and to her king, as thou didst unto Jericho and unto her king, save only' < the spoil thereof and the cattle thereof > shall ye take as your own prey,—set thee an ambush for the city, behind it.

So Joshua arose and all the people of war to go up to Ai,—and Joshua chose out thirty thousand men the mighty men of valour and sent them forth by night. And he commanded them saying—

See! ||ye|| shall be lying in ambush against the city, behind the city, do not go very far from the city,—so shall ye all be ready. But ||I and all the people who are with me|| will draw near unto the city,—and it shall be <when they come out to meet us as at the first> then will we flee before them; so will they come out after us until we have drawn them away from the city, for

Fleeing before us, as at the first! therefore will we flee before them. <sup>7</sup> Then ||ye|| shall rise up out of the ambush, and take possession of the city,—and Yahweh your God will deliver it into your hand.

9 So Joshua sent them forth, and they went into ambush, and abode between Bethel and Ai ||on the west of Ai||.-but Joshua lodged that night in the midst of the people. Joshua rose up early in the morning, and mustered the people, -and went up-he and the elders of Israel || before the people, to Ai. 11 And ||all the people of war who were with him || went up and drew near, and came in right before the city, -- and pitched on the north of Ai, with ||a valley|| between them and Ai. 12 And he took' about five thousand men, -- and set them in ambush between Bethel and Ai |on the west of the city ||. a 12 And < when the people had set all the host that was on the north of the city, with the rear thereof on the west of the city> then went b Joshua, during the night, into the midst of the valley. came to pass < when the king of Ai saw it> that they hasted and rose up early, and the men of the city came out to meet Israel for battle, ||he and all his people|| at an appointed time before the waste plain,—||he not knowing' that there was an ambush lying in wait for him behind the city||. 15 So then Joshua and all Israel suffered themselves to be smitten before them, -and fled by the way of the wilderness: 16 and all the people who were in the city's were called out to pursue them, -and they pursued Joshua, and so were drawn out away from the city. 17 And there remained not a man in Ai or Bethel, who had not gone out after Israel,—and they left the city |open|, and pursued Israel. 15 Then said Yahweh unto

§ 10. The Gibeonites by Craft secure a Covenant with Israel.

- 1 And it came to pass, when they heard,— 9 namely, all the kings who were over the Jordan in the hill country and in the lowland and in all the coast of the great sea, over against the Lebanon,—the Hittie, and the Amorite, the Canaanite, the Perizzite, the Hivite, and the Jebusite;—2 then gathered they themselves together as one man, to fight with Joshua, and with Israel.—|| with one accord||.
- Now || the inhabitants of Gibeon || heard thate which Joshua had done unto Jericho and unto Ai; 4 || they || however, acted craftily, and went and started, d—and took old sacks for their asses, and leathern wine bottles, old, and rent, and bound up; 5 and sandals, old and patched, upon their feet, and worn-out mantles upon them,—and || all the bread of their provision || was dry and broken'. 6 So they took their journey unto Joshua, unto the camp, at Gilgal,—and said unto him, and unto the men of Israel.

<From a far country> are we come,

|| Now|| therefore solemnise with us a covenant.
7 And the men of Israel said unto the Hivites,—

Peradventure' <in our midst> ye' are dwelling, how then can we solemnise with you' a covenant?

8 And they said unto Joshua:

<Thy servants> we are'.

And Joshua said unto them:

|| Who|| are' ye? And || from whence || come ye?

9 And they said unto him-

<From a very far country> have thy servants come, because of the name of Yahweh thy God,—because we had heard his fame, and all that he had done in Egypt; 10 and all that he had done unto the two kings of the Amorites who were over the Jordan,—unto Sihon king of Heshbon, and unto Og king of Bashan who was in Ashtaroth.
11 So our elders and all the inhabitants of our land spake unto us saying—

§ 11. The Conquests of Joshua described and summed up.

And it came to pass < when Adonizedec 10 king of Jerusalem heard' that Joshua had captured Ai and devoted it to destruction, <as he had done unto Jericho and her king> ||so|| had he done unto Ai and her king, -and that the inhabitants of Gibeon had made peace' with Israel and had come into their midst> 2 then feared they greatly, because Gibeon' was "a great city , as one of the royal cities, -and because ||it|| was greater than Ai and ||all the men thereof || were mighty: * therefore sent Adonizedec, king of Jerusalem, unto Hoham, king of Hebron, and unto Piram, king of Jarmuth and unto Japhia king of Lachish and unto Debir, king of Eglon, saying:

Come up unto me and help me, that we may smite Gibeon,-for it hath made peace with Joshua, and with the sons of Israel.

5 So they gathered themselves together and came up even the five kings of the Amorites—the king of Jerusalem, the king of Hebron, the king of Jarmuth, the king of Lachish, the king of Eglon, -||they and all their hosts||, -and encamped near Gibeon, and made war against <sup>6</sup> So the men of Gibeon sent unto Joshua unto the camp at Gilgal saying,

Do not withhold thy hande from servants,-

But || my brethren who had been up with me|| made the heart of the people melt,—whereas || I || wholly followed Yahweh my God. So then Moses sware on that day saying.

Surely || the land on which thy foot hath trodden || <unto thee> shall belong for an inheritance and unto thy sons, unto times age-abiding,—because thou hast wholly followed Yahweh my God.

- Now therefore lo! Yahweh hath kept me alive as he spake these forty and five years from the time Yahweh spake this word unto Moses, while Israel journeyed in the desert.
  - || Now|| therefore lo! || I—to-day|| am eighty and five years old: 11 I remain, to-day, as courageous as on the day when Moses sent me <as my strength was then'> so' also my strength is now',—for war both to go out and to come in.

§ 15. The Two and Half Tribes Dismissed: their Altar of Witness.

22 1 ||Then|| called Joshus—for the Reubenites, and for the Gadites,—and for the half tribe of Manameh; 2 and said unto them,

| Ye| have observed all that Moses the servant of Yahweh commanded' you,-and have hearkened unto my voice, in all that I commanded you: 3 ye have not forsaken your brethren these many days, unto this day,-but have kept the charge of the commandment of Yahweh your God.

4 ||Now|| therefore that Yahweh your God hath given rest unto your brethren, according as he spake unto them, b-||now||_ therefore turn ye and get you to your homese within the land of your possession, which Moses the servant of Yahweh gave' unto you over the Jordan.

Only take ye diligent heed, to do the commandment and the law, which Moses the servant of Yahweh commanded' you-to love Yahweh your God and to walk in all his ways, and to keep his commandments, and to cleave unto him, -and to serve himwith all your heart, and with all your soul.

So Joshua blessed' them,—and sent them away, and they took their journey unto their 7 Now <unto the [one] half tribe of Manesseh> had Moses given a possession in Bashan, and <unto the [other] half> did Joshua give possession with their brethren, over the Jordan westward,-moreover also < when Joshua sent them away unto their homes>e he blessed them, 8 and spake unto them saying-

<With much wealth> return ye unto your homes,c even with very much cattle, with silver and with gold, and with copper and with iron and with very much raiment.divide ye the spoil of your enemies with your brethren.

So the sons of Reuben and the sons of Gad and the half tribe of Manasseh | returned and departed | from the sons of Israel, from Shiloh, which was in the land of Canaan,-to go unto the land of Gilead, unto the land of their possession, wherein they had received their possessions, at the bidding of Yahweh by the hand of

And <when the sons of Israel heard'> all the assembly of the sons of Israel gathered themselves together at Shiloh, to go up against 13 And the sons of Israel them to war. sent' unto the sons of Reuben and unto the sons of Gad and unto the half tribe of Manasseh, within the land of Gilead,-Phinehas, son of Eleazar the priest; 14 and ten princes with him, one prince of an ancestral house for each of the tribes of Israel,—they being || severally heads of their ancestral houses || among the thousands of 15 So they came in unto the Israel. sons of Reuben and unto the sons of Gad and unto the half tribe of Manasseh, within the land of Gilead, -and spake with them saying :

||Thus|| say all the assembly of Yahweh-What is this act of treachery which ye have committed against the God of Israel, that ye should turn back, to-day', from following Yahweh,-in that ye have builded you an altar, that ye might rebel to-day against Yahweh?

- <Too little for us> was the iniquity of Peor. from which we have not cleansed ourselves unto this day, -although the plague came upon the assembly of Yahweh; 18 but that ||ye|| must turn back to-day from following Yahweh, -though it must needs be that < if || ye|| rebel to-day against Yahweh> then || to-morrow || < with all the assembly of Irsael > will he be wroth?
- Howbeit <if ||unclean|| be the land of your possession > do ye on your part come over into the land of the possession of Yahweh where abideth the habitation of Yahweh, and take your possession in our midst,but <against Yahweh> do not rebel, nor <against us> rebel, by building yourselves an altar apart from the altar of Yahweh our God.
- Did not || Achan son of Zerah || commit an act of treachery with a devoted thing, and <upon all the assembly of Israel> came wrath,—so that not ||he—one man alone|| died in his iniquity?

Then responded the sons of Reuben and the sons of Gad and the half tribe of Manasseh,and spake unto the heads of the thousands of Israel:

Let us prepare, we pray you, to build us an altar,—

§ 17. Joshua's Final Admonitions: his Death and Burial.

24 1 And Joshua gathered together all the tribes of Israel unto Shechem, -and called for the elders of Israel, and for their heads, and for their judges, and for their officers, and they presented themselves before God.º <sup>2</sup> Then said Joshua unto all the people-

|Thus|| saith Yahweh, God of Israel,

Beyond the River d dwelt your fathers from age-past times, [unto] Terah, father of Abraham, and father of Nahor,-and they served other gods. 3 So I took your father Abraham from beyond the River, and led him through all the land of Canaan,-and multiplied his seed, and gave unto him, Isaac; and gave unto Isaac' Jacob and Esau,-and gave unto Esau Mount Seir to possess it, but || Jacob and his sons | went down into Egypt. Then sent I Moses and Aaron and plagued Egypt, according to that which I did in their midst,—and <afterwards> brought you' forth. 6 Yea I brought forth your fathers out of Egypt, and ye came

And < when ye had remained in the desert many days> 8 then I brought you into the land of the Amorites, who were dwelling over the Jordan, and they fought with you,then delivered I them into your band and ye took possession of their land, so I destroyed them from before 9 Then rose up Balak son of VOII. Zippor king of Moab, and made war with Israel, -and sent and called for Balaam son of Beor to curse you; but I was not willing to hearken unto Balaam,—so ||he kept on' blessing||b you, and I rescued you out of his hand. Then passed ye over the Jordan and came in unto Jericho, and <when they would have made war with you-even the lords of Jericho-the Amorite and the Perizzite and the Canaanite and the Hittite and the Girgashite, the Hivite and the Jebusite> then delivered I them into your hand. 12 And I sent before you the hornet, which drave them out from before you, the two kings of the Amorites, -||not with thy sword nor with thy bow | 13 Thus I gave unto you a land on which thou hadst not laboured, and cities which ye had not built, and ye proceeded to dwell therein, -- < of vinevards and olivevards, which we planted not> ye' are eating.

SPECIAL NOTE

ON THE

DESTRUCTION OF THE CANAANITE NATIONS.

In reviewing the destruction of the nations of Canaan, it is most important to bear in mind the terrible nature of the crimes for which they were exterminated. Their very worship was grossly sensual and revoltingly cruel. In honour of their deities women surrendered their virtue. Their sacred places were brothels. The generative organs were openly represented by disgusting symbols. The peoples had holy (!) prostitutes, male and female, -k*dhéshim and k*dhéshoth. Lustful gods are cruel, and demand to be worshipped with human blood. Hence, to the king-idol Molech, the Canaanites, with some contiguous nations, immolated their sons and daughters. At such crimes as these nature shudders; and Palestine was fain, in abhorrence, to eject her inhabitants. Who shall say that the Most High has not the right to extinguish such polluters of the earth and contaminators of mankind as these? Doubtless the world has been made permanently the sweeter and the more habitable by reason of the occasional Divine use of the besom of destruction. Let us remember that there was long waiting before these nations were destroyed.* Not till their iniquity was "full" did the stroke of vengeance fall. It was doubtless both safe and kind that the extermination was to be made ruthlessly complete. And let us not forget that Joshua's commission was divine, direct, positive, explicit and repeated; and therefore no example for generals destitute of such sanction. How far other commanders may volunteer, or be lawfully commissioned, to follow Joshua's example—is, for us, a question of casuistry into which we are not here called upon to enter. Moreover, Divine Mercy drew a line around the devoted nations, and outside that line peoples might be spared—unless, indeed, the interdict went forth against them; b while, on the other hand, Divine Equity warned the Hebrews that, if they fell into the same ains, they should receive a like punishment. For their fathers' sake, indeed, they were not to be utterly annihilated; but short of that, if they would sin, they must suffer. Their land would vomit them forth. We know the sad sequel: they fell into sensual and cruel idol-worship; and God kept His word, as the captivities of Assyria and Babylon attest. We have yet to trace the long and painful story of Israel's sin and punishment: let us be thankful that we shall also have the privilege of turning over to a brighter leaf and dwelling on glowing prophetic songs of redeniption, deliverance and salvation.

So much by way of general statement. If the inquiry be urged whether there is sufficient evidence to justify the sweeping statements made at the outset of this Note, the answer can only be in the affirmative, due allowance being made for the circumstantial character of the testimony. It is just as well that the proof should, in a sense, run between the lines. In fact, it is only when some adequate knowledge is possessed of the really obscene and blood-thirsty nature of idol-worship in Western Asia that the mind is prepared to feel the full force of allusions scattered throughout the Old Testament. Many, indeed, are the allegations against Israel for going unchastely after other gods; but even the needlessly coarse terms of our public versions (in speaking of it as "going a-whoring" after idols) have probably failed to suggest to the majority of even educated minds the awful and undoubted fact that such worship was accompanied by rites (to use the guarded language of the Oxford Gesenius) "sometimes involving actual prostitution." Hence there would appear to be something like a moral necessity to lift a little the veil which hides from view the true character of the worship of the Baals, the Asherahs and the Ashtaroths of Canaan.

As to the worship of the local Baals it is attested that "it was debased by repulsive immorality." If urther, "when Israel entered Canaan the worship of the Baalim was everywhere present. As it was especially associated with agriculture, which the Israelites learned from the Canaanites, there was danger lest they should take over also the religious festivals connected with the various agricultural seasons, and thus succumb to the deadly fascination of the sensual nature-worship of the older inhabitants. That this actually happened we learn from the history."

As to the Ashcrahs, there is a doubt which does not in any way affect the main issue. The doubt is merely whether Asherah is the name of a distinct goddess, as well as the name of the "poles," "stumps," or "stems" which represented her; or whether the notorious "Ashtoreth" (Astarte) was herself worshipped under these obscene images. b In any case the rites associated with the "Asherahs"

The "Encyclopædia Britannica" unhesitatingly designates "Asherah" an impure goddess. But even if, as some think, the two names became confused, so that even when Asherah is named Astarte is ultimately intended, we have only to pass on and give a moment's attention to the latter to reach the fearful conclusion already indicated.

As to Astarte then: "She must have been pre-eminently the goddess of sexual passion. By Greeks and Phoenicians alike she is habitually identified with 'Aphrodite,' and there are sufficiently definite allusions to the unchaste character of the rites with which she was worshipped." "Her devotees were initiated with impure rites."d

From the point of view thus obtained, the passages referred to below slowly unfold their terrible significance.

To complete, once for all, the needful reference to this painful and admonitory subject, the student has only to connect the worship of the Golden Calf (Exodus xxxii.) with the Egyptian worship of Apis, as briefly disclosed by the "Encyclopædia Britannica," to apprehend why, on that occasion, the sedate Moses was driven frantic with consternation; and has only to conceive, in the light of the facts indicated in Numbers xxv. and in this Note, the real nature of the awful snare into which Israel fell at Baal-peor, to apprehend that instant excision alone could be trusted to prevent national extermination.

Obscene they mannestly were, as the monumental nightee of them plainly enough attest. How readily a "pollard" could be shaped to suggest a conjunction which virtuous shame must ever hide, can well be imagined. And the smallest predominance given to the one or other element would be quite enough to account for the interchange in usage between the two forms askeriss (mas.) and askerots (fem.).

§ 1. Israel, only in part driving out the Canaanites, fall into their Idolatry.

1 And it came to pass, after the death of Joshua that the sons of Israel asked of Yahweh saying,-

Who shall go up for us against the Canaanites, first to make war upon them?

And Yahweh said-

||Judah|| shall go, -lo! I have delivered the land into his power.

<sup>2</sup> Then said Judah, unto Simeon his brother-Come up with me into the territory allotted me, and let us make war on the Canaanites, then will ||I also|| go with thee into thy territory.

So Simeon went with him. 4 And Judah went up, and Yahweh delivered the Canaanites and the Perizzites into their hand,—and they smote them in Bezek, ten thousand men. 5 And they found Adoni-bezek in Bezek, and fought with him,-and smote the Canaanites and the Perizzites, But Adoni-bezek fled, and they pursued him, -and took him, and cut off his thumbs, and his great toes. 7 Then said Adoni-bezek--

||Seventy kings with their thumbs and great toes cut off have been picking up crumbs under my table, <as I have done> ||so|| hath God' requited me.

And they brought him into Jerusalem and he died there. 8 And the sons of Judah made war upon Jerusalem, and captured it, and smote it with the edge of the sword, -and <the city> they set on fire. 9 And ||afterwards|| the sons of Judah went down to make war upon the Canaanites,-dwelling in the hill country, and in the south and in the lowland. <sup>16</sup> And Judah went against the Canaanites who were dwelling in Hebron, o now | the name of Hebron, formerly || was Kiriath-arba, -and they smote Sheshai and Ahiman and Talmai. 11 And he went from thence', against the inhabitants of Delar,—now ||the name of Debir formerly|| was Kiriath-sepher.d 12 And Caleb said,

<He that smiteth Kiriath-sepher, and captureth it > I will give unto him' Achsah my daughter, to wife.

15 Then Othniel, son of Kenaz, Caleb's younger' brother captured it,—and he gave him Achsah

So Caleb gave her Upper-pools, and Lowerpools.º

Now || the sons of the Kenite father-in-law of Moses | had come up from the city of palmtrees, d with the sons of Judah, into the wilderness of Judah, which is in the south of Arad,so they went and dwelt with the people.

Then went Judah with Simeon his brother, and they smote the Canaanites dwelling in Zephath,—and devoted it to destruction, and the name of the city was called Hormah.

And Judah captured Gaza with the boundaries thereof, and Ashkelon, with the boundaries thereof,-and Ekron with the boundaries thereof. 19 And it came to pass that Yahweh was with Judah, and he took possession of the hill country,-but did not disposses the inhabitants of the vale, because they had ||chariots 20 So they gave unto Caleb' Hebron, ||as spake Moses||, -- and he drave out from thence the three sons of Anak.s

But <the Jebusites dwelling in Jerusalem> the sons of Benjamin did not drive out,—but the Jebusites have dwelt with the sons of Benjamin, h in Jerusalem, unto this day.

Then went up the house of Joseph-they also ||-unto Bethel,-and || Yahweh|| was with them. 23 And the house of Joseph sent to spy out Bethel,—now ||thename of the city formerly|| was | Luz |. 24 So the watchers saw a man coming forth from the city,-and they said unto him-

Shew us we pray thee the way to get into the city, and we will deal with thee, in lovingkindness.

And he shewed them the way to get into the city, and they smote the city, with the edge of the sword,—but < the man and all his family > they let go. 26 And the man went into the land of the Hittites,—and built a city, and called the name thereof, Luz, ||that|| is the name thereof, unto this day.

But Manasseh took not possession of Bethshean and her towns, nor of Taanach and her towns, nor dispossessed the inhabitants of Dor and her towns, nor the inhabitants of Ibleam, and her towns, nor the inhabitants of Megiddo, and her towns,—but the Canaanites were determined to remain in this land; 28 < when Israel, however, had waxed strong> a they put the Canaanites under tribute,—though they ||dispossessed|| them not.

<sup>4</sup> And it came to pass, <when the messenger of Yahweh had spoken these words' unto all the sons of Israel> that the people lifted up their voice, and wept. <sup>5</sup> So they called the name of that place, Bochim, <sup>a</sup> and offered sacrifice there, unto Yahweh.

6 Now < when Joshua had let the people go>b the sons of Israel went their way, every man to his inheritance, to take possession of the land.
7 And the people served Yahweh' all the days of Joshua,—and all the days of the elders who outlived Joshua, who had seen all the great work of Yahweh' which he had wrought for Israel.
8 So then Joshua, the son of Nun, the servant of Yahweh died',—being a hundred and ten years old.
And they buried him within the bounds of his inheritance, in Timnath-heres, in the hill country of Ephraim,—on the north of Mount Gassh.

10 || All that generation also; were gathered unto their fathers,—and there arose another generation after them, who had not known Yahweh, nor even the work' which he had wrought for Israel.

11 So the sons of Israel did the thing that was wicked in the sight of Yahweh,—and served the Baals;

19 and forsook Yahweh, the God of their fathers. who brought them up out of the land of Egypt, and went after other gods, from among the gods of the peoples who were round about them, and themselves down unto them, -and howed angered Yahweh. 13 Yea, they forsook Yahweh, -and did service unto the Baal and unto 14 Then kindled the anger of Ashtaroth. <when the judge was dead> they again' broke faith more than their fathers, by going their way after other gods, by serving them, and bowing themselves down to them, -they ceased not from their doings nor from their stubborn Way.

*So then the anger of Yahweh kindled upon Israel and he said-

<Forasmuch as this nation have transgressed my covenant, which I commanded their fathers, and have not hearkened unto my voice> 21 || I also|| will no further dispossess a man from before them,-from among the nations which Joshua left remaining when he died; 22 that I may by them, put Israel to the proof,-whether they are going to be observant' of the way of Yahweh, to walk therein as their fathers observed it or not'.

8 1 Now ||these|| are the nations which Yahweh left, that he might by them put Israel to the proof,-all who had not known' any of the wars of Canaan; 2 that the generations of the sons of Israel might certainly get to know, by being taught to make war, -such at least as aforetime knew nothing thereof :- s five lords of the Philistines, and all the Canaanites, and the Zidonians, and the Hivites dwelling in Mount Lebanon,—from Mount Baal-hermôn' as far as the entering in of Hamath. So then [these] were [left], that, by them, he might put Israel to the proof,-to know whether they would hearken unto the commandments of Yahweh' which he commanded their fathers by the hand of Moses. 5 And thus ||the sons of Israel|| dwelt in the midst of the Canaanites,-the Hittites and the Amorites, and the Perizzites, and the Hivites and the Jebusites; and took their daughters to be their wives, <their own daughters moreover > gave they unto their sons ||and they served their gods||.

And the sons of Israel again' did the thing that was wicked in the sight of Yahweh,-and Yahweh emboldened Eglon king of Moab against Israel, because they did the thing that was wicked in the sight of Yahweh; 13 and he gathered unto him, the sons of Ammon, and Amalek,-and came and smote Israel, and took possession of the city of palm-trees. b 14 So the sons of Israel served Eglon king of Moab eighteen years.

And the sons of Israel made outcry unto Yahweh, and Yahweh raised up unto them a saviour, Ehud son of Gera, a Benjamite, a man left-handed, -and the sons of Israel sent by his hand, a present, unto Eglon king of Moab.

Who hath done this thing?

And they inquired and made search, and it was said.

"Gideon son of Joash" hath done this thing.

30 So the men of the city said unto Joash,

Bring forth thy son, that he may die,because he hath overthrown the altar of Baal, and because he hath cut down the sacred stem that was by it.

31 And Joash said unto all who stood by him .--Will ||ye|| plead for Baal or will ||ye|| save ||Whoso pleadeth for him! let him be put to death while it is yet morning, -- < if ||a god|| he be' let him plead for himself, because one hath overthrown his altar.

Let Baal | plead against him |.

Because he had overthrown his altar.

- Now ||all the Midianites and the Amalekites and the sons of the east || were gathered together,-and they crossed over and pitched in the vale of Jezreel. 31 But ||the spirit of Yahweh! clothed Gideon. d—so he blew with a horn, and Abiezer was gathered after him.

40 And God did so on that night,—and it was dry on the fleece alone', while <on all the ground> there was dew'.

Then Jerubbaal, || the same || is Gideon, and all the people that were with him rose up early, and encamped by the fountain of Harod,—and || the camp of Midian || was on the north of them, by the hill of Moreh, in the vale.

2 And Yahweh said unto Gideon,

<Too many> are the people that are with thee, for me to deliver the Midianites into their hand,—lest Israel vaunt themselves against me, saying,

||Mine own hand|| hath saved me.

|| Now || therefore proclaim I pray thee in the ears of the people saying,

|| Whose feareth and trembleth||—let him turn and go back from Mount Gilead.

And there returned of the people twenty-two thousand, and ||ten thousand|| remained.
4 Then said Yahweh unto Gideon—

||Yet|| are the people too many, take them down unto the waters, that I may prove be them for thee there,—and it shall be that <he of whom I say unto thee

So he took down the people unto the waters,and Yahweh said unto Gideon—

<Every one that lappeth with his tongue of the water as a dog lappeth> thou shalt set him' by himself, likewise ||every one that boweth down upon his knees to drink||.

And so it was that || the number of them that lapped with their hand to their mouth|| was three hundred men,—but || all the rost of the people|| bowed down on their knees to drink water.

7 Then said Yahweh unto Gideon—

<By the three hundred men that lapped> will I save you, and deliver the Midianites into thy hand; and let ||all [the rest of] the people|| go every man to his own place.

So the people took provisions in their hand, and their horns, but <every man of Israel besides> sent he away every man to his home, whereas <the three hundred men> he retained. Now the camp of Midian was beneath him in the

Then went he down, ||he' and Purah his young man||, unto the outmost part of the armed menthat were in the camp. 12 Now ||the Midianites and the Amalekites and all the sons of the east|| were lying along in the vale ||like locusts for multitude||, --||their camels also were without' number, ||as the sand that is by the sea aide, for multitude||, 13 And Gideot came in, and lo! a man relating to his neighbour' a dream, --and he said-

Lo!  have I dreamt and lo! or round cake of barley bread tumbling int the camp of Midian, and it came as far at the tent—and smote it that it fell and turned it upside down and the tent la along.

14 Then responded his neighbour and said :--

<Nothing else> is this, than the sword of Gideon son of Joseh, a man of Israel,—Go hath delivered' into his hand, both Midia and all the host.

And it was so < when Gideon heard' the stor of the dream and the interpretation thereof that he bowed himself down, —and returne unto the camp of Israel, and said—

Arise! for Yahweh hath delivered into you hand the host of Midian.

And he divided the three hundred men in three companies,—and put horns into the hand of them all, with empty pitchers, and torch inside the pitchers.

17 Then he said un them,

And the men of Israel were called together out of Naphtali and out of Asher, and out of all Manasseh, — and pursued Midian. And messengers did Gideon send through all the hill country of Ephraim, saying—

Go down to meet Midian, and capture before them, the waters, as far as Beth-barah, and the Jordan.

So all the men of Ephraim were called out, and captured the waters, as far as Beth-barah, and the Jordan. ** And they captured the two princes of Midian, Oreb and Zeeb, and slew Oreb at Oreb's Rock, and <Zeeb> they slew at Zeeb's Winepress, and pursued Midian,—and <the heads of Oreb and Zeeb> brought they in unto Gideon at the ford of the Jordan.

8 And the men of Ephraim said unto him-

What is this thing thou hast done to us, in not calling us, when thou wentest to fight with Midian?

And they did chide with him sharply. <sup>2</sup> And he said unto them.

What have I done ||now|| in comparison with you?

Is not the grape-gleaning of Ephraim better than the vintage of Abiezer?

"Then;" was their spirit softened toward him, when he had spoken this word.

And Gideon came towards the Jordan, being about to pass over—||he|| and the three hundred men who were with him, ||faint yet pursuing||.

So he said unto the men of Succoth,

Give I pray you loaves of bread to the people that are following me; b for <faint> they are', and ||I|| am in pursuit of Zebah and Zalmunna kings of Midian.

And the princes of Succoth said,

Are the palms of the hands of Zebah and Zalmunna already' in thy power,—that we should give to thine army bread?

7 And Gideon said,

Therefore' < when Yahweh hath delivered Zebah and Zalmunna into my power> then will I tear your flesh with the thorns of the wilderness, and with the nettles.

So he went up from thence, to Penuel, and spake unto them' in like manner,—and the men of Penuel answered him, as had answered the men of Succoth.

So he spake to the men of Penuel also', saying,—

thousand, all that were left' out of all the host of the sons of the east,—and ||the fallen|| were a hundred and twenty thousand men, who had drawn the sword.

11 So Gideon went up by the way of the tent-dwellers, on the east of Nobah and Jogbehah, and smote the host, when ||the host|| had become secure.

12 And when Zebah and Zalmunna fled, then he pursued them, and captured the two kings of Midian—Zebah and Zalmunna, and <all the host> put he in terror.

And Gideon son of Joash returned from the battle,—from the ascent of Heres; <sup>14</sup> and caught a young man of the men of Succoth, and enquired of him,—so he wrote down for him the princes of Succoth, and the elders thereof, seventy-seven men. <sup>15</sup> Then came he in unto the men of Succoth, and said,

Lo! Zebah and Zalmunna,—concerning whom ye did taunt me_saying—

> Are the palms of the hands of Zebah and Zalmunna already in thy power, that we should give to thy weary' men bread?

16 So he took the elders of the city, and the thorns of the wilderness and the nettles, and taught therewith the men of Succoth: 17 < the tower of Penuel also > brake he down,—and slew the men of the city.

Then said he unto Zebah and unto Zalmunna,

What manner of men were they, whom ye slew at Tabor?

And they said

||As thou art|| so were they', |each one | as handsome as the sons of a king.

19 And he said:

<My brethren, sons of my mother> they were'! <As Yahweh liveth> <if ye had saved them' alive> I would not have slain you'.

20 So he said to Jether his firstborn,

Up! slay them.

But the youth drew not his sword for he feared, because he was yet' a youth.

1 Then said Zebah and Zalmunna—

Up! ||thou || and fall upon us, for < like the man > is his might.

So Gideon arose, and slew Zebah and Zalmunna, and took the crescents that were on the necks of their camels.

22 Then said the men of Israel unto Gideon,

Rule over us—|[even thou, and thy son, and thy son's son||,—for thou hast saved us out of the power of Midian.

23 And Gideon said unto them.

the days of Gideon.

- So then Jerubbaal son of Joash went and dwelt in his own house. 30 And ||Gideon|| had seventy sons, sprung from his own loins,-for <many wives> had he. 31 And <his concubine who was in Shechem> ||she also|| bare him a son, - and he gave him the name of 32 And Gideon son of Joash Abimelech. died' in a good old age, -and was buried in the grave of Jossh his father, in Ophrah, of the Abiezrites.

- And Abimelech ruled over Israel three years. Then God let go a spirit of mischief between Abimelech and the owners of Shechem,-and the owners of Shechem dealt treacherously with Abimelech: 24 that the cruel wrong to the seventy sons of Jerubbaal might come [upon them -and that their blood might be laid upon Abimelech their brother who slew them, and upon the owners of Shechem who strengthened his hands, to slay his brethren. 25 So the owners of Shechem set for him liers in wait upon the tops of the mountains, and they robbed all who crossed over them by the road,and it was told Abimelech.
- And Gaal son of Ebed came with his brethren and they passed through to Shechem,and the owners of Shechem put their trust in him. 27 Then went they out into the fields, and gathered the fruit of their vineyards and trode [the grapes], and held a vintage festival, -and entered the house of their god, and did eat and drink, and poured contempt on Abimelech.

And Gaal son of Ebed said:

bearing his armour, and said unto him-Draw thy sword, and put me to death, lest they say of me

||A woman|| slew him!

So his young man thrust him through and he 55 And < when the men of Israel saw that Abimelech was |dead|> they went their way every man to his own place.

Thus did God requite the wickedness of Abimelech, which he had done to his father, in slaying his seventy brethren; 57 <all the wickedness also of the men of Shechem> did God requite* upon their own head,—and so brought in upon them the curse of Jotham son of Jerubbaal.

Lo! thou art about to conceive and bear a son,-||now|| therefore do not drink wine or strong drink nor eat anything unclean, for <one separate unto God>* shall the boy be, from his birth until the day of his death.

Then Manoah made entreaty unto Yahweh and said:

Pardon, O My Lord! < the man of God whom thou didst send > I pray thee let him come again' unto us, that he may teach us what we are to do unto the boy that is to be born.

§ 3. Micah and the Danites.

17 1 And there was a man of the hill country of Ephraim, whose name was Micah. a 2 And he said unto his mother—

<The eleven hundred pieces of silver that were taken by thee, when || thou || didst utter a curse, and didst also say in my hearing, Lo! ||the silver || is with me!

"I" took it.

Then said his mother,

"Blessed | be my son by Yahweh.

<sup>3</sup> And <when he had restored the eleven hundred shekels of silver to his mother> his mother said—

- I had ||hallowed|| the silver unto Yahweh out of mine own hand, for my son, to make a graved (molten) image, b ||now|| therefore I will restore it unto thee.
- But he restored the silver to his mother,—so his mother took two hundred pieces of silver and gave it to the silversmith, who made thereof a graved (molten) image, b and it was in the house of Micah.

  Now ||the man Micah|| had a house of gods,c—and he made an ephod and teraphim, and installed one of his sons, who became his priest.

  6 < In those days> there was no king in Israel,—every man did that which was right in his own eyes||.

And there was a young man out of Bethlehem-judah, of the family of Judah,—||he|| being a Levite and ||he|| being a sojourner there. So the man took his journey out of the city out of Bethlehem-judah to sojourn wheresoever he could find [a home],—and he came into the hill country of Ephraim as far as the house of Micah in pursuing his journey. And Micah said unto him

Whence comest thou?

And he said unto him-

< A Levite> am I', from Bethlehem-judah, and ||I|| am taking my journey to sojourn, wheresoever I can find [a home].

16 And Micah said unto him-

Dwell with me and be to me a father and a priest, and  $\|I\|$  will give thee ten pieces of silver by the year, and a suit of apparel and thy sustenance.

So the Levite went.

<In those days> there was no'king in Israel, 18—and <in those days> the tribe of the Danites was seeking for itself an inheritance to dwell in for there had not fallen to them unto that day in the midst of the tribes of Israel enough for an inheritance. 2So then the sons of Dansent out of their family five men out of their bounds—men who were sons of valour—out of Zorah and out of Eshtaol—to spy out the land and to explore it, and they said unto them,

Go! explore the land.

And they came into the hill country of Ephraim as far as the house of Micah, and lodged there.

3 ||They|| < being by the house of Micah > knew the voice of the young man, the Levite,—so they turned aside there, and said to him—

Who brought thee in hither? and what art thou' doing in this place, and what hast thou here?

4 And he said unto them,

<Thus and so> hath Micah dealt with me, and hath hired me and I am become his' priest.

5 So they said unto him-

Ask of God we pray thee,—that we may know whether the journey on which we' are going shall have good success.

6 And the priest said unto them-

Go! and prosper,—<before Yahweh> is your journey on which ye go.

7 So the five men went their way, and entered Laish.—and saw the people who were therein dwelling securely, <after the manner of the Zidonians> quietly and securely, and there was no one to reproach them with anything in the land none to possess himself of dominion, they being ||far away|| from the Zidonians, and having no dealings with any one.

8 So they came unto their brethren, in Zorah and Eshtaol,—and their brethren said unto them—

And Yahweh said-

Go up, for <to-morrow> will I deliver him into thy hand.

29 And Israel set liers in wait' against Gibeah round about. 20 So the sons of Israel went up against the sons of Benjamin, on the third' day,—and set themselves in array against Gibeah as time after time. 31 And the sons of Benjamin came forth against the people, they were drawn away from the city,—and began to smite of the people, slaying as time after time. 3 in the highways, whereof || one || goeth up to Bethel, and || the other || to Gibeah in the field, || about thirty men in Israel || 32 Then said the sons of Benjamin,

They are || being smitten || before us as at the first.

But the sons of Israel had said-

Let us flee and draw them away from the city into the highways.

23 And ||all the men of Israel|| rose up out of their place, and set themselves in array in Baaltamar,—and || the liers in wait of Israel|| began to break forth out of their place, out of the forest of Gibeah. 34 And there came over against Gibeah ten thousand chosen men, out of all Israel, and the battle was severe, -||they|| not knowing that disaster' was overtaking them. 35 Thus Yahweli smote Benjamin' before Israel, and the sons of Israel destroyed in Benjamin, that day twenty-five thousand and one hundred men,-iall these; drew the sword. <sup>36</sup> So the sons of Benjamin saw that they were smitten,—and that the men of Israel had given place to Benjamin, because they trusted to the liers in wait, whom they had set near Gibeah. 37 And the liers in wait hasted, and rushed upon Gibeah,—and the liers in wait marched forward, and smote all the city with the edge of the sword. 28 Now || the appointed sign || between the men of Israel and the liers in wait had been,-to cause a great' cloud of smoke to ascend out of the city. when the men of Israel turned in the battle, and | the Benjamites | began to smite and slay of the sons of larael about thirty men, for they said, then ithe cloud, began to ascend out of the the city, a pillar of smoke,—and the Benjamites looked behind them, and lo! the whole city flamed up towards the heavens.

Yea! they are ||smitten|| before us, as in the first battle >

And the men of Israel turned then were the men of Benjamin dismayed,—for they saw that disaster had overtaken them.

And the way of the desert in the battle, overtook them,—while they began to destroy them in their midst:—step began to destroy them in their midst:—step they hemmed in the Benjamites, they pursued them, with ease! trode they them down,—as far as over against Gibean towards sunrise. "So there fell of Benjamin eighteen thousand men,-||all these' being men of valour ... 45 And < when they turned and fled towards the desert unto the cliff Rimmon> then gleaned' they of them, in the highways, five thousand men, -and they followed hard after them as far as Gidôm, and smote of them. two thousand men. 46 So then it came to pass that ||all the fallen of Benjamin|| were twenty-five thousand men that drew the sword, ||on that day||, -- ||all these' being men of 47 But there turned and fled valourii. towards the desert unto the cliff Rimmon six hundred men, -- who abode in the cliff Rimmon four months. * Thus ||the men of Israel|| turned against the sons of Benjamin, and smote them with the edge of the sword, beginning with the city each and every one down to the beast a even to every one that was met with, moreover' <all the cities they came to> they set on fire.

Now "the men of Israel" had sworn in 21 Mizpah saying,—

Not a man from among us; shall give his daughter unto Benjamin, to wife.

<sup>2</sup> So then the people came to Bethel, and abode there until the evening, before God,—and lifted up their voice, and wept bitterly,<sup>b</sup> <sup>3</sup> and said.

| Wherefore |, O Yahweh God of Israel, hath this come about in Israel, — that there should be lacking to-day out of Israel ||one tribe||?

<sup>4</sup> And it came to pass, on the morrow, that the people rose early, and built there, an altar,—and offered ascending-sacrifices, and peace-offerings.

<sup>5</sup> And the sons of Israel said.

Who was there that came not up, in the convocation, out of all the tribes of Israel, unto Yahweh?

For ithe great oath i had been taken, as to any who came not up unto Yahweh at Mizpah, saying—

He shall be ||put to death||.

6 And the sons of Israel grieved for Benjamin, their brother,—and they said,

There is cut off to-day | one tribe out of Israel ||. 7 What are we to do for them' who remain for wives,—seeing that ||we ourselves | have sworn by Yahweh, not to give them of our daughters, for wives?

8 So they said,

What one of the tribes of Israel is there, that hath not come up unto Yahweh at Mizpah? And lo! no man had come into the camp, out of Jabesh-gilead, unto the convocation: * < When the people were numbered > lo! there was not there a man of the inhabitants of Jabesh-gilead. 10 So the assembly sent thither twelve thousand

- And <this> is the thing that ye shall do,—< Every male, and every woman that hath cohabited with man> shall ye devote to destruction.
- <sup>12</sup> And they found—of the inhabitants of Jabeah-gilead—four hundred young women virgins, who had not cohabited with man,—so they brought them into the camp at Shiloh, which is in the land of Canaan.

  <sup>13</sup> Then the whole assembly sent, and spake unto the sons of Benjamin, who were in the oliff Rimmon,—and proclaimed to them peace.<sup>a</sup>

  <sup>14</sup> So Benjamin returned at that time, and they gave them the women' whom they had saved alive' of the women of Jabeah-gilead,—but they found not for them [to suffice] ||even so||.

Now || the assembly || had grieved for Benjamin,—because Yahweh had made a breach in the tribes of Israel. <sup>16</sup> So then the elders of the assembly said,

17 And they said,

how that Yahweh had visited' his people, in giving unto them |bread|. 7 So she went forth out of the dwelling-place whereshe had remained, and her two daughters-in-law with her,—and they went on the way, to return unto the land of Judah.

Then said Naomi to her two daughters-inlaw:

Go return, each one to the house of her mother.—

Yahweh deal with you' in lovingkindness, as ye have dealt with the dead', | and with me |.

Yahweh grant you, that ye may find a place of rest, a each one in the house of her husband,—

And she kissed them, and they lifted up their voice, and wept.

10 And they said to her,—

20 With thee > will we return, unto thy people.

11 Then said Naomi—

Go back my daughters! wherefore should ye journey with me?

Have I ||yet|| sons in my womb, that they should become your ||husbands|?

Go back my daughters go your way, for I am too old to have a husband,—

<If I should say b I have' |hope|, if I should |even to-night' have a husband|, and should |even bear sons|> 12 would ye ||therefore|| tarry until they were grown? would ye ||therefore|| shut yourselves up from having husbands?

  2 And Ruth the Moabitess said unto Naomi—

Let me go, I pray thee, to the field, and glean ears of corn after him in whose eyes I may find favour.

And she said to her-

A SUGGESTIVE GENEALOGY.

ONE of the greatest charms of the Bible is to be found in its genealogies. Commonly considered to be as dry as dust, it may safely be affirmed that in that dust lie hidden grains of purest gold.

This short snatch of pedigree, at the end of the Book of Ruth-how rich in suggestiveness it is Whether by author or by editor appended, the hand that wrote it was guided by the spirit of the entition Old Testament. Boaz points to one who was then yet to come—to David, in the first instance: how must further, remains to be seen. Boaz stands in the line that runs from Perez to David, and behind Pere of course, stands Judah his father; so that we at once span from Judah to David—Judah, the he of special promises, to David the first of a royal line which runs forward into a future which hot ended yet, and which cannot end until provision has been made thereby for every thirsty one that the partake freely of "the lovingkindness to David well assured."

Boaz brings Ruth into the royal line, and Ruth was a Moabitess—in other words, a Gentile—so the the exclusiveness of Hebrewism is evidently not the only aspect in which it may be viewed. Be what power is it that brings this young Gentile widow to dwell in Bethlehem? Plainly, the power love: on the face of it, love to Naomi, Ruth's mother-in-law. But was there not, in that love, religious strength of conviction and fervour which ennobled the human affection? "Thy God shabe my God," she said: and she is afterwards treated as if she meant it; as if she knew what she was doing, when she came to Bethlehem that she might find "refuge," from the idol-worship of be native land, "under the wings of Yahweh God of Israel."

Finally, the place is significant. Bethlehem may have been a small city—in fact, a mere village nevertheless it is known in after times as "the village where David was;" and—which is still not significant—the village from which, according to a well-known prediction, was to come forth Or greater than David, even He "whose comings forth have been from of old, from the days of age-patime." h

And so the outlook widens. As when some traveller, greeting the timely sign-post, makes paus and asks—Whence have I come, and whither am I bound? so the thoughtful reader of the Bible considers the stages by which his journey is advancing:—From Adam, by way of Seth, to Noah; from Noah, by way of Shem, to Abraham; from Abraham, by way of Isaac and Jacob, to Judah; from Judah, by way of Perez and Boaz, to David; and then, will it not be—a road that leads still or from David to David's Son and Lord?

1 1 And there was a certain man of Ramathaimsuphi, of the hill country of Ephraim,-||whose name | was Elkanah son of Jeroham son of Elihu son of Tohu son of Zuph an Ephraimite; and ||he|| had two wives, ||the name of the one: Hannah, and ||the name of the other|| Peninnah, -and Peninnah had children', but | Hannah || had no' children. 3 So then that man went up out of his city from time to time, b to worship and to sacrifice unto Yahweh of hosts, in Shiloh, -and ||there|| were the two sons of Eli, Hophni and Phinehas, priests unto Yahweh. <when the day came for Elkanah to sacrifice> he used to give !to Peninnah his wife, and to all her sons and her daughters | || portions ||; 5 and |unto Hannah|| used he to give one portion,c -howbeit' < Hannah > he loved, although ||Yahweh|| had restrained her from having children.4 6 And her rival used even to cause her great vexation, for the sake of provoking her, -because Yahweh had restrained her from having children.4 7 And ||thus|| used she to do year by year whenever she went up to the house of Yahweh, ||thus|| used she to vex her,and she wept and would not eat. Elkanah her husband said to her-should thy heart be sad?

Am ||I|| not better to thee | than ten sons |? And Hannah rose up, after she had eaten in Shitoh and after she had drunk,—and || Eli the priest|| was sitting upon his chair, by the doorpost of the temple of Yahweh; 10 and <she' being in bitterness of soul> prayed unto Yahweh and ||wept sore||. 11 And she vowed a vow and said -

Yahweh of hosts!

<If thou wilt ||look|| upon the humiliation of thy handmaid

6 So they gathered themselves unto Mizpah, and drew water, and poured it out before Yahweh, and fasted on that day, and said [there],

We have sinned against Yahweh.

And Samuel judged the sons of Israel in Mizpah.

And <when the Philistines heard that the sons of Israel had gathered themselves together unto Mizpah> the lords of the Philistines went up against Israel, — and <when the sons of Israel heard it> they shrank with fear from the face of the Philistines. SAnd the sons of Israel said unto Samuel.

Do not turn in silence from us, from making outcry unto Yahweh our God,—that he would save us out of the hand of the Philistines.

 So Samuel took one sucking lamb, and offered it up as an entire ascending-sacrifice unto Yahweh, — and Samuel made outcry unto Yahweh for Israel, and Yahweli answered 10 And < when Samuel was offering up the ascending sacrifice > || the Philistines || drew near to fight against Israel,—but Yahweh thundered' with a great noise throughout that day, over the Philistines, and confused them, and they were smitten before Israel. 11 And the men of Israel went forth out of Mizpah, and pursued the Philistines, -and smote them as far as under Beth-car. Samuel took a certain stone and set it between Mizpah and Yeshanah, and called the name thereof Eben-ezer, b-and said, ||Hitherto|| hath Yahweh' helped us.

- So the Philistines were subdued, and |no more| came within the boundary of Israel,—and the hand of Yahweh was against the Philistines, all the days of Samuel. <sup>14</sup> And the cities which the Philistines had taken from Israel were restored to Israel from Ekron even as far as Gath; <even the boundaries thereof> did Israel rescue out of the hand of the Philistines,—thus came there to be peace' between Israel and the Amorites.
- And Samuel judged Israel, all the days of his life. 16 And he used to take his journey, from year to year, and go round to Bethel, and Gilgal, and Mizpah,—and used to judge Israel, at all these places. 17 And ||his returning|| was to Ramah, for <there> was his house, and <there> judged he Israel,—so he built there' an altar unto Yahweh.

And ||ye yourselves|| shall become his servants.

- Then will ye make outcry in that day, because of your king whom ye have chosen for yourselves,—and Yahweh will not answer you in that day.

§ 9. The Anointing of David. David appearet before Saul.

||How long || art thou going to pine for Sa seeing that ||I|| have rejected him from being king over Israel? Fill thy horn with oil and come! let me se thee unto Jesse the Bethlehemite, for have provided me | among his sons | ||a king

<sup>2</sup> And Samuel said, How can I go? <As soon as Saul heareth he will slay me.

Then said Yahweh,

< A heifer> take thou with thee, b and say, <To sacrifice unto Yahweh> am I come.

Then shalt thou bid Jesse' to the sacrifice, when ||I|| will let thee know what th must do, so shalt thou anoint for me hi whom I shall name unto thee.

And Samuel did that which Yahweh h spoken, and went to Bethlehem. Aı the elders of the city came trembling to me him, and one said-

<Peaceably> comest thou?

5 And he said—

Peaceably: <to sacrifice unto Yahweli> a Hallow yourselves, and con with me to the sacrifice.

And he hallowed Jesse' and his sons, and bac them to the sacrifice. 6 And it can to pass < when they entered> that he looks upon Eliab, -and said to himself, Surely' <before Yahweh > is his Anointed.

7 But Yahweh said unto Samuel—

Do not regard his countenance or the heigh of his stature, for I have rejected him,-fo it is not what man' looketh to but who God' looketh to.4

For ||man || looketh to the outward appearance but ||Yahweh|| looketh to the heart'.

choice. <sup>9</sup> Then Jesse made Shammah' pass by,—and l

<Nor of this one > hath Yahweh made choice 10 So Jesse made seven of his sons pass before Samuel, —and Samuel said unto Jesse, Yahweh hath not made choice of these.

This gives a touching glimpse of Samuel. He pined for Saul, yet, as Yahweh had definitely rejected the son of Kiah, Samuel prudently kept at a distance. His loyalty to field was unperpet. to God was uppermost.

5 And David said unto Jonathan-

Lo! || the new moon || is to-morrow, and || I || must not sit b with the king, to eat,-let me go then, and hide myself in the field, until the evening.c 6 < If thy father ||enquire|| for me> then shalt thou say-

But <if there is' in me transgression> put me to death ||thyself||, for <unto thy father> wherefore shouldst' thou bring me in?

9 And Jonathan said—

§ 20. Saul's Sons slain in Battle, and Saul destroys himself.

81 1 Now <as || the Philistines || were fighting against Israel> the men of Israel fled from before the Philistines, and fell slain in Mount Gilboa. 2 And the Philistines followed hard after Saul and after his sons,—and the Philistines smote Jonathan and Abinadab and Malchishus sons of Saul. 3 And the battle went sore against Saul, and the archers discovered him,and he was terrified bat the archers. 4 Then said Saul to his armourbearer-

> Draw thy sword and pierce me through therewith lest these uncircumcised come and pierce me through, and abuse me.

But his armourbearer was not willing, for he was sore afraid. So Saul took his sword and fell thereon. 5 And < when his armourbearer saw' that Saul was dead'> || he also || fell

- And <when the men of Israel who were across the vale, and who were across the Jordan, saw' that the men of Israel had fled, and that Saul and his sons were dead'> they forsook the cities and fled, and the Philistines' entered and took up their abode therein.
- And it came to pass on the morrow, < when the Philistines came to strip the slain> that they found Saul and his three sons, lying prostrate in Mount Gilboa. 9 So they cut off his head, and stripped off his armour,—and sent throughout the land of the Philistines round about to publish it in the house of their idols and unto the people. 10 And they put his armour in a house of Ashtoreths, b-and <his dead body> fastened they on the wall of Bethshan.
- 11 And < when the inhabitants of Jabeshgilead' heard concerning him what the Philistines had done unto Saul> 12 then arose all the men of valour and journeyed all the night, and took the body of Saul, and the bodies of his sons, from the wall of Beth-shan, -and came to Jabesh, and burned them there; 13 and took their bones, and buried them under the tamarisk-tree o in Jabesh, -and fasted seven days.

SAMUEL.

§ 1. David gets Tidings of Saul's Death, and slays the Messenger.

And so it was <after the death of Saul, when David' had returned from the smiting of the Amalekites, and David had abode in Ziklag two days> 2 yea so it was <on the third day> that lo! a man came out of the camp from Saul, with his clothes rent, and earth upon his head,—and so it was <when he came in unto David> that he fell to the earth, and did homage. <sup>3</sup> And David said unto him,

From whence comest thou?

And he said unto him.

<Out of the camp of Israel> am I escaped.

4 And David said unto him-

How turned out the matter? tell me I pray thee.

And he said—

The people have fled from the battle

Yea moreover, ||many|| of the people have fallen, and died,

Yes moreover, ||Saul, and Jonathan his son || are dead.

5 Then said David unto the young man who was telling him,-

How knowest' thou that Saul and Jonathan his son are dead?

<sup>6</sup> And the young man who was telling him said, It ||so happened|| that I was on Mount Gilboa, when lo! ||Saul|| leaning upon his spear,and lo! ||the chariots and horsemen|| hotly pursued him; 7 so he turned behind him, and saw me, -and cried out unto me, and I said, Behold me! 8 And he said Who art thou? And I said unto him, <An Amalekite> am I. 9 And I pray thee take thy he said unto me, stand by me, and put me to death, for the cramp hath seized me,-even for as long 10 So I as my life shall be in me. took my stand by him and put him to death, for I perceived that he could not survive his fall, -so I took the crown that was on his head, and the bracelet that was on his arm, and have brought them in unto my lord, ||here||.

Then David took hold of his clothes d and rent them,-yes moreover [so did] all the men who were with him. 12 And they lamented aloud, and wept, and fasted' until the evening,-

For Saul and for Jonathan his son, And for the people of Yalıweh

And for the house of Israel, Because they had fallen' by the sword.

And David said unto the young man who was telling him,

Whence' art thou?

And he said,

<Son of a sojourner—an Amalekite> am I'.

And David said unto him,-How wast thou not afraid' to thrust forth thy hand, to destroy the Anointed of Yahweh? 15 So David called one of the young men, and said, —

Go near-fall upon him. 16 And And he smote him that he died.

David said unto him, ||Thy blood|| be upon thine own head,—for ||thine own mouth|| hath testified against thee saying, ||I myself|| put to death the Anointed of Yahweh.

§ 3. David, under Divine Guidance, remove Hebron, is anointed King by Judah, rewards the Men of Jabesh-Gilead.

And it came to pass <after this> that D enquired of Yahweh, saying -

Shall I go up into one of the cities of Jud And Yahweh said unto him.

Go up.

And David said-

Whither shall I go up?

And he said-

Unto Hebron.

<sup>2</sup> So David went up thither, and his two v also, -Alinoam the Jezreelitess, and Abi wife of Nabal the Carmelite. 3 < His men who were with him> did David bring |every man with his household|,-and dwelt in the cities of Hebron.

Then came the men of Judah, and another David there to be king over the house And they told David sa <Men of Jabesh-gilead> were they buried Saul.

- Now is therefore let your hands be made firm and become ye sons of valour, for your lord Saul is dead,—and <me> moreover have the house of Judah anointed to be king over them.
- § 4. Abner, espousing the Claims of Ish-bosheth, son of Saul, meets Joab at Gibeon: the Play of their young Men ends in a fierce Battle: Asahel slain by Abner.
- But ||Abner son of Ner, prince of the host that pertained unto Saul|| took Ish-bosheth, son of Saul, and brought him over to Mahanaim; and made him king for Gilead, and for the Ashurites and for Jezreel,—and over Ephraim and over Benjamin, and over |all Israel|. Seforty years old> was Ish-bosheth son of Saul, when he began to reign over Israel, and <two years> reigned he,—but ||the house of Judah|| followed David.

  11 And it came to pass, that ||the number of the days that David was king in Hebron, over the house of Judah|| was seven years and six months.
- And Abner son of Ner, and the servants of Ishbosheth, son of Saul, came out' from Mahanaim to Gibeon.
  And || Joeb son of Zeruiah and the servants of David || went out from Hebron and met by the pool of Gibeon, together,—and they sat down, || these || by the pool on the one side, and || those || by the pool on the other side.

  14 Then said Abner unto Joab.

Let the young men arise I pray thee and make sport before us.

And Josb said-

Let them arise.

15 Then there arose and went over by number, twelve of Benjamin, pertaining b to Ish-bosheth, son of Saul, and twelve of the servants of 16 And they caught every one his David. fellow by the head with his sword in his fellow's side, so they fell together,—and that place was called Helkath-hazzadim [="Field of Plotters"] which is in Gibeon. 17 So the battle became exceeding obstinate on that day, and Abner and the men of Israel were defeated before the servants of David. 18 Now there were there three sons of Zeruiah, Joab and Abishai, and Asahel,—and || Asahel|| was light of foot as a wild gazelle.d 19 And Asahel pursued' Abner, -and turned not in going to the right hand or to the left, from pursuing Abner. ### § 5. The Sons born to David in Hebron.

And there were born unto David sons in Hebron, -and it came to pass that -

His firstborn' was Amnon, by Ahinosm the Jezreelitess; And his second' Chileab, by Abigail, wife of Nabal the Carmelite, And the third' Absolom son of Maschah daughter of Talmai, king of Geshur;

And the fourth' Adonijah son of Higgith,-And the fifth' Shephatiah, b son of Abital;

|Why| wentest thou in unto my father's concubine?

And it provoked Abner greatly on account of the words of Ish-bosheth, and he said-

Am I' ||the head of the dogs|| that pertain unto Judah?

||To-day|| would I deal in lovingkindness with the house of Saul thy father, towards his brethren and towards his friends, and have not delivered thee' into the hand of David,—and yet thou hast charged upon me' the transgression of the woman || today ||.

Now it so came about that < when the ark of Yahweh entered the city of David> || Michal Saul's daughter | looked out through the window and saw King David leaping and dancing before Yahweh, and she despised him in her heart.

So they brought in the ark of Yahweh, and set it in its place, in the midst of the tent' which David had stretched out for it,—and David caused to go up ascending-sacrifices before Yahweh and peace-offerings. 18 And < when David had finished offering up the ascendingsacrifice and the peace-offerings> he blessed the people' in the name of Yahweh of hosts.

19 And he apportioned to all the people, to all the multitude of Israel, both to men and to women -|to every one| a loaf of bread, and a sweet drink, and a raisin-cake, -- and all the people went their way every one unto his own house;

§17. David's Sin in the matters of Bath-sheba and Uriah: Is rebuked by Nathan the Prophet: The Child sickens and dies: Solomon born.

11 1 And it came to pass <at the return of the year at the time of the going forth of kings>c that David sent Joab, and his servants with him and all Israel and they destroyed the sons of Ammon, and laid siege to Rabbah,-but "Davidi was remaining in Jerusalem.

<sup>2</sup> And it came to pass that <at eventide> David arose from his couch, and walked to and fro on the roof of the king's house, when from the roof he saw a woman bathing herself,the woman being exceeding beautiful to look upon ||. 3 And David sent and enquired after the woman, -and one said-

Is not ||this|| Bath-sheba daughter of Elians, wife of Uriahd the Hittite?

And David sent messengers, and fetched her and she came in unto him, and he lay with her, |she' having purified herself from her uncleanness ... and she returned unto her own house. <sup>5</sup> And the woman <having conceived > sent and told David, and said

Send unto me' Urish the Hittite.

So Josb sent Urish' unto David. <when Urish had come in unto him> David asked-how Joab' prospered and how the people' prospered, and how the war' prospered. Fi Then said David unto Uriah,

- And it came to pass <after this> that || Abso- 13 lom son of David | < having a beautiful sister ||whose name|| was Tamar> Amnon son of David loved her. 2 And it so troubled Amnon that he made himself ill on account of Tamar his sister, for  was she', and it was monstrous in Amnon's own eyes, to do ||anything unto her. 3 But || Amnon|| had a friend | | whose name | | was Jonadab, son of Shimeah David's brother,—and ||Jonadab|| was a very cunning man. 4 So he said to him,-

Why art thou looking so wretched—a king's son too-morning by morning? Wilt thou not tell me?

And Amnon said to him,

< With Tamar my brother Absolom's sister> am I' in love.

5 And Jonadab a said unto him:

Take to thy bed and feign thyself ill,—and <when thy father cometh in to see thee> then shalt thou say unto him-

I pray thee let Tamar my sister come that she may give me food, and let her prepare before mine eyes some delicacy, to the end that I may see [it made], and so eat at her hand.

6 So Amnon took to his bed and feigned himself ill,—and < when the king came in to see him> Amnon said unto the king-

I pray thee let Tamar my sister come and make ready before mine eyes a couple of cakes, that I may eat at her hand.

Come I pray thee to the house of Amnon thy brother, and prepare him enticing food.

8 And Tamar went to the house of Amnon her brother, ||he' having taken to his bed ||,-and took dough and kneaded it, and folded it before his eyes, and baked the cakes. 9 Then took she the pan and put them out before him, but he refused to eat. And Amnon said-

Have forth every one from me.

And they went out every one from him.

10 Then said Amnon unto Tamar-Bring the food into the chamber, that I may eat out of thine own hand. So Tamar took the cakes' which she had made, and brought them in to Amnon her brother in the chamber. 11 And < when she brought them unto him to eat> he took hold of her and said to her.

Come lie with me, my sister!

Rise—begone!

But she said to him—

§ 20. Joab employs a Wise Woman of Tekoa to induce David to recall Absolom: A Tardy Reconciliation.

14 And Joab son of Zeruiah perceived that the heart of the king was towards Absolom. So Joab sent to Tekos, and fetched from thence a wise woman,—and said unto her—

I pray thee feign thyself a mourner, and put on I pray thee mourning apparel and do not anoint thyself with oil, but be as a woman that hath |these many days| been mourning for the dead; 3 so shalt thou come in unto the king, and speak unto him ||after this manner||.

And Josb put the words in her mouth.

4 And <when the woman of Tekoa came in b unto the king> she fell on her face to the ground, and did homage,—and said—

Save O king!
5 And the king said to her—

What aileth thee?

And she said-

Of a truth'  am I, for my husband is dead.

Now ||thy maidservant|| had two sons, and they two strove together in the field with none' to tear them apart,—so the one' smote the other' and slew him. 7 Lo! therefore all the family hath risen up against thy maidservant, and have said:

So will they quench my ember that is left, and make my husband without name or remainder on the face of the ground.

And the king said unto the woman-

Go to thy house, and ||I|| will give command concerning thee.

Then said the woman of Tekes unto the king, <Upon me> my lord, O king, be the iniquity, and upon the house of my father, —but ||the king and his throne|| be guiltless.

10 And the king said,-

<He that speaketh unto thee> bring him in unto me, and he shall |no more| annoy thee.

12 Then said the woman,

Pray let thy maidservant speak unto my lord the king, a word.

And he said-

Speak.

13 And the woman said,

Wherefore then hast thou devised the like of this ||for the people of God||; and yet the king ||in speaking this word|| is verily guilty, unless the king ||bring back his fugitive? 14 For <when we ||die||> we become as water poured on the ground, which cannot be gathered up again,—therefore doth God not take away the life, but deviseth plans so as not to thrust out from him, a fugitive.

Now therefore [is it] that I have come to speak unto the king my lord this word, because the people kept putting me in fear,—so thy maidservant said—

Do let me I pray you speak unto the king! peradventure the king will fulfil the request of his handmaid.

For the king can hearken, to rescue his handmaid out of the power of the man who would seek to destroy both me and my son together, out of the inheritance of God.

So thy maidservant said,

Pray let the word of my lord the king be comforting,—for <as the messenger of God> so is my lord the king in hearing the good and the bad, ||Yahweh thy God|| then be with thee.

18 Then responded the king, and said unto the woman.

And the woman said,

Pray let my lord the king speak.

19 Then said the king,

Is || the hand of Joab|| with thee, in all this? And the woman answered and said—

And King Solomon sent and fetched Hiram out of Tyre: 14 <son of a widow woman> was he' of the tribe of Naphtali, but ||his father|| was a man of Tyre, a worker in bronze, and he was filled with wisdom, and discernment, and knowledge, for executing all manner of work in bronze, -so he came unto King Solomon, and executed all his work.

§ 11. The Dedication of the Temple: Solomon's Prayer and the Divine Answer.

8 1 ||Then|| did Solomon call together the elders of Israel and all the heads of the tribes chiefs of the fathers of the sons of Israel unto King Solomon in Jerusalem,—that they might bring up the ark of the covenant of Yahweh out of the city of David, ||the same' is Zion||. 2 So all the men of Israel came together unto King Solomon, in the month of steady flowings, at the festival. — || the same is the seventh month ||. And all the elders of Israel came in, -and the priests took up the ark; 4 and they brought up the ark of Yahweh and the Tent of Meeting, and all the hallowed vessels that were in the tent, -yes | the priests and the Levites | did bring them up. 5 And ||King Solomon, and all the assembly of Israel who had assembled themselves unto him | were with him before the ark, -- sacrificing sheep and oxen, which could neither be recorded nor counted for multitude. 6 So the priests brought in the ark of the covenant of Yahweh into its place into the shrine of the house into the holy of holies, -under the wings of the cherubim. 7 For ||the cherubim|| were spreading forth their two wings, over the place of the ark, -and the cherubim made a covering over the ark and over the staves thereof |above|. 8 And they drew out the staves, and the heads of the staves were seen from the holy place in front of the shrine, although they were not seen on the outside, - and they have remained there until this day . There was nothing in the ark, save the two tables of stone which Moses deposited there in Horeb,the tables of the covenant which Yahweh solemnised with the sons of Israel, when they came forth out of the land of Egypt.

And so it was < when the priests came forth out of the holy place> that ||a cloud|| filled the house of Yahweh; 11 so that the priests could not stand to minister because of the cloud,for |the glory of Yahweh| filled' |the house of Yahweh |. 12 ||Then|| said Solomon, -

I have ||built||b a house as a high abode for thee,

A settled place for thee to abide in for ages. 14 And the king turned about his face, and blessed all the convocation of Israel,-||while all the convocation of Israel was standing ||; 15 and he said-

||Blessed|| be Yahweh God of Israel, who spake with his month unto David my father,—that which with his hand he hath fulfilled saying :-

<Since the day that I brought forth my people Israel out of Egypt> I had chosen no city out of all the tribes of Israel, for building a house, where my Name might be -but I have chosen Jerusalem, that my Name should be there, and I have chosen David to be over my people Israel:

And so it came to pass that it was near the heart of David my father,—to build a house' for the Name of Yahweh, God of Israel. 15 Then said Yahweh unto David my father,

< Because it was near thy heart to build a house for my Name> thou didst well that it was' near thy heart;

|Only| ||thou thyself|| must not build the house,-but <thine own son who hath proceeded out of thy loins> ||he|| shall build the house, for my Name.

So then Yahweli hath established his word which he spake, -- and I have been raised up in the room of David my father, and have taken my seat upon the throne of Israel | as spake Yahweh|, and have built the house' for the Name of Yahweh, God of Israel; 21 and have appointed there a place' for the ark, wherein is the covenant of Yahweh, -which he solemnised with our fathers, when he brought them forth out of the land of Egypt.

And Solomon stood before the altar of Yahweh, in the presence of all the convocation of Israel, -

Know ye then that there shall fall nought of the word of Yahweh, to the ground, which Yahweh spake concerning the house of Ahab,—but ||Yahweh|| hath done that which he spake through his servant Elijah.

11 Then Jehu smote all that were left remaining unto the house of Ahab in Jezreel, and all his great men and his acquaintances and his priests, -until there was not left remaining to him |a survivor |. 12 Then arose he and came in, and departed for Samaria, -||the sheep-shearing house itself being on the road | ; 13 so | Jehu || lighted upon the brethren of Ahaziah king of Judah, and said -

So he made him ride in his chariot. <when he came into Samaria> he smote all that were left remaining unto Ahab, in Samaria until he had destroyed him, -according to the word of Yahweh, which he had spoken unto Elijah.

Then Jehu gathered together all the people, and said unto them. -

And Jehosah king of Israel sent unto Amaziah king of Judah, saying,

||A thistle that was in Lebanon|| sent unto a cedar' that was in Lebanon, saying-

Give thy daughter to my son' to wife,and there passed by a beast of the field that was in Lebanon, and trampled down the thistle:

Thou hast ||smitten|| Edom, and |thy heart| would lift thee up,-

Glory and stay at home! Wherefore then shouldest thou contend with misfortune, and fall, ||thou and Judah with thee||?

11 But Amaziah hearkened not. Jehoash king of Israel came up, and they looked one another in the face, || he and Amaziah king of Judah ||, -in Beth-shemesh, which belongeth 12 Then was Judah defeated before Israel, - and they fled every man to his own home; 18 and <upon Amaziah king of Judah son of Jehosah son of Ahaziah > did Jehoash king of Israel |seize| in Beth-shemesh, -and entered Jerusalem, and brake down the wall of Jerusalem at the gate of Ephraim as far as the corner gate, four hundred cubits; 14 and took all the gold and the silver and all the vessels that were found in the house of Yahweh and in the treasuries of the house of the king, and hostages, -and returned to Samaria.

Now < the rest of the story of Jehoash whatd he did, and his might, and how he fought with Amaziah king of Judah > are || they || not written in the book of the Chronicles of the Kings of 16 And Jehoash slept with his fathers, and was buried in Samaria, with the kings of Israel, -and | Jeroboam his son | reigned in his stead |.

And Amaziah son of Joash king of Judah |lived| <after the death of Jehoash son of Jehoshaz king of Israel > | fifteen years |.
